Today

An Important Meeting.
One War Scare Dies.
Crawling Is Recommended.
Our Old, Unsettled Earth.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

UNLESS THEIR plans change, Hitler and Mussolini will meet today for a talk, each flying to meet the other near Venice, Hitler from Berlin, Mussolini from Rome. It will be as interesting a meeting as any that has happened since Francis the First of France went to meet Henry the Eighth of England on the "field of the cloth of gold," on the French side of the channel, and more important than that meeting.

Henry and Francis are said to have indulged in wrestling bouts. Hitler and Mussolini will do the same, only mental, not physical wrestling.

The French and the English governments would like to know exactly what the two dictators, the original and the copy, say to each other.

The meeting may be historical and in its results as important as the meeting between Attila and the Pope, Leo the First, nearly fifteen hundred years ago, when the Pope persuaded the Asiatic barbarian to cross the Alps and leave Rome in peace.

THE JAPANESE vice consul at Nanking disappeared mysteriously, was sought in vain. Japan decided that China had murdered him for political reasons, made threats, searched Chinese homes, sent war tanks rumbling through Shanghai streets and sent warships as a "warning without words." The vice consul had vanished, and, of course, he must be murdered.

Yesterday the vice consul, Eimei Kuramoto, was found in a graveyard sitting beside an ancient tomb of the Ming dynasty, hungry, unkempt, gloomy. Chinese authorities say he told them that he had gone to the cemetery to commit suicide "because he had failed to achieve promotion in the Japanese consular service." He hoped wolves would eat him, but they did not, although he saw wolves, amid the dismal tombs.

He changed his mind about committing suicide when he became very hungry. That gave him an interest in life.

One war scare is averted. Kuramoto, of the Ming Tombs, will probably apologize to China for causing so much trouble. The sensitive Japanese do not like to be made ridiculous.

PERFECTLY SOLEMN doctors, in Cleveland, say "prospective mothers" can escape one of the evils of childbirth, "infection of the tract below the kidneys," by "spending about an hour a day on their hands and knees, crawling instead of walking from one place to another."

According to evolutionists, there is nothing surprising about this. Man was originally a creature walking on his hands and knees, his ribs arranged to hold up his interior apparatus, heart, liver, etc., the strong muscles of his abdomen planned to hold up the intestines. Now, "artificially" he walks on two legs, and everything sags down, which is harmful, especially for "prospective mothers."

ALTHOUGH MORE than one thousand million years old, our earth seems unable to "settle down" definitely. Earthquakes were felt over a territory of forty-seven thousand square miles in the Argentine, with hail and rain storms of violence unprecedented. In one place twenty-five inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours, more rain in one day than falls in many of our states in a whole year.

THE SADDEST news tells that Mrs. Ovila Dionne, mother of the interesting little Canadian girl quintuplets, is in a serious condition, may not live. The five little daughters are thriving, have gained several ounces, and are eighteen days old. Mothers have the hard part of life.

WONDERFUL IS the universe with its forces and counter-forces balancing each other. For instance, the power of gravitation which would draw all matter into one solid lump, is offset by radio-activity, which disrupts atoms, throwing electrons into infinite space.

Doctors tell you now that the hormones, strange product of your body's mysterious glands, "chemical messengers" flying through your body, regulating and stimulating every function up to the minute of your death, are controlled, held in check, by "anti-hormones," which act as "stabilizers," controlling the

DUCE, HITLER WEIGH FATE OF EUROPE

Wild Ovation Given Nazi Leader; Accord Seen Near

VENICE, June 14.—(AP.)—A former house painter and the son of a blacksmith met today to discuss the fate of Europe.

One was Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Germany and leader of the Nazi party; the other was Benito Mussolini, premier of Italy and leader of the Fascists.

Hitler flew here in a tri-motored airplane, accompanied by Konstantin Von Neurath, his foreign minister, and a staff of diplomats.

Der Fuehrer was welcomed at the airport by Il Duce. The former was in civilian clothes; the latter wore the uniform of a corporal, the rank both he and the German leader held in the World War.

SALUTES HITLER

All Italy and especially Venice was wildly excited by the meeting and the prospects that now there was an opportunity for an attempt to reach an Italo-German accord on the subject of disarmament and the Eastern European situation. It was even intimated that the question of Austria would be brought under consideration.

When Hitler climbed down from the airplane at Nicelli air field at 9:45 a. m. today, Mussolini swung his right hand upward in a Roman salute.

The German dictator was dressed in a dark suit and wore a light brown raincoat. He held his brown hat in one hand as he shook hands with Premier Mussolini and Fulvio Suvich, Italian undersecretary of state.

Both Hitler and Mussolini smiled when they spoke to each other and Il Duce's smile was much the broader.

Mussolini said he welcomed Hitler to Italy and the German nodded in response. The dictators then turned to walk toward a waiting motorboat a short dis-

REICH ORDERS DEBT HOLIDAY

BERLIN, June 14.—(AP.—The German government today declared a moratorium on payment on the Young and Dawes loans, supplementing a previous moratorium by the Reichsbank on the payment of all medium and long-term foreign obligations between July 1 and December 31.

Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk, the Minister of Finance, announced that the payment of interest and amortization on state loans will be suspended "for the time being until further notice."

In its moratorium announcement, the Reichsbank said no cash transfers would be made for the six months' period.

By one stroke, Germany will save herself approximately $160,000,000 in foreign exchange for the second half of 1934.

The Reichsbank made a strict denial of rumors in the foreign press regarding the inflation and devaluation of the mark, terming them "irresponsible babble."

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull took cognizance today of Germany's moratorium on foreign debts, telling newspapermen the Reichsbank's action had been placed under study by the State Department.

Weygand's Visit Hints War Pact

LONDON, June 14.—(AP.)—Political and diplomatic circles speculated today on the scheduled visit here Monday by Gen. Weygand, of France.

Some quarters believe the French and British general staffs are consulting on plans for cooperation in case of a European war.

ODDS FAVOR CARNERA TO BEAT BAER

70,000 Expected To See Heavyweight Battle Tonight

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 14.—With the battle of the mammoths only hours away, Broadway still is betting 7 to 5 that Primo Carnera will defeat Max Baer in the Long Island City Bowl tonight and retain his heavyweight championship of the world.

The Baer followers are waiting for a better price, which they won't get, and if they don't get down their money before ring time they'll have to take even shorter odds or place it on some of that 2½ to 1 that their man will not score a knockout, which is generally believed to be the only way he can win.

PRIMO HAS WEIGHT EDGE

Carnera weighed 264¼ pounds and Baer tipped the beam at exactly 210 pounds when they weighed in at the New York State Athletic Commission offices in Centre street shortly after noon today. Both boxers were reported in "excellent condition" by commission physicians who examined them.

The day dawned bright and clear, and, after many headaches in the way of threatened postponements, first on the ground that Baer was not ready and then because Carnera had a cold in the throat, not to mention a few legal tangles, the stage is set for the brawl of 1934 in the apron-like expanse of the Bowl.

Interest has been fanned to a high pitch, and there is hope that the last-minute rush for tickets will send the gate around the half million dollar mark, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's milk fund for babies will get 10 per cent after taxes are deducted. Up

Terrorists Mail 4 Bombs in Paris

PARIS, June 14.—(AP.)—At least four bombs, three of which failed to explode, have been dispatched through the mails by fantastic terrorists who call themselves "The Three Judges of Hell," police revealed today.

The possibility that more bombs were sent, and that the "Three Judges" may try to carry out their threats against the lives of the president, premier and other high officials caused concern in governmental circles and business offices.

Fighter 'Choked' To Death by Blow

BARCELONA, Spain, June 14.—(AP.)—A boxer named Martin Segundo, was killed in the prize ring last night in one of the strangest accident on record. Knocked against the ropes by Jose Blay, Segundo struck one of them with his neck and was hurled out of the ring. The blow affected his windpipe. Physicians said he was not otherwise injured.

Young Leader at Steel Convention

WILLIAM J. LONG — JOHN KERSTETTER

WORKERS STAND FIRM FOR FULL RECOGNITION; MEDIATOR WAITS CALL

The threat of a nation-wide tie-up in the steel industry rested in the hands of nearly 200 delegates to the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' convention here today.

Recognized leaders went into the convention reiterating a "hands off" policy and declaring their intention to abide by the decision of the delegates who were gathered together for the express purpose of voting on a strike.

Federal officials also had adopted a "hands off" policy. James F. Dewey, special conciliator for the Department of Labor, after a telephone conference with officials at Washington, visited the convention to offer his services if needed.

ACTION DELAYED

With the first short session adjourned shortly before noon until 3:30 p. m., it seemed probable that the actual business of the convention would not be reached until late this afternoon, President M. F. Tighe declared.

The first session was devoted entirely to calling of the roll of the spring session, and listing names of more than 50 new delegates who did not attend that session. The recess was to give the credentials committee time to act on the new members, Tighe said, with probability that all would be seated.

Whether Dewey will be invited to appear before the convention will depend entirely upon the delegates themselves, the president said. A vote has not yet been taken.

PLAN SUBMITTED

He made his offer to Vice President E. W. Miller at the door of the convention hall in No. 11 Elks, Seventh avenue and Duquesne way.

Miller relayed Dewey's message to President Tighe and later announced that Dewey probably would be asked to appear before the delegates sometime later in the day.

Dewey and Miss Charlotte E. Carr, State Secretary of Labor, conferred on the situation for almost an hour in the Pittsburgher Hotel but made no statement beyond saying:

"We were just comparing notes."

The temper of the delegates observed as they arrived here this morning showed a determined intent to strike if full union recognition was not forthcoming.

A few of the delegates appeared to be in a negotiating frame of mind, provided there was some definite assurance of intervention on behalf of the union by President Roosevelt.

VIEWS EXPRESSED

Some of the opinions voiced as the delegates gathered were:

"We must have union recognition. I don't see anything that would avert a strike."

"We must have either union

Johnson Refuses Poll of Coal Miners

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson told newsmen today he had refused to order a referendum among the coal miners of Illinois to determine which union was representative of workers in that state.

Johnson said the request, made by the Illinois Legislature, was turned down on the ground that the national government had no authority to conduct such a statewide poll.

Miss Perkins Seeks To Avert Walkout

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(INS.)—The Labor Department is still striving to avert a strike in the steel industry, Secretary Frances Perkins said today. She declined, however, to say what steps the department was taking in the case.

Johnson Sees No New Offer to Prevent Strike

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, said today:

"I don't see anything more I can do in the threatened steel strike."

He made this statement at a press conference while Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill made plans to push through Congress a substitute for the Wagner labor bill despite action of Republicans in voicing dissatisfaction with virtually all provisions and appointing a sub-committee to draw up amendments.

It provides for appointment of conciliation boards which could be employed in an effort to avert the strike set for Saturday.

The White House issued a formal denial that President Roosevelt had ordered Johnson to withdraw from the steel strike negotiations.

DENIED BY JOHNSON

Johnson had denied reports that he had been removed by President Roosevelt as a mediator because of a conflict with the workers.

The denial generally was regarded as showing President Roosevelt is standing strongly by his recovery administrator.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary to the President, issued a statement declaring the report was "without any foundation in fact."

Johnson said:

"If there were anything more I could do, I would try it, but you can't trade with a man who won't trade. I made a suggestion but they would make no concessions."

UP TO WAGNER

Johnson explained the strike situation was outside his jurisdiction, since all strikes or threatened strikes had been placed by executive order under the National Labor Board headed by Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York.

Johnson said he had entered the situation only in an effort to help out, but that the steel workers had rejected his offers. He added:

"I'm not going to Pittsburgh. Nobody from NRA is going."

Senator McNary, the Republican leader, said after an executive meeting attended by a score of Senators that a great number of changes were proposed in the new labor bill.

ANOTHER MEETING

The sub-committee recommendations will be considered at another conference tomorrow morning.

McNary said, however, that the party members expressed the view that the new bill was preferable to the Wagner bill.

The new labor bill would authorize the President to set up boards with authority to investigate labor disputes and to order elections by secret ballot of employes to determine who shall represent them in collective bargaining.

The Republican conference subcommittee is composed of Senators Davis, Pennsylvania; Couzens, Michigan; Goldsborough, Maryland; Steiwer, Oregon, and Walcott, Connecticut.

Miner Found Dead, Suspect Arrested

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 14.—The body of John Skeviki, 70, a coal miner, was found in his demolished shack today. His coal stove apparently had exploded, burying him beneath timbers. He had been dead for a week. Henry Wesly, 39, a Negro, was arrested as a suspect.

NAVY TO RETURN AIR CRASH DATA

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, assistant chief of naval operations, said in a statement today the Navy had found nothing of value in papers and chemicals in the luggage of William Bader, Buffalo chemical engineer, who fell to his death with six others in an airplane crash Saturday night on a Catskill mountainside.

The documents, obtained yesterday by a naval intelligence officer from Coroner Victor G. Bourke at Liberty, New York, have been ordered returned to the owner, the Semet-Solvay Company, which employed Bader.

Taussig talked by telephone this morning with Rear Admiral Yates Sterling, Jr., commandant of the Third Naval District at New York, who had been instructed to investigate reports that secret naval documents and formulae had been found in the plane.

Stirling, Taussig said, told him that "an officer sent yesterday from New York to the scene of the disaster had found no documents or papers of a secret or confidential nature whatever belonging to the Navy Department."

Diploma Presented To One-Man Class

PLACENTIA, Cal., June 14.—(AP.)—None of the frills were omitted as the Valencia High School's one-man graduating class received his diploma.

Roy Tillery, the only graduate, marched to the platform, gave the valedictory address and was honored by several songs by a mixed chorus. The commencement address was delivered by Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction.

Thief Shadows Mrs. Zukor, Gets $86,000 in Gems

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Mrs. Adolph Zukor, wife of the motion picture producer, reported to police today she had been robbed of jewelry and cash amounting to $86,075.

The robbery, she said, was staged while she was asleep between last midnight and 4 a. m. in a Chicago hotel suite.

Mrs. Zukor said she discovered the robbery when she was awakened by a shaft of light shining in her face from the hotel corridor through the door to her suite, which had been left ajar by the intruder.

Police believe she was followed from New York by an expert thief, who patiently waited his opportunity. Mrs. Zukor said the following were stolen:

A necklace containing 79 graduated pearls and an eight-carat diamond clasp, valued at $75,000.

A diamond cluster ring valued at $8,000.

A brooch watch set with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, valued at $3,000.

Several small gems.

Davis Boy Faces Jury In Illinois Monday

CARLYLE, Ill., June 14.—(AP.)—Thomas A. Davis, Jr., 19, Pittsburgh, Pa., is scheduled to go on trial here Monday, charged with robbery and the shooting of a deputy sheriff.

The charges were an outgrowth of the wounding of Deputy Sheriff J. G. Donnewald, Clinton County, who said he was shot in attempting to arrest Davis here last September 22. Davis recently was acquitted in Pennsylvania of a charge of slaying a state highway patrolman.

Roosevelt Talk On Radio Expected

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt probably will make another of his national radio talks before he departs the last of this month on his Hawaiian cruise, it was said today.

oN definite decision has been made. If he speaks it is understood he will review the work of the Seventy-third Congress, and perhaps give an indication of what he expects of the Seventy-fourth.

FOX FARM FIRE KILLS 2 MEN

RIMERSBURG, Pa., June 14.—Two men were burned to death today when a fire destroyed a two-story stock and equipment building on Miller Brothers Fox Farm near here on Route 68.

The body of Robert Schilling, 20, of Sarver, has been recovered from the ruins.

Searchers still were digging this afternoon for the body of Arthur Pochet, 54, of West Tenth avenue, Tarentum.

Both men, employes of the fox farm, were asleep in quarters on the second floor of the building when flames suddenly broke out shortly after dawn today.

Three automobiles, a truck and other equipment in the building was destroyed. The loss was estimated at $10,000. Origin of the fire has not been determined.

M'Cormack Sued Over 'Man-Eating Dog'

LOS ANGELES, June 14.—(AP.)—When John McCormack, Irish tenor and film actor, went to South Africa to hunt lions, he left a "man-eating dog" running at large on his estate here, it was charged in a suit called for trial in Superior Court yesterday.

Mrs. Sarah E. Ewart, 66, seeks $10,250 damages from the famed singer. She declared the dog bit her hand.

Tiger Cub Claws, Bites Frank Buck

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—Like the steeplejimber who broke his arm falling out o' bed, Frank Buck, of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" fame, today had a bandage on his hand, injured when clawed and bitten by a tiger cub.

While inspecting a cage an 8-month-old cub suddenly seized the hand.

Picture of Girl, Sailors Revives Kidnap Hunt

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—A newspaper picture of a young woman with two sailors of the fleet was seen today as a clue to a kidnaping mystery six years old.

A letter to Admiral David Foote Sellers stressed the young woman's resemblance to Grace Budd, who was kidnaped in June, 1928, at the age of 10.

Police and the Navy were cooperating today in an attempt to establish the young woman's identity.

The picture, which appeared in a newspaper, showed the girl, a companion and the two sailors on Riverside drive.

Edward Fitzgibbons, who said he is a retired policeman and a friend of Grace Budd's mother, Mrs. Delia Budd, of Manhattan, wrote the letter to Admiral Sellers.

Detective William King, of the Missing Persons Bureau, who has worked on the Grace Budd case at various times since she disappeared, said he will question Fitzgibbons and the girl's mother.

Turner, Air Speed King, Will Fly to Pageant

Col. Roscoe Turner, air speed pilot who has clipped minutes from many a transcontinental record and who recently stepped up his low wing monoplane to an average speed of 329.4 miles per hour, will fly from Seattle to Pittsburgh to attend the Sun-Telegraph Air Pageant Saturday at the City-County Airport.

Col. Turner flew to Des Moines, Ia., Monday, leaving at 6 p. m. that day for Seattle. He had intended to be in Detroit late this week and planned, after having his ship overhauled, to take off for the Junior Birdmen's Air Pageant from there.

A change in plans, however, will keep him on the West Coast for several days, and he will cross the country expressly to greet the youngsters who flock to the Birdmen's meet here.

Whether his flight will be nonstop was not known. It is possible that he may even attempt to break another air record on his way over. The air distance over

HOUSING PROPOSAL APPROVED BY SENATE BANKING GROUP

GREEN URGES UNIONS BACK MEASURE

Amendment Boosts Borrowing Power To 4-Billion

WASHINGTON, June 14—(AP.)—The administration housing bill was approved today by a Senate Banking sub-committee with all the essentials of the measure as originally introduced and will be taken up later in the day by the full committee.

The sub-committee added to the bill an amendment by Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, to increase the borrowing power of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation from $2,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000, and provided for a single administrator to have charge of the housing program instead of a group of new boards.

Meanwhile, support for the measure to facilitate home construction and modernization came from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

GREEN'S MESSAGE

He sent a telegram to the presidents of the national and international unions saying:

"The housing bill now pending in Congress recommended by President Roosevelt should release billions of money for modernization of dwellings and construction of new homes if promptly enacted into law.

"It would directly benefit all building trades workers and indirectly it will help every trade, yours included.

"This is a building construction measure which is being actively supported by the American Federation of Labor.

"I urge you to wire United States Senators and Representatives requesting them to support this housing measure, and to enact it into law before Congress adjourns."

MAIN FEATURES

Major features of the bill, which were retained, would:

Set up a $200,000,000 fund to insure 20 per cent of the losses by financial institutions in financing home modernization and repair.

Provide for insurance of home mortgages under a fund set up under government control.

Create a system of national mortgage associations to facilitate the extension of credit to home owners and builders.

Insure accounts in building and loan associations.

Senate Republicans decided to oppose the national mortgage association feature.

Watered Land Value Probe Launched by U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes conducted a searching examination today to determine if land values for housing projects aided by the government had been "watered."

The inquiry in the Public Works Administration's housing division became known yesterday after Robert D. Kohn, of Ossining, N. Y., former president of the American Institute of Architects, handed Ickes his resignation as director of the division. The Secretary of the Interior is PWA administrator.

The inquiry is covering all allotments made to 11 limited dividend corporations for low-cost housing projects.

An official said:

"Watered value would lead to higher rents unless squeezed out."

'LIAR' ACCUSED AS ABSCONDER

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—Called a "psychopathic liar," the man authorities insist is Allen Robert Hammel, today heard employes of the company he is on trial for robbing of $37,000, insist he was once a guard for the firm.

"Hammel" has denied he departed with the money from a Brinks Express Company truck, maintaining he is Burt Armstrong, of New York. He probably will take the witness stand to reiterate his contention, his attorneys said.

Russell McDermott, Brinks guard, told of going into a loop bank last winter and returning to find his fellow guard, Hammel, and the $37,000 in currency missing. Two others who said they worked with the defendant for the Brinks concern corrobarated McDermott's story.

The Hammel case became widely publicized when the prisoner convinced alienists in first tests he was not lying consciously when he claimed he was Burt Armstrong, a real estate man, in the face of identification by a wife and family here as Hammel. After his arrest there also came forward another wife in Cincinnati.

CONTROL OF OIL GETS SETBACK

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—By a vote of 12 to 5, the House Interstate Commerce Committee today refused to make a favorable report on the administration's oil control bill.

This action followed a determined undercover fight against the measure which grants the Secretary of the Interior wide powers to regulate the nation's oil industry. The committee decision came in the face of a telephonic request by President Roosevelt to Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, of the committee, to bring the measure on the House floor for passage.

The committee decided to appoint a subcommittee to make an investigation of the oil situation during the recess. This body would report to Congress at the next session. Rayburn will ask the House today or tomorrow for approval of this investigation.

ROMANCE BARED BY GIRL ARTIST

NAPOLEON, Ind., June 14.—(AP.)—Gladys Lee Shuter, 20-year-old artist, of Cleveland, O., who disappeared last Friday night, returned here early today and admitted to state police she had been on a romantic adventure with a truck driver.

"Artists do crazy things."

Thus Miss Shuter explained her disappearance.

The young woman was en route to her grandparent's home with her father, whom she had not seen for 18 years. After attending a motion picture show in Greensburg, their car ran out of gasoline. Gladys remained in the automobile while her father went back to Greensburg. On his return, the girl had disappeared.

The pretty young blonde told officers she had spent the time since Friday night with the driver of a truck she had stopped, but refused to say where they had been. Police are searching for the driver. Gladys said:

"I flagged down the truck and told the driver I had run out of gas. I asked him to take me into Napoleon. On the way he said he was driving cross country and I said I'd like to go along. So I just went.

"I had a little money and bought some of my meals and the truck driver bought me some food."

PAPER INDUSTRY PROBE ASKED BY HATFIELD

Senator Accuses U. S. Officials of Fighting Development

WASHINGTON, Jun 14.—(AP.)—Asserting that "certain persons now holding responsible government positions" sought to prevent development of a slash pine industry in the South, Senator Hatfield (Rep.), of West Virginia, wants a Senate investigation into the feasibility of such paper making.

The Senator yesterday introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of five Senators to investigate. The committee would report its recommendations for federal legislation back to the Senate next February 1.

Hatfield said it already had been established that development of a slash pine paper industry would result in a saving of from $25 to $30 per ton in the cost of newsprint paper and would result in a total saving of $50,000,000 a year to the country's paper bill.

Hatfield said:

"One of the 'certain persons' referred to in the resolution is Mordecai Ezekiel, of the Agriculture Department.

"He takes the position that we should continue to import 70 per cent of our paper supply, so we can sell our own surplus farm products abroad through reciprocal trading agreements.

"Development of a slash pine paper industry would enable us to produce more than our paper needs at greatly reduced costs and would mean employment for thousands of people, and a new industry for the South."

SILVER WAITS SIGNATURE

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—The Silver Purchase Bill needed only President Roosevelt's signature today to make it a law. Senate amendments were approved yesterday by the House.

The signing, most observers believed, probably will take place within a few days. At the administration's discretion the Treasury then will acquire enough silver to make it eventually one-fourth of the metal stocks backing the currency.

New currency is to be issued on all the silver acquired.

CHARGE BANKER JUGGLED FUNDS

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 14.—(AP.)—Testimony continued today in Cambria County Court in the trial of David Barry, banker, on a charge of making false entries.

Barry is a former president of two Johnstown banking institutions, the First National Bank and the Title, Trust and Guaranty Company.

Members of the Johnstown District School Board testified yesterday that the board's funds had been transferred without permission from the First National Bank to the Title and Trust institution. Both banks are now closed.

TUGWELL QUIZ ASSAILED BY NORRIS

Senate Confirmation Near as Nebraskan Ridicules Probe

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—In the first Senate speech favoring the confirmation of Rexford G. Tugwell, as Undersecretary of Agriculture, Senator Norris, (Rep.), of Nebraska, ridiculed the manner in which the hearing on the nomination was conducted, saying "the only thing it lacked was the presence of the Marine Band." Norris said:

"I have never seen the like of it since I've been in the House or Senate. It was a complete show. Nothing was lacking but the music.

Confirmation of the Tugwell nomination by nightfall was assured as Norris opened the second day of debate, with an agreement limiting discussion after 3 p. m.

DESCRIBES GRILLING

The veteran Nebraskan, to the amusement of his colleagues, gave a description of the scene when Tugwell was cross-examined by the State Agricultural Committee on his qualifications for the office of Undersecretary. The committee voted 16 to 2 for Tugwell.

Norris said he had difficulty in getting into the room which was "crowded almost to suffication" with Tugwell "surrounded on all sides by a surging crowd." He declared:

"I wondered why the witness did not faint away. I wondered how he could withstand those terrible surroundings without getting a faint heart. I do not doubt he realized the importance of the occasion and realized he was surrounded by 100 per cent patriotism."

Norris told of the cross-examination of Tugwell, first by Chairman Smith and then by Senators Byrd (Dem.), of Virginia, and Bailey (Dem.), of North Carolina.

ASSAILS BAILEY

He said Byrd had "made a stump speech," adding that "it was a good speech, he was applauded, the crowd cheered and clapped its hands and yelled, surpassing any street corner crowd I have ever seen."

Describing Bailey's examination of the witness, Norris said:

"I've seen some witnesses examined, and I've read of some of the things that go on in police court, but this equalled anything I ever saw or read about. I wondered how the desk could stand the terrible pounding he gave it.

"This show didn't turn out the way I expected, as the witness modestly and courteously and calmly answered the questions propounded to him as best he could."

Weather Conditions

The high pressure that covered the Mississippi Valley yesterday morning is now centered over the Ohio Valley states with somewhat diminished pressure, and a slight rise in temperature. It is causing clear skies over the country east of the Mississippi River with the exception of the state of Florida, where it is raining. In the West the low pressure centers, now located over Minnesota and Iowa, and over New Mexico and Utah, have been active in producing cloudiness and light showers over most of the plains states section. Temperature changes since yesterday have been unimportant except in the Northwest, where there was a marked drop to below 50 degrees. The cool area includes Western North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana and northward over the Canadian Northwest. There were no high maximum temperatures yesterday except in the Southwest and eastward into Texas.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 0.2 foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 10.8; Pittsburgh, 9.9; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 7.5; No. 10, 8.6, and No. 12, 8.7. The dams are up. Flashboards two feet high have been placed on Dams Nos. 4 and 5, and one foot high on No. 8 Allegheny River. On the Monongahela River flashboards are on Dams Nos. 10 to 15 inclusive, ranging from 18 to 24 inches high.

MOVE TO DISBAR CALVERT LEFT IN DOUBT

Further Action Up to Bar If Guardians Are Discharged

Action in the case of Attorney George H. Calvert, against whom disbarment proceedings were pending at the time he was declared mentally incompetent, presumably depends on the board of governance of the Pennsylvania Bar, attorneys said today.

An order was signed by Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court yesterday indicating guardians for Calvert will be discharged. Members of the board of governance were not prepared to say whether the disbarment action will be pressed in the event the guardians are discharged.

It was pointed out that at the time the disbarment hearings ended, counsel presented a written stipulation that Calvert would not practice until there had been a disposition of the charges against him.

Calvert and former Judge Henry G. Wasson were charged with gross mismanagement of the estate of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson. They were appointed a committee for Mrs. Davidson after she was adjudged mentally incompetent.

Wasson was disbarred, but hearings in the case of Calvert ended when physicians testified he was mentally ill and unable to prepare a defense. His wife, Virginia A. Calvert, the Potter Title and Trust Company and Joseph L. Trefaller were appointed as guardians for him April 28, 1931, by Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

The order signed by Judge Gray yesterday directed the guardians to file an accounting of Calvert's affairs and stipulates that upon confirmation of the account, the guardians will be discharged.

The guardians were ordered to purchase from the Braddock National Bank a note of Mrs. Calvert, originally in the sum of $4,000, given in payment of a debt of Calvert's. The order directs that the balance due the bank be paid and carried as part of Calvert's assets and that it be accounted for as such.

FREED SPY MAY FIND N. Y. HAVEN

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Charles Benjamin Ullmo—"gentle and sad and very, very shy"—has left the last outpost of the hopeless Devil's Island, in New Guinea, after 26 years.

Today, perhaps, he was a startled, terrified man frightened by the wonders of a world he never has known, lost among New York's millions.

This city said advices from Paris, was his destination when he left the island. The swarthy Ullmo was the chief character of a famous spy case in France.

He was convicted of betraying France for a woman, an actress with whom he was infatuated.

Now he has been pardoned. Blair Niles, the novelist, who knows him, hoped today that if he is in the crowded city he will come to her.

Miss Niles met Ullmo while visiting the island. She said he was "gentle and sad and very, very shy."

SPAIN FACING NEW REVOLT

MADRID, June 14.—(AP.)—A spreading general construction strike added today to the serious situation faced by the Spanish government as it combatted a movement for secession in the state of Catalonia.

A strike declared at Asturias was reported to be growing.

Authorities at Seville ordered the citizenry to refrain from going to terraces or roofs of houses as Socialists and Communists threatened a general revolutionary strike. They explained soldiers might be forced "to answer the attack" from housetops.

Barcelona was seething with crowds which welcomed Catalonian and Basque deputies from Madrid, following their withdrawal from Congress.

BARROW'S PAL GETS CHAIR

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., June 14.—(AP.)—A jury headed by a minister has recommended death in the electric chair for Raymond Hamilton, the dapper one-time companion in crime of the late Clyde Barrow, notorious Southwest gunman.

The boy-bandit killer, who has gathered 365 years in prison sentences, slumped in his chair and scowled last night as the Rev. George C. Montgomery, Baptist minister and foreman of the jury, announced Hamilton had been convicted of slaying Maj. Crowson, penitentiary guard, in a prison escape.

A packed courtroom gasped as the minister added that the death penalty had been assigned. Hamilton has boasted he never would die in the chair. A court attache moved to Hamilton and asked if he wished to send any telegrams. He replied:

"They'll all hear about it too soon."

WARS ON SOVIET ALONE, SHOT

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 14.—(AP.)—Henry Wilson Brown, 25, who forced his way into the Russian legation today and fired 20 shots wildly about the offices, conceived himself to be waging a "one man war" against Soviet Russia, police said.

Questioned at a hospital, to which he was taken after his single-handed raid had been stopped by a bullet in his chin, Brown said he sought revenge against Bolshevists who, he said, had slain his uncle and confiscated his fortune.

He added he was disappointed because Great Britain and other nations had entered business relations with Soviet Russia.

Widow Waits Message From Dead Magician

OMAHA, Neb., June 14.—(AP.)—A 70-year-old widow, whose husband gained repute by exposing spiritualistic mediums, today awaited his "message."

Before he died Tuesday night, David P. Abbot, 70, acclaimed by many as the world's greatest amateur magician, confessed to his wife that he was uncertain whether the dead could communicate with the living. He promised:

"If there is any way I can come back after I die, I will."

He later suggested:

"Perhaps we should arrange some signal, known only to ourselves, so we can be sure I am talking and there's no trickery."

Mrs. Abbott said today no signal was prearranged, but she is waiting eagerly.

Although many mediums were exposed by his efforts, Abbott maintained, at the end, a neutral attitude toward the "occult."

Abbott exchanged tricks with Thurston, his personal friend, and Ching Ling Foo, a famous Chinese magician.

ONE BRIDE GONE, MATE OF 2 HELD

VIENNA, June 14.—(AP.)—The story of Capt. Ivan Poderjay, romantic Jugo-Slavian officer, of brides in New York and London was checked by Vienna police today seeking to solve the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufvertson, of Detroit.

Capt. Poderjay, arrested last night, said he married Miss Tufvertson in New York December 4, 1933. But, he explained, only 10 months before he had married Miss Marguerite Susanne Ferrand in London.

The American bride, he related, insisted on accompanying him to Europe. This was impossible, Poderjay said, because his first wife waited for him in Southampton.

Then Agnes told him she would take a trip around the world and if he did not hear from her in a month, Poderjay told police, he could "consider her dead." He has not seen her since, he insisted.

Forty unemployed men who worked without pay for two and a half years building an auditorium and parish house for Emmanuel Episcopal Church, West North and Allegheny avenues, were honored at a dinner in the church last night at which Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Pittsburgh Diocese, was the principal speaker.

Four other clergymen of the Manchester district in short talks congratulated the men on their spirit. They were the Rev. John Hackett, of St. Andrew's Catholic Church; the Rev. C. L. Daugherty, of Trinity Methodist Protestant Church; the Rev. B. F. Glasco, of the Bidwell Street Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. A. W. S. Garden, rector of the Emmanuel Church. William A. Shaw, a member of the Emmanuel church, also spoke.

'Hugger' Runs Amuck Terrorizing Harrisburg

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, June 14.—A secret manhunt in which the entire Harrisburg Police Department participated ended today when authorities announced they had captured the shadowy figure who, they said, has been terrorizing women in private homes and institutions the past several weeks.

They announced the suspect identified himself as Eugene L. Rankin, 30, of Enola, a university graduate and former assistant track supervisor for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Police said the intruder they sought made his way into various nurses homes and private houses in Harrisburg, roused women from their sleep, warned them not to scream, and after promising no harm, attempted to caress them.

The suspect was arrested when he walked into the police station to claim an automobile confiscated by police last night near a house where an intruder was frightened away with a revolver shot.

Police reported he admitted entering six places, attempting to enter three others, and improperly accosting four women and girls. They said he could give no coherent reason for his actions.

At the height of the police search all city patrolmen were recalled for special duty every other night and a squad of 40 plainclothesmen patrolled the streets on the lookout for the prowler.

THRILLING MEDICAL TRAIL LEADS TO NEW TYPHOID REMEDY

DISCOVERY WINS GOLD MEDAL FOR DOCTOR

Serum Held as Paving Way for Cures of Other Ills

CLEVELAND, June 14.—(AP.)—The gold medal of the American Medical Association goes today to a new medicine for typhoid fever, announced here for the first time.

Even more important than the medicine, in the opinion of the awarding committee, is the method which produced it. For this process holds promise of finding new remedies for others of man's most troublesome infectious diseases.

The award was made in the scientific exhibit to Dr. Gregory Shwartzman, of Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City. He originated the process which produced the typhoid medicine, an antitoxin serum.

THRILLING AS NOVEL

This process unravels some of the "complications" which are the despair of the physician. It follows a medical trail as surprising as any thriller plot.

A bacterial filtrate, the liquid from which all bacteria have been extracted, is injected into the skin of a rabbit. This filtrate is poisonous, but after 24 hours nothing serious happens to the rabbit's skin.

Then after another 24 hours, the same filtrate is injected into the rabbit's blood. Nothing happens to the blood. But on the spot where the same filtrate was injected so harmlessly into the rabbit's skin there appears a savage sore.

CYCLE FOLLOWED

Then the scientific detective has to skip to a large animal for the next step in unraveling the action of this filtrate poison. A horse usually is chosen. The same original filtrate is injected into the horse until a serum develops in his blood. If this serum is then injected into the rabbit the sores no longer can be produced.

By following this cycle, the medical scientist can develop a serum of sufficient potency to offset the poison of the filtrate, yet not too strong to risk killing the patient.

This was the method followed to obtain the new typhoid medicine. It has been tested on about 100 human beings, at Mt. Sinai Hospital, the U. S. Marine Hospital in New Orleans and the Charity Hospital in New Orleans.

Collaborating in these tests were Dr. George Baehr, Dr. William Y. Hollingsworth and Dr. McCoy, director of the National Health Institute, Washington.

The typhoid remedy in about 70 per cent of the cases shortened the course of the disease and helped to free the patients from general toxic effects.

Experiments with 2,508 common colds which show two derivatives of opium as the best remedies, and about twice as effective as anything else tried, were reported by Dr. Harold S. Diehl, of Minneapolis. He gave these same findings to the medical world last December, when they attracted wide attention. Today's report repeated the findings with a new feature, that the opium had continued to work in the same favorable way on a larger number of common cold victims.

A new skin trouble due to oil in the common ragweed was reported by Dr. Louis A. Brunsting and Dr. C. Russell Anderson, of Rochester, Minn.

Eggs and cat hair are common causes of eczema in young children, said Dr. Lewis Webb Hill, of Boston. Taking eggs out of the diet and cats out of the house cures such cases, he said.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., June 14.—(AP.)—They're having "bear trouble" in Pocahontas County.

Pestered by bruins that annoy timber crews, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has resorted to advertising in hopes that hunters will come to its aid. The company's advertisements read:

"Permission to hunt same on the property belonging to the undersigned will be granted.

MYSTERY FLAG WAVES IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Flag Day—and in the dawn's early light there fluttered from the eternal light pole in Madison Square a strange manner of pennant.

It appeared to be red on one side, and bore a white inscription. The other side was white.

Some one had run the flag up during the night, then ripped off the rope so it could not be lowered.

There was much indignation. Police could do nothing. The firemen's ladders could not reach the flag. A large crowd gathered to watch the futile efforts to lower the flag threw stones at it.

The flag was finally lowered by a police emergency squad. They drove away without letting anyone know what was on it.

GIRL SURVIVES SUICIDE PACT

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, June 14.—A daughter who believed herself hopelessly ill and a mother who brooded of the time when she would be left alone, entered upon a strange suicide pact yesterday in the chill waters of Lake Michigan.

The mother drowned, but the daughter survived, perhaps to die later of the malady which she feared.

Surgeons had told Margaret Bott that she must have a third mastoid operation—that it might be fatal.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, had told friends:

"If Margaret died, I could not live."

And today in hysterical and critical condition, the 22-year-old girl told how she and her mother had donned bathing suits at 2 a. m. in their suburban Highland Park home, walked to the dark, wave-lapped beach nearby, tied themselves together with a length of clothesline, and swam and swam.

The mother's body was found on the beach several hours later. A short time after Allen Murphy, a newsboy, had seen Margaret staggering up from the lake front, waving feebly at him.

'BANDIT' DIED IN LION'S DEN TO WIN BET

Went to Doom After 'Two-Bit' Wager, Inquest Told

WHIPSNADE, England, June 14.—(AP.)—The story of how Stanley Stenson, who a few years ago was one of London's rare gun-toting bandits, lost his life in a lion's den as the result of a one-shilling bet was unfolded at a Coroner's inquest today.

The inquest, held within hearing of the roars and cries of animals in the open air zoo, which was the scene of the tragedy last Thursday, resulted in a verdict of death by "misadventure" at the claws of the lions.

Stenson died, the jury held, from the mauling and tearing of two lions while would-be rescuers tried to pull him away from the bars of their pit, rather than from a 16-foot fall into the den.

Horace Myhill testified that Stenson offered to bet a shilling (about 25 cents) that he could retrieve a hat from the open air pit, and that Myhill then threw in his hat.

Then, he said, Stenson went to the top of the inside railing around the pit and the lions seized him. Myhill continued:

"When he was caught I went in and grabbed him by the right hand. I clung to him for 22 minutes while the lions pulled at him. When I fell back over the side of the railing he fell in, and there was a terrible roaring and turmoil.

"Words which were sealed burst from his lips. He spoke to me as a dead man, saying, 'Do something, old chap.'"

Other witnesses told how Stenson was seen to be still fighting when the lions dragged him back into the pit after his fall.

Records from Scotland Yard disclosed that Stenson was described as attempting to emulate American bandits and that he twice served prison terms, with lashes, for a series of holdups in which firearms were used.

SAINT GAUDENS BACK IN U. S.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Homer Saint Gaudens, director of fine arts of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, returned on the liner Manhattan today from his annual trip to Europe where he arranged for an American exhibition of European art.

The exhibition of some 300 canvases will open in Pittsburgh in October, Saint Gaudens said, and will then move to Baltimore and then to San Francisco. One-third of the canvases are by Americans, one-third by French and English, and the rest from artists of 11 smaller countries.

Saint Gaudens believes that artists are becoming more nationalistic. Paris, he says, is no longer the mecca of students and "isms" which influenced art are gradually disappearing.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Saint Gaudens.

LILIAN HARVEY . . . . HER PLAN: A RETURN TO GERMANY

Director-Friend to Join Walkout on 'Serenade'

By HARRISON CARROLL

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—Her Fox contract dramatically called off, Lilian Harvey, petite European film star, today nonchalantly faced the loss of a tidy fortune it would have brought her in salary.

The blonde actress expressed relief to be free of her ill-starred Hollywood film venture. She exclaimed:

"I have a load off my soul and am happy again."

Disagreement over the picture, "Serenade," which she was supposed to start tomorrow, was the cause of the final split in the troublous relations between the film company and the star. Lilian declared:

"They have changed the story so much I felt it would be impossible for me to do it. I asked for my release and they gave it to me."

Simultaneously, she revealed that Paul Martin, schedule director of the picture and her friend, also has turned down the script and asked for his release.

With no immediate film plans, Lilian intends to remain at least three weeks in California, packing her household goods and making a few sight-seeing tours. Barring unexpected developments, she'll then return to Germany.

The blonde star politely evaded questions about the possibility of her marriage to Willie Fritsch, German star, long rumored as her fiance. She said:

"Mr. Fritsch doesn't know what has happened. I am going to cable him today."

FIEND HUNTED IN ATTACKS

DEFIANCE, O., June 14.—(AP.)—Fearing another attack by an apparently crazed man who has wounded five women and girls in the last two weeks, a secret committee of eight vigilantes took charge today of protective measures.

The fifth attack, in which 16-year-old Rosemary Mansfield received a slight knife wound in the back as she walked along a residential street, led to the calling of a mass meeting last night.

Members of the American Legion and the Lions' Club offered to patrol the streets. The attacker has clubbed two women, shot one and stabbed two.

Mayor Joseph C. Krutsch said the committee's plan for defense probably would require members of the Legion and the Lions' Club to stand ready for an immediate call during any emergency.

Apprehensive parents have kept their children indoors after dark, and care is being taken to keep doors locked.

EILEEN TO BARE LOVE LETTERS FROM ASTOR

Revelation Promised By Mother of Miss Gillespie

By DIXIE TIGHE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The private romantic (?) letters of young John Jacob Astor to Miss Eileen S. S. Gillespie, his former fiancee, will be released.

Mrs. Lawrence Gillespie, mother of Eileen, promised the revelation today in a brief telephonic interview with International News Service.

When? Where? How?

Mrs. Gillespie had not yet made up her mind as to the details.

She said, however:

"I am afraid I will have to reveal the correspondence. I do not know just when I will do this."

The threat to make public the Astor-Gillespie dossier followed the indignant statement of young Astor concerning an announcement by the Gillespie family which accompanied the return of his $100,000 engagement ring by Miss Gillespie.

It also followed the breaking of the engagement by Miss Gillespie and the subsequent new engagement of young Astor to Ellen Tuck French, who was to have been the bridesmaid at Eileen's marriage.

When the $100,000 engagement ring was returned to the Astor scion, the Gillespie family announcement referred to "an apology" received from him for his language to Miss Gillespie "and a retraction of his threats concerning her and her family."

Young Astor termed the contents of the statement "a bluff" and "rot" and denied there was any correspondence or any apology.

He said some other strong things which caused the Gillespie blue blood to boil.

QUINTUPLETS GAIN 4 OUNCES

CORBEIL, Ont., June 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Olivia Dionne, mother of the quintuplets who are 17 days old today, was much improved and her girl infants are all in good condition and gaining weight, Dr. A. R. Dafoe reported.

Mrs. Dionne rested well during the night and was anxious to be up and around her home again. However, her physician has decided she must rest for some days at least. He ordered her back to bed yesterday when he found excitement around the farm house had caused a slight relapse.

The babies weighed 11 pounds 4¼ ounces today, a gain of four ounces among them. Annette was the only one to lose and she dropped only ¼ ounce.

The regular administration of oxygen and carbon dioxide is carried on.

MRS. PICCARD IN SOLO FLIGHT

DETROIT, June 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jeannette Piccard, believed to be the first woman solo balloon flier, today made her last training flight preparatory to a trip with her husband, Prof. Jean Piccard, into the stratosphere.

She took off at 1:30 a. m. from Ford Airport, and later telegraphed her husband and instructor here that she had landed shortly after 9 o'clock at Leamington, Ontario.

Mrs. Piccard reported that she made a "very good" landing at Leamington, on Lake Erie about 30 miles from Windsor, Ontario.

The telegram said the balloon had been carried out over Lake St. Clair and then caught in an air current which carried her southward to Leamington.

STEEL WORKERS HERE TO FACE SHOWDOWN recognition or the proper intervention by the government providing a satisfactory plan."

"We're willing to go along with the President."

With a resolution already in effect ordering a "holiday" if demands for union recognition were not met, union leaders said the convention would discuss ways and means of carrying out the orders of the convention.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, with which the Amalgamated is affiliated, will come here tomorrow to address the convention, it was announced this morning.

Green was invited by President Tighe, of the Amalgamated, in a move that was regarded by observers as having a double purpose. In some quarters his visit here was viewed as an attempt by Tighe and the conservative elements to hold in line the younger element in the organization.

Other observers pointed out that Tighe has so far made each move with the full knowledge and support of the Federation, and had stated he expected the Amalgamated would have the "sympathy" and perhaps financial support of the A. F. of L. in the event of a strike.

TIGHE 'DISAPPOINTED'

Tighe today expressed disappointment over the suggested legislation which was delivered to Congressional leaders with a message in President Roosevelt's own handwriting. Tighe said:

"It's a Chinese puzzle to me. I don't see any union recognition there."

Meanwhile, Secretary Carr had slipped quietly into the city on Tuesday and was supervising efforts of her department to ease the crisis, or prepare for action in case a strike was called.

Two other representatives of the Labor Department, Clarence Moser, of Allentown, head of the mediation service, and Clinton Golden, of Greensburg, have been working under her direction in the district, interviewing union men and getting first-hand information on the situation.

Moser entered the Elks Hall before the convention was called to order and talked to the men. He declined to reveal whether he would speak before the convention, but he said:

"What we are interested in is bringing about an adjustment of the controversy, if that is possible."

MISS CARR'S VIEWS

Miss Carr said:

"There isn't much to say about my visit here. I am trying to get an understanding of the situation, and, of course, do anything we can, but it seems there is nothing to be done."

Miss Carr said she did not plan to attend the steel workers' convention and that her plans were "entirely indefinite."

With approving of credentials and roll call scheduled for the first few hours of the convention, Tighe indicated it would be unlikely that the convention would actually begin discussion of the strike problem until late this afternoon.

Officials of the steel towns in the vicinity were "hoping against a strike," but quiet plans were being made to prepare themselves, it was learned.

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, of Allegheny County, said:

"We are hoping there will not be a strike, but we have a definite program mapped out if one is called.

"In such an event I intend to call in groups from both sides."

Commenting on "company union" election reports, made public yesterday, Tighe declared stories that the majority of men were not in favor of a strike reminded him of the steel strike in 1919. He said:

"The companies said 95 per cent of the men were with them and would not strike, but on July 1, when the old wage contract ended, not a man went to work."

Officials of steel companies have declined to talk, but are solidly aligned against the union recognition demanded by the Amalgamated. Their principal argument has been that the majority of men do not want to strike, that company union polls prove the great bulk of men favor employe representation, and that the Amalgamated is really fighting for a "closed shop."

Major Figures in Steel Strike Crisis

Forbeck Sneers At Green, Head Of A. F. of L.

Tighe Says He's Only 'Mouthpiece' of Union

One of the main characters in the drama of steel today as the workers meet in the Elks' Club here to determine their future course is Earl G. Forbeck, "rank and file" leader, of McKeesport.

Forbeck declared that a general strike of the millions of A. F. of L. workers will be asked when President William Green arrives in the city. He said:

"We'll put the screws on Green just as we would on any one else.

"We would be foolish if we missed a chance like this. It is the only thing we can do unless Roosevelt steps in.

"If the Iron and Steel Institute lets the steel workers out, they'll get the worst surprise of their lives."

Other principal characters at the convention:

With the eyes of the nation focused on the auditorium in the Elks' Club, Seventh street and Duquesne way, where the steel workers are convening, these were the main characters in the drama of steel today and their expressed attitude on the situation:

President M. F. Tighe, of the 59-year-old Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, veteran head for 15 years, who says:

"I am only the mouthpiece of the organization when it speaks. What the boys will do—how they will take the suggested plan of President Roosevelt, I can't tell."

William J. Long, young president of Weir Cove Lodge, Weirton, one of the "rank and file" leaders who sponsored the "recognition or strike" mandate. A silent man.

William J. Spang, president of Fort Dukane Lodge, Duquesne, another "rank and file" leader and outspoken antagonist of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who declares:

"The only government proposal we can accept is union recognition."

Mel Moore, of Steubenville, O., Clarence Irwin, of Youngstown, O., Roy Kelsey, of Gary, Ind., and Earl J. Forbeck, of McKeesport, "rank and file" leaders who carried through their program at the last session of the convention.

Ted Koellner, financial secretary of Stark Lodge, Canton, O., had this to say:

"We must have union recognition. I don't see anything else that would avert a strike.

"Sure, the company elections showed all the men voting, because they shut down the plant and strong-armed the men into voting. If a man showed any inclination not to vote, they told him not to make a fool of himself—he might not have a job.

"They were considered as voting whether they filled out the ballot or not."

Ed Forbes, delegate from Monroe, Mich., declared:

"We must either have union recognition or the government must present a satisfactory plan for collective bargaining."

C. E. Love, delegate from Trumbull lodge, Warren, O., said:

"My lodge already has recognition, but we're going out in sympathy for the other fellows who haven't got it."

Moore declared:

"We don't know whether we'll strike or not."

Opinions expressed by other leaders follows:

Al Armour, of Steel City Lodge, Gary, Ind.:

"It looks like a strike if they don't give us union recognition."

Charles Anderson, president of NRA Lodge, Weirton, W. Va.:

"It is going to be hard to avert a strike. Of course, we don't know what President Green, of the A. F. of L., has up his sleeve. Maybe he will explain the plan of President Roosevelt and things will look different."

Roy H. Kelsey, of Gary, Ind.:

"We don't know if there will be a strike. It depends on what they have to offer. We don't want such a labor board as the automotive industry got."

James F. Dewey, United States Department of Labor Conciliator, who may present for President Roosevelt a personal plea for industrial peace.

GIVES HIS LIFE TO STOP GAME

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—Anthony Anicich, 51, made good his threat to stop a night baseball game which interfered with his sleep, but it cost him his life.

Only hoots greeted him as he urged the youths, who had gathered under his window last night to benefit from the illumination of a corner street lamp, to play elsewhere.

Finally, his patience exhausted, Anicich seized an iron poker and told members of his family he'd stop the game—he'd smash the light.

With the poker, he scooted to the top of the 25-foot wooden pole. The poker described a vicious arc, shattered the light, and contacted a high tension wire.

Anicich toppled from the pole, electrocuted.

'REDS' DEMAND ARMS PROBE AT MILL

A demand for an investigation of alleged purchases of machine guns, tear gas and ammunition by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation has been made upon City Council by a group representing the Communistically aligned Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union.

The same group, referred to by President of Council Robert Garland as "communists" and scored by Councilman John J. Kane for their organization activities, accused Mayor McNair and the police bureau of being aligned with the steel interests.

ASK GUARANTEE

They have asked Council to guarantee steel workers of the city the right to strike and picket.

They urged an investigation of Safety Director A. Marshall Bell's connection with corporations and his removal if he is found prejudiced.

The demands for investigations were presented by Peter Chapa. Miss Edith Briscoe asked for the disarming of the Jones and Laughlin private police force.

CALLED 'REDS"

President Garland charged that the petitioners represented the Communist Party and not the steel workers. He said they have been financed with "Russian money."

Councilman John J. Kane defended executives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, after one of the speakers declared that the Amalgamated's leaders are working for the companies rather than the men in the mills.

Cush Denies 'Red' Tieup With Union

Communist Emmet Patrick Cush today issued a statement in which he denied that the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, of which he is president, is a Communist organization. Cush assailed M. F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, saying:

"Tighe is devoting much of his time to attacking the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union and its policy of strike action, while simultaneously he carefully avoids any expressions against the Iron and Steel Institute (corporation group) that might possibly be characterized as hostile."

Text of Roosevelt Bill Aimed Against Strikes

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Following is the text of the compromise Wagner labor disputes bill:

Section 1—In order to further effectuate the policy of Title 1 of the National Recovery Act, and in the exercise of the powers therein and herein conferred, the President is authorized to establish a board or boards authorized and directed to investigate issues, facts, practices or activities of employers or employes in any controversies arising under said act, or impairing its effectiveness.

Section 2—Any board so established is hereby empowered when it shall appear in the public interest, to order and conduct an election by a secret ballot of any of the employes of an employer, to determine by what person or persons or organization they desire to be represented in order to insure the right of employes to organize and to select their representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining as defined in Section 7A of said act.

For the purpose of such election such a board shall have the authority to order the production of such pertinent documents or the appearance of such witnesses to give testimony under oath as it may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this resolution.

Any order issued by such a board under the authority of this section may be enforced in the same manner as an order of the Federal Trade Commission, by any United States Court of competent jurisdiction.

Section 3—Any such board with the approval of the President may prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this resolution.

Section 4—Any person who shall violate any rule or regulation authorized under Section 3 of this resolution or impede or interfere with any member or agent in the performance of his duties shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year or both.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 14.—(AP.)—Approximately 87 per cent of the workers employed by Republic Steel Corporation in plants in various sections of the country have voted in "primary elections" under an employe representation plan, it was announced today by the company.

Approximately 24,500 ballots were cast by the workers yesterday, preparatory to the regular elections Friday. About 28,20 employes were eligible to vote. Eighty per cent of the workers voted last year.

INSTITUTE SEES 85 PER CENT AS STRIKE FOES

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—The American Iron and Steel Institute last night interpreted the recent voting of employes of all the major steel companies, under the employe representation plans, as meaning that 85 per cent of the workers were opposed to a strike and preferred the employe representation plans as their method of collective bargaining.

The statement followed a meeting of the executive committee of the institute yesterday which was preliminary to the usual monthly meeting of the board of directors, scheduled for today.

It was reported that Donald Richberg, general counsel for the NRA, would attend today's meeting.

The institute said the employes "have registered and are registering their voices as unmistakably opposed to the strike."

It added:

"The public impression that is sought to be created that there is a serious and far-reaching demand for a strike is contradicted by the express voice of an overwhelming majority of employes.

"The strike talk is coming from union labor organizers who, admittedly, represent only a small minority of employes and who aim to force the recognition of the union and the closed shop on the employes and employers of the industry."

Of the 213,044 employes eligible and available to vote, the institute said, 181,926 voted.

"While the balloting has been for employe representatives to represent the employes in collective bargaining under the employe representation plans, union agitation in recent weeks has given an added significance to the voting.

"It was generally understood that by going to the polls and voting under their employe representation plans, the employes evidence their opposition to a strike and their clear approval of such plans."

COERCION LAID TO STEEL UNION

WILMINGTON, Del., June 14.—(AP.)—Intimidation of witnesses the Weirton Steel Company intends using to support its contention that it is not interfering in employes' elections, as charged by the government in an injunction suit, was alleged yesterday by counsel for the company.

The Weirton attorneys told Federal Judge John P. Nields, who set September 5 for the start of open hearings on the government's injunction, that several prospective witnesses had received letters whose evident purpose was intimidation.

These letters, said Robert H. Richards, of company counsel, were written on stationery of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and were signed by officers of that organization. The association seeks to organize employes at Weirton plants.

To these contentions, James L. Fly, special assistant attorney general, appearing for the government, replied that if the law were being violated "it is the duty of the Department of Justice to see that the remedy is applied."

BEDS SET UP IN PLANT

GARY, Ind., June 14.—(AP.)—Beds not used since the labor trouble of 1919 were hauled out of storage and set up inside the Inland Steel Company's plant at Indiana Harbor last night as steel companies of the Calumet district prepared for a possible strike.

Furloughs of all county police in the Cook County (Ill.) part of the steel plant area, were canceled in anticipation of difficulties in protecting employes who might want to continue work in event of a strike. Police of Gary, East Chicago and Indiana Harbor took similar precautions.

Early indications that workers of this, the fourth district of Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, hoped for peace as a result of the big meeting in Pittsburgh today were discounted later.

Longshoremen Strike Peace Plan Sudied

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—(AP.)—Peace plans to end the Pacific Coast longshoremen's strike, now in its second month, were considered today in San Francisco and Seattle in what authorities said may be final negotiations. The proposal calls for preference in employment to union members in place of the outright "closed shop" demand.

SOVIET WRITERS ASSAILED BY MAXIM GORKI

MOSCOW, June 14.—(AP)—Maxim Gorky, dean of Russian writers, today directed a vigorous broadside of criticism against contemporary Soviet literature.

Soviet writers "drink too much," and they are given to fulsome praise of each other, with the result that incompetent writers receive too much attention, the veteran of Russian letters said in an article published both by the Izvestia and Pravda.

The criticism came from Gorki's pen on the eve of a writers' congress here, the object of which is to organize authors.

The veteran novelist and revolutionary wrote:

"Many of the contemporary authors drink more than they write."

He urged that they do their drinking at home, and not set bad examples by imbibing in public places.

Gorki observed that the practice of "log rolling" is prevalent in present-day Russia. He said:

"The cuckoo praises the cock because the cock praises the cuckoo with the result that worthless writers gain attention they do not merit."

Gorki urged writers to adapt themselves to the new psychology of the masses which has spread over Soviet Russia, and give their characters the proletarian spirit which has extended from workers to peasants.

The "lack of culture and civilization" among writers has caused them "to fall in love with themselves," and to become individualists carried away by a thirst for leadership, the biting denunciation continued. Consequently the authors are unable to portray honestly the disappearance of individualism among peasants which is making way for the proletarian spirit.

If he should die the British might realize what they owe him, namely, the fact that King George and not some son of the German Kaiser is sitting on the British throne.

OUR SECRETARY OF STATE, Mr. Hull, is said to have suggested to England:

"If you won't pay us money, why don't you pay in goods?"

England is supposed to have replied:

"No, we really could not think of that."

A certain English worker, on the dole for a long time, remarked:

"I eats well, I sleeps well, and I feels well, but when they talk about work I comes all over of a tremble."

Good old John Bull acts similarly when you talk to him about paying. The President, it is understood, would not accept payment in goods only; part cash would be demanded.

Police who shot and killed him say that, according to their knowledge of human nature, his shooting Anna was easily explained, but shooting the baby is unusual.

WANT-ADS BRING RESULTS

LIQUOR STORE SYSTEM STIRS STATE ROW

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 14.—(AP.)—Conflicting views of the Pennsylvania liquor store system—pictured on one hand as a money maker and on the other as a consumer of its own profits—are advanced by W. Worrell Wagner, liquor board member, and John H. Fertig, director of the State Legislature reference bureau.

Fertig opened the exchange of opinions at the Institute of Urban Problems at State College yesterday with a declaration that the $5,000,000 first year's profits of the liquor stores would be eaten up by equipment and inventory costs.

CLAIMS BIG PROFIT

At Philadelphia, Wagner hurried to reply that "at least $6,000,000, and possibly $7,500,000," profit would be rolled up by May 31, 1935. He said:

"No other business ever was started without capital, to my knowledge. But it seems to have been put over in the liquor stores. We tried to get capital from the old Legislature, but failed. We hope that $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 will be forthcoming from the new Legislature."

Bootlegging is cutting in heavily, Wagner declared, estimating that state stores in some coal mining sections get only 10 per cent of the business.

SEES HUGE COST

Fertig asserted the business of the state stores could be doubled with only a 20 per cent increase in operating costs. The system was inadequately financed and lacked necessary inventories when launched, he claimed.

The legislative bureau chief estimated that $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 will be required annually to finance the state stores.

Wagner's answer to that was "all our stores are showing a profit;" 20 have been opened in the last 30 days, making a total of 270.

The Urban Institute also heard Franklin Spencer Edmunds, tax specialist, urge reallocation of tax collecting powers among federal, state and local governments on an efficiency basis.

NEW RUM STORE ON HILL FRINGE

Hill bootleggers tomorrow will be confronted by new competition—the Pennsylvania liquor store system.

A new store will open at 545 Sixth avenue, near Wylie—right on the fringe of the Hill. And it'll be stocked with more than 1,000 cases of wines and whisky.

The new store can hold its liquor better than any other, having more space for customers and stock. Too, the outside iron bars have been dropped, because no window-breaking crush is anticipated.

Another state store opened at 436 South Main street, West End, today. Next Monday stores are scheduled to open at 5854 Forbes street, Squirrel Hill, and 7436 Washington street, Swissvale.

This will make a total of 34 stores in Allegheny County, nine of them in the city.

Alcohol Not Liquor, Chester Court Rules

WEST CHESTER, Pa., June 14.—(AP.)—Alcohol is not liquor, the Chester County Court has decided. It is just plain alcohol, and does not become a beverage until mixed with other ingredients, the court ruled after a chemist testified to that effect.

The ruling set aside the verdict of a jury that had convicted Charles Curry, of Washington, D. C., for illegal transportation of liquor. The 90 gallons of liquid Curry was accused of carrying was mere alcohol.

Postmaster Turner Honored at Dinner

A testimonial dinner for Postmaster William M. Turner was given last night in the Wilkinsburg Elks' Club, Ross avenue.

Among the speakers were Judges Frank P. Patterson and Thomas M. Marshall, former Mayor John S. Herron, Burgess William P. Yocum, Assistant City Solicitor James O'Toole, City Treasurer James Kirk, Attorney Carl Smith, Fred Weir and James L. Quinn, of Braddock. Attorney Walter L. Dipple was toastmaster; Charles Gross, chairman.

Health Head Urges Negro Hospitals

Lack of hospitals and educational facilities are to blame for the greater prevalence of some diseases among Negroes, Dr. M. O. Bousfield, of Chicago, president of the National Health Society, declared last night in an address in which he urged the establishment of a hospital for Negroes. Dr. Bousfield spoke in the Ebenezer Baptist Church under the auspices of the Pennsylvania State Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association and the Pittsburgh unit of the National Negro Health Movement.

HOW GREAT BRITAIN BOOMED TRADE

DEMAND FOR GOODS STARTS UPTURN

(Editor's Note—"The miracle of British recovery," writes H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service correspondent, in the fourth article of his series on that subject, "was that prices did not rise when Great Britain went off the gold standard."

Having completed his survey of conditions in the British Isles, Knickerbocker flew to Italy, where he is now covering the momentous forthcoming meeting of Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

LONDON, June 14.—Britain is still a capitalist country. Profits are the motive power of capitalism. British capitalists are making more profits. The motor of British capitalism has begun to turn.

First came the Stock Exchange upturn. In the recovery sweepstakes security values got away for a long lead. Then came the upturn in business. Finally the real winning horse, universal profits, has gone to the fore at the corner that determines the race.

For the first time since 1928 it has now proved profitable for business to expand. Business expanded before that. Business took a chance. That is the sense of capitalism. Profits are the reward for taking risks. British business took that risk beginning in 1932, but only today are British businessmen being rewarded.

SEE BILLION PROFITS

They are being rewarded to the tune of $700,000,000 profits earned in 1933, and in the first quarter of this year $275,000,000 profits, a rate which if maintained will give British business a profit of $1,100,000,000 for the year, a most substantial increase over 1933 as 1933 was a slight increase over 1932.

How did British do the trick? How did recovery get its start?

According to conservative British minds, the classical way a recovery begins in a country which is still run more or less on capitalistic lines is about as follows. It is a familiar story but one worth recapitulating for the light it throws on British recovery.

After a period of rocking along on the bottom of the depression certain businessman observe that stocks are about exhausted. During every depression as a rule prices are falling and because they are falling people postpone buying in the hope of getting a lower price or because their income has been reduced, and because they postpone buying prices go on falling.

LIMIT TO CIRCLE

Two primary considerations rule the businessman; desire for profit and fear of loss. Factories close, and the more factories close the fewer are employed, purchasing power is reduced, still more factories close and so on in the vicious circle familiar to all.

Now, however, in the ordinary course of capitalist events there is a limit to the circle, vicious though it is. That limit, crudely put is supposed to be the time when stocks are exhausted and prices begin to rise. When businessmen, scenting profits, begin to produce more, hire more labor, thus increase the purchasing power of the community and so on in the beneficient circle that means recovery and eventual prosperity.

Often, or even usually, some outside event occurs to sharpen the discernment of businessmen, and encourage them to take advantage of this moment and discard their fear of loss and go out for a profit. In America, whatever its eventual outcome, this was one of the purposes of the NRA.

EXTENT OF GOVERNMENT AID

In Britain the events outside the normal course of economic affairs were the departure from the gold standard September 21, 1931, and the imposition of a tariff March 1, 1932. To this extent, but almost solely to this extent may it be said that the government here did something to bring about recovery.

It was of course important enough, extremely important, that Britain should for the first time in a century abandon her free-trade pricinples which had made this country the greatest import market in the world. It was doubly important that the pound sterling, most widely used currency in the world, should be depreciated by a third.

It was triply important that when the pound went off gold the British public took it with characteristic British calm, and with imposing audacity declared that the pound had not gone off gold, but that gold had gone off the pound. For British confidence in their currency meant that it was possible to control the depreciation with no danger of its going into an uncontrolled inflation.

MIRACLE OF RECOVERY

It meant also that prices would alter within the narrow limits of a stabilized currency. It was expected that prices would rise a bit.

But here came the miracle of British recovery. Prices did not rise. There was no flight to goods. Prices remained stationary, or so nearly stationary as makes no matter. The Board of Trade index of wholesale prices shows a maximum fluctuation of six points since Britain went off gold, and the present level is 102.8 compared to 99.5 in September, 1931.

This meant that the classical motive power of recovery, rising prices, was lacking. But rising prices were chiefly to be desired to encourage businessmen to take a chance. The fact turned out to be that British businessmen did not need the lure of rising prices. They considered that they could make a profit at the old prices if they could only sell the goods.

TARIFF PROTECTED MARKETS

Sale of more goods at home seemed assured by the tariff wall and the depreciation of the pound. Sale of more goods abroad was hoped for. The pound's slip meant that British goods were one-third cheaper. But other countries, too, went off gold, neutralized most of the British advantage, and besides retaliated against the British tariffs by putting up tariffs of their own. The hopes for a greatly increased export trade failed to be realized, though Britain kept her level of experts stable while the remainder of the world exported less.

Results at home were incomparably better. The tariff was at first a flat 10 per cent on practically everything. Later it was raised for various commodities. Depreciation of the pound automatically made most imported goods 30 per cent more expensive. Although it may be said that these two factors increased the price of imported articles by at least 50 per cent.

ADVANTAGE TO HOME PRODUCER

This meant naturally an enormous advantage to the home producer. One after another businessmen cast off their fear and went for their share of the new home market. There were 636 new factories opened in 1932 and 463 in 1933, and 174 factories extended in 1932 and 95 in 1933. Altogether these new works gave employment to 83,250 hands. A more considerable index of expansion is new capital issues. They totaled $1,400,000,000 in 1933, or one-third more than 1932 and double 1931.

The big expansion, however, came in existing plants. First one industrialist and then another put to work his idle machinery. As each plant took on more hands and placed orders for material, other plants producing that material were able to increase production, hire new hands. With each increase of employment the purchasing power of the community increased, and so the beneficent circle went.

The fact that prices had remained stable meant that as employment increased, purchasing power had a chance to grow and not merely to run a race with rising prices. With stable prices and increased employment it was not necessary to raise wages in order to increase purchasing power. The index of money wages has in fact remained practically stationary from 1933 to today.

SPEEDED CONFIDENCE

These are the facts of British recovery, however they may clash with the theory of the necessity of rising prices plus rising wages.

Summarized, the tariff gave the impetus to the return of confidence. First to sense it was the stock market. Three months after the tariff became effective stock values started up in June, 1932. The index of business activity shows that industrial recovery did not begin until the autumn of 1932. Since then they have raced along parallel to each other.

Starting from the last low of about 95, as compared with 1924's 100, the economists index of business activity has steadily climbed until it is around 110. Full recovery will not have been reached until it hits around 120, the point that would care for the increase in population and the normal expansion of productivity per head.

TRADED ON NERVE

During the first year of increased business activity businessmen were trading on their nerve. They were betting on recovery. Their new activity brought them little or no extra profits for a year. Only at the end of 1933 did their ledgers justify their confidence.

In that year, for the first time in five years the net earnings of 1,945 concerns showed a rise. It was a modest one of only $3,000,000 above 1932. That made an increase of one-half per cent in earnings. But it is the trend that counts. They paid dividends of $620,000,000 or 5.8 per cent on capital and put away $80,000,000 in reserve, which meant 11.5 per cent of the net earnings.

In the first quarter of 1934 the 547 companies reporting showed an increase of $14,000,000 profits over the first quarter of 1933, and this meant an increase of more than 5 per cent. They paid dividends of $225,000,000, or 7.5 per cent on capital, and put away $50,000,000 in reserve which meant 18.5 per cent of the net earnings.

These figures indicate the sound disposition of profits. Not all of them are spent on peaches. Still better results came in April, when 188 companies reported an aggregate rise in profits of nearly 13 per cent above April, 1933.

Nearly every branch is making more money. Breweries, electric plants, financial and land companies, iron, coal and steel, automobiles, rubber, to tramways, waterworks, even the stepchildren, shipping and textiles, show increased profits. Only retail trade, which is said to be the last to begin to make money in a recovery, failed to show improvement. Its turn is hoped for this year.

But what will happen when British industry has replaced all the articles of foreign manufacture now excluded by the tariff and the currency depreciation? Will British industry be able to absorb the more than 2,000,000 remaining unemployed if exports do not improve? That is another story.

Meanwhile the stock market is up. Profits are up. These figures are on paper. How does it look in the coal mines, the steel mills, the actual sources whence these figures come?

Roosevelt to Ban News Men on Hawaii Cruise

Japs Fail to Put Fast Play Over on President

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The White House is beginning to show inner signs of getting just a little hard-boiled about things in general.

There is less and less tendency toward conciliation and compromise, and a noticeable trend toward doing what it pleases and letting its critics go hang.

No important effort has been made to appease objections to the NRA., AAA., etc. A rather strong hand has been taken in the congressional program (stock market, securities, housing and labor board). Likewise, in connection with the Tugwell nomination some Democratic Senators heard that, if they could not see their way clear to support Prof. Tugwell, they would hear about it later.

Most Presidents get around to this point after the first year. They find they cannot please everyone, or even conduct their business in an open way. Too many politicians take unfair advantage of them. Too many so-called friends double-cross them.

Anything they do will be criticized, so they might as well do what they want. That is probably the way they figure it out.

VACATION

Something of that strong feeling is manifest in arrangements President Roosevelt is making for his Hawaiian trip.

Most Presidents have been afraid to go any distance from Washington for their vacations even in placid times. Mr. Coolidge broke a record when he went as far as the Black Hills one summer. He would not go that far until he was assured he could get back to Washington within 20 hours. Mr. Hoover called off his national parks tour one summer because of a drought, which was not as bad as this one.

Mr. Roosevelt is going to take six weeks to go to Honolulu, but, what is more important, he is making arrangements which will get him further away than the distance indicates. Present plans provide that not only will he take none of his three secretaries along, but no newspaper men will be permitted on his boat.

JAPANESE

The Japanese nearly put over a lightning fast diplomatic play on Mr. Roosevelt during the visit of Prince Konoye. All is fair in love, war and diplomacy, but our officials are still growling about this one.

The Japanese have been pressing us ever since we recognized Russia to get Mr. Roosevelt or State Secretary Hull to go to Tokio on a goodwill visit. They want to offset the diplomatic effects of Russian recognition.

Soon after Prince Konoye lunched with Mr. Roosevelt the other day, a Japanese official tipped an American newsman that the President had talked about receiving a delegation of Japanese statesmen in Hawaii. It was big news and received wide attention both here and in Tokio.

In fact, dispatches came right back from Tokio stating that the Japanese were delighted at Mr. Roosevelt's "suggestion."

That got under the skin of the White House a little word was passed out that the President did not know what the Japanese were talking about. Thereupon a Japanese spokesman here came forth with an off-the-record statement that he did not remember that the President had said quite that.

What happened, he said, was that Prince Konoye suggested it would be nice if the President could go to Tokio and the President replied he had thought about it, but it would be impossible.

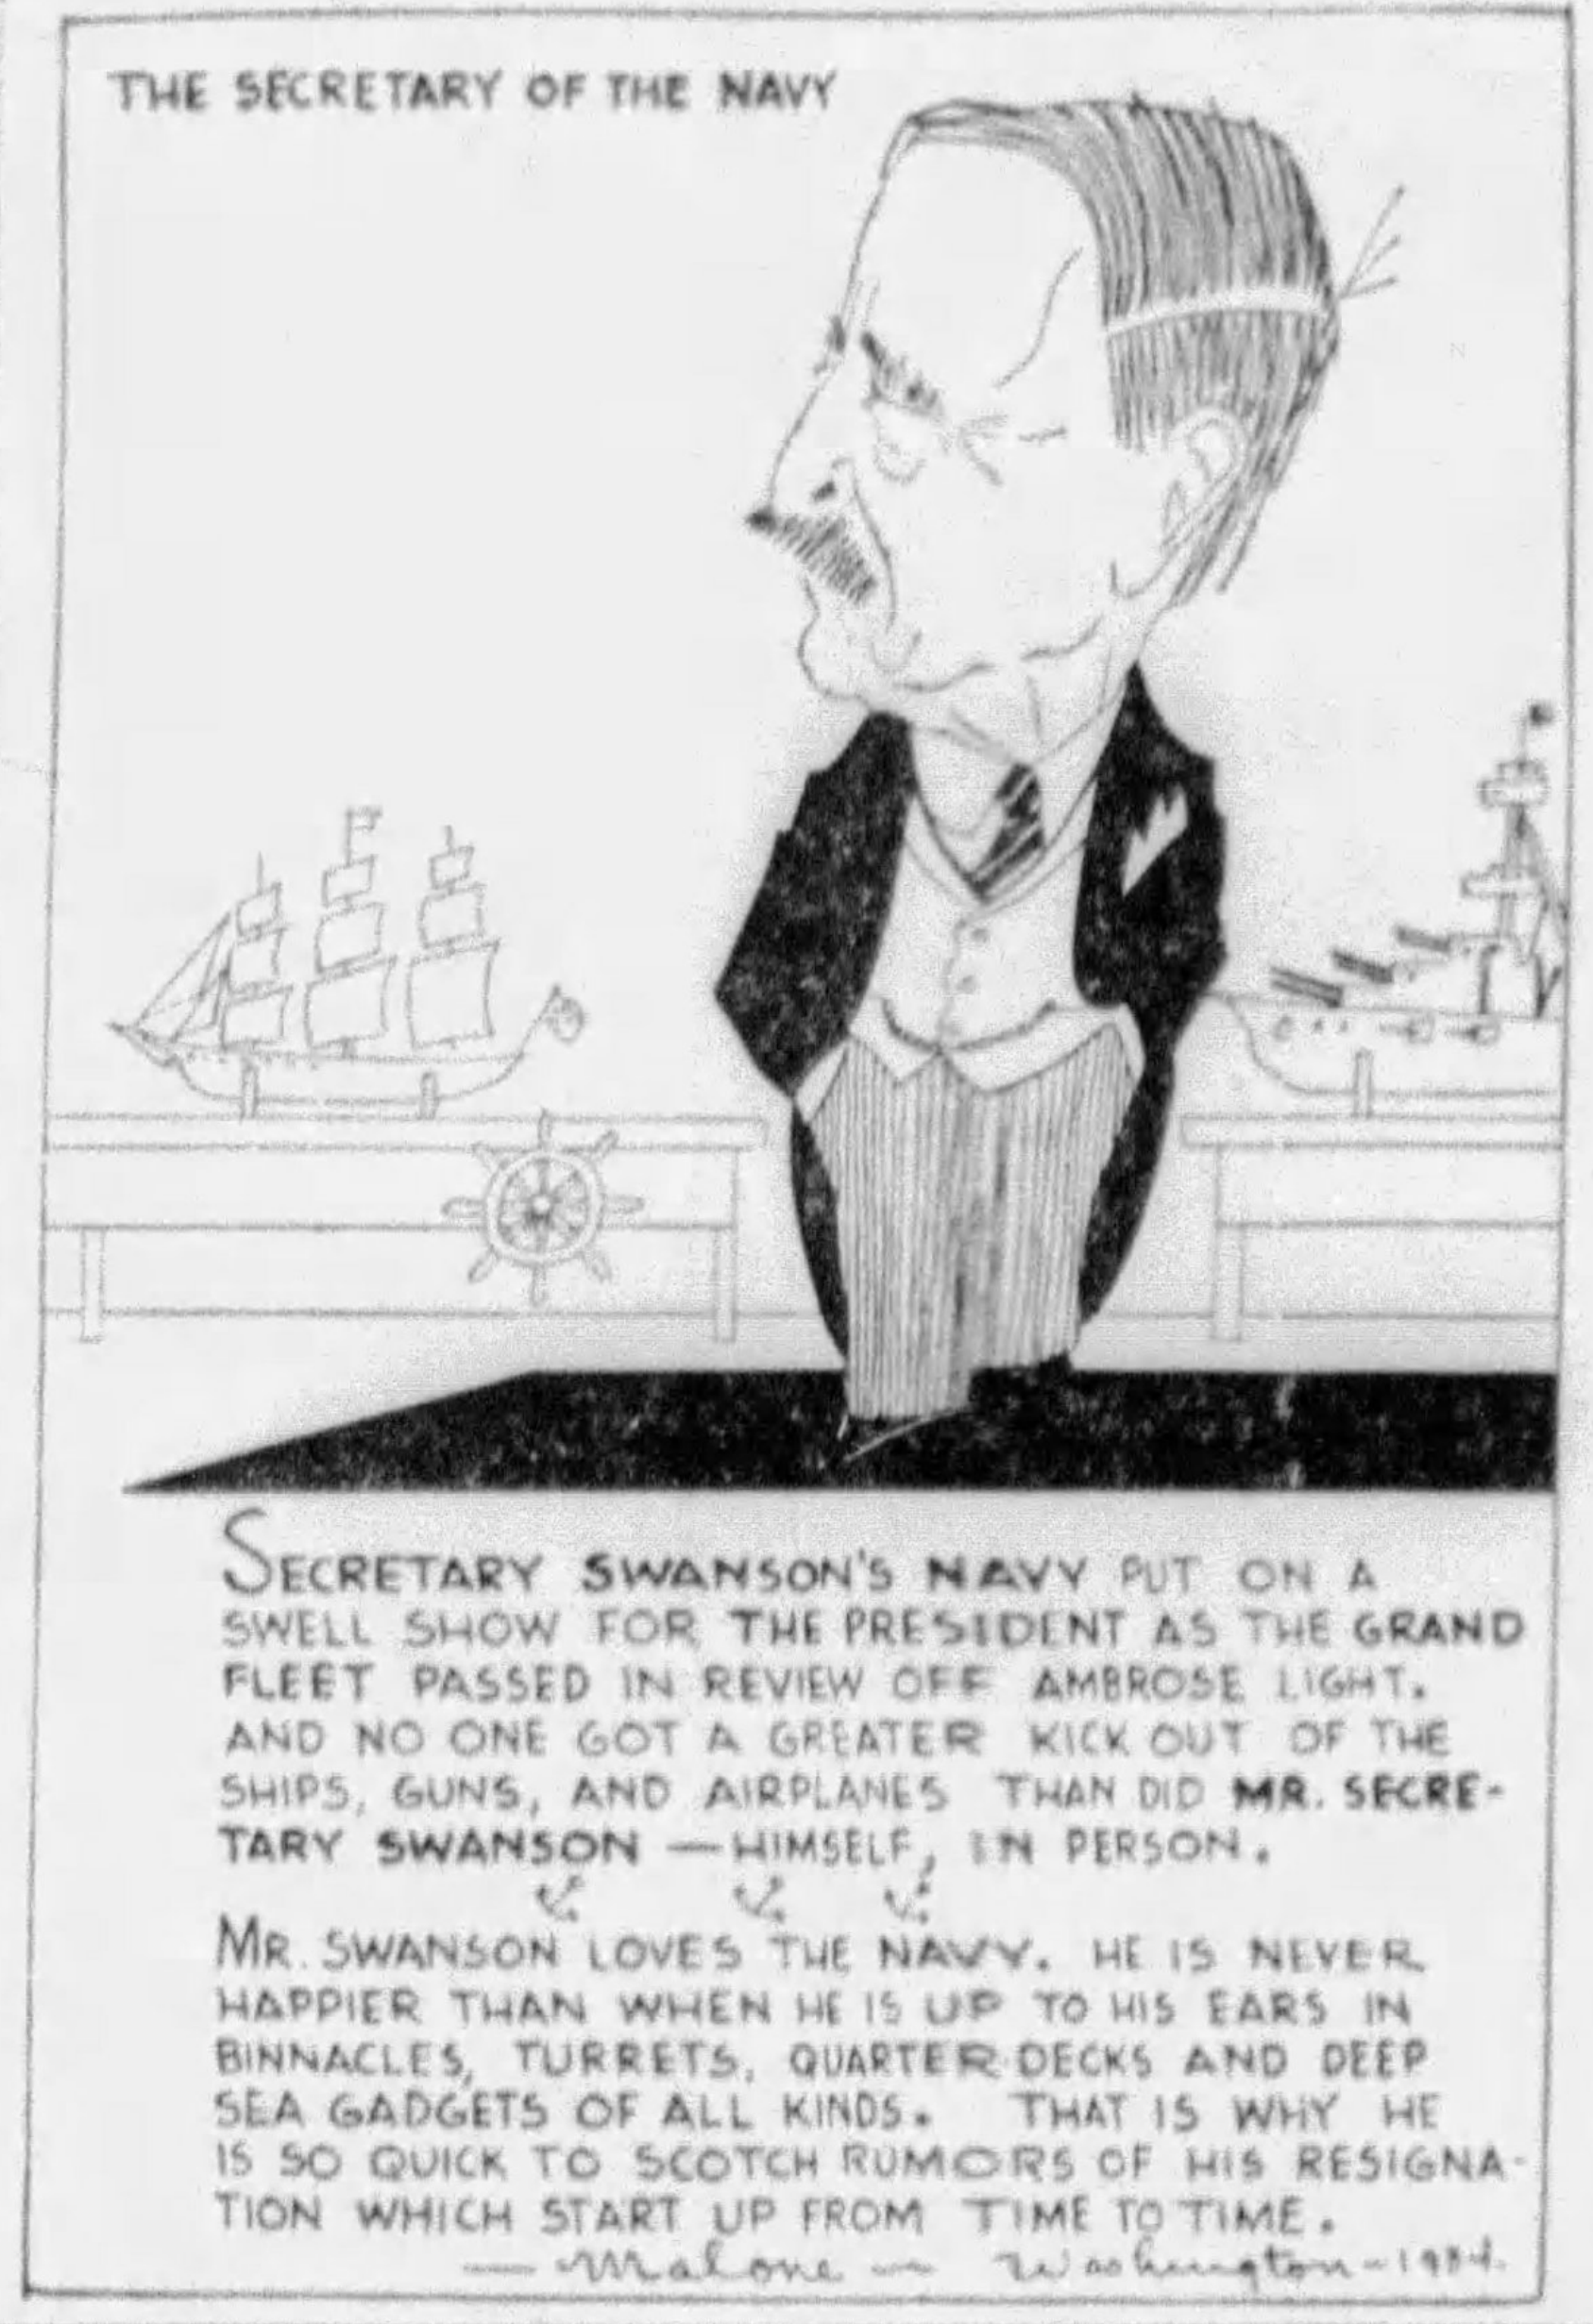
Then a State Department official herded in all news men and let it be known that the President had no intention of receiving any Japanese statesmen in Hawaii or elsewhere.

That word has not reached Tokio and probably never will.

NOTES

There is nothing in the rumors that Guy Helvering (internal revenue) will succeed Chairman Farley, of the Democratic National Committee. No one knows who will. . . The man who is supposed to have devised the latest substitute for the Wagner Labor Board bill is Donald Richberg, of the NRA, whose original draft was once turned down by Senator Wagner and Labor Secretary Perkins . . . . Prof. Tugwell's strategists received a much better break in publicity out of the Senate hearing than they expected. That partially explains the 16 to 2 indorsement he received from the committee the day after the hearing . . . . Add famous sayings: Senator Smith at the Tugwell hearing: "Speech has been free in this country since we took the crown off the head of King George III." . . . . The Consumers Advisory Council of the NRA received from the CWA artists a landscape in oils dotted with slick-looking sheep. Some callers at the council offices pause to remark about the exquisite dejection of the picture and the appropriateness of hanging it at the Consumers Advisory Council.

(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon.)



THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

SECRETARY SWANSON'S NAVY PUT ON A SWELL SHOW FOR THE PRESIDENT AS THE GRAND FLEET PASSED IN REVIEW OFF AMBROSE LIGHT, AND NO ONE GOT A GREATER KICK OUT OF THE SHIPS, GUNS, AND AIRPLANES THAN DID MR. SECRETARY SWANSON —HIMSELF, IN PERSON.

MR. SWANSON LOVES THE NAVY. HE IS NEVER HAPPIER THAN WHEN HE IS UP TO HIS EARS IN BINNACLES, TURRETS, QUARTER-DECKS AND DEEP SEA GADGETS OF ALL KINDS. THAT IS WHY HE IS SO QUICK TO SCOTCH RUMORS OF HIS RESIGNATION WHICH START UP FROM TIME TO TIME.

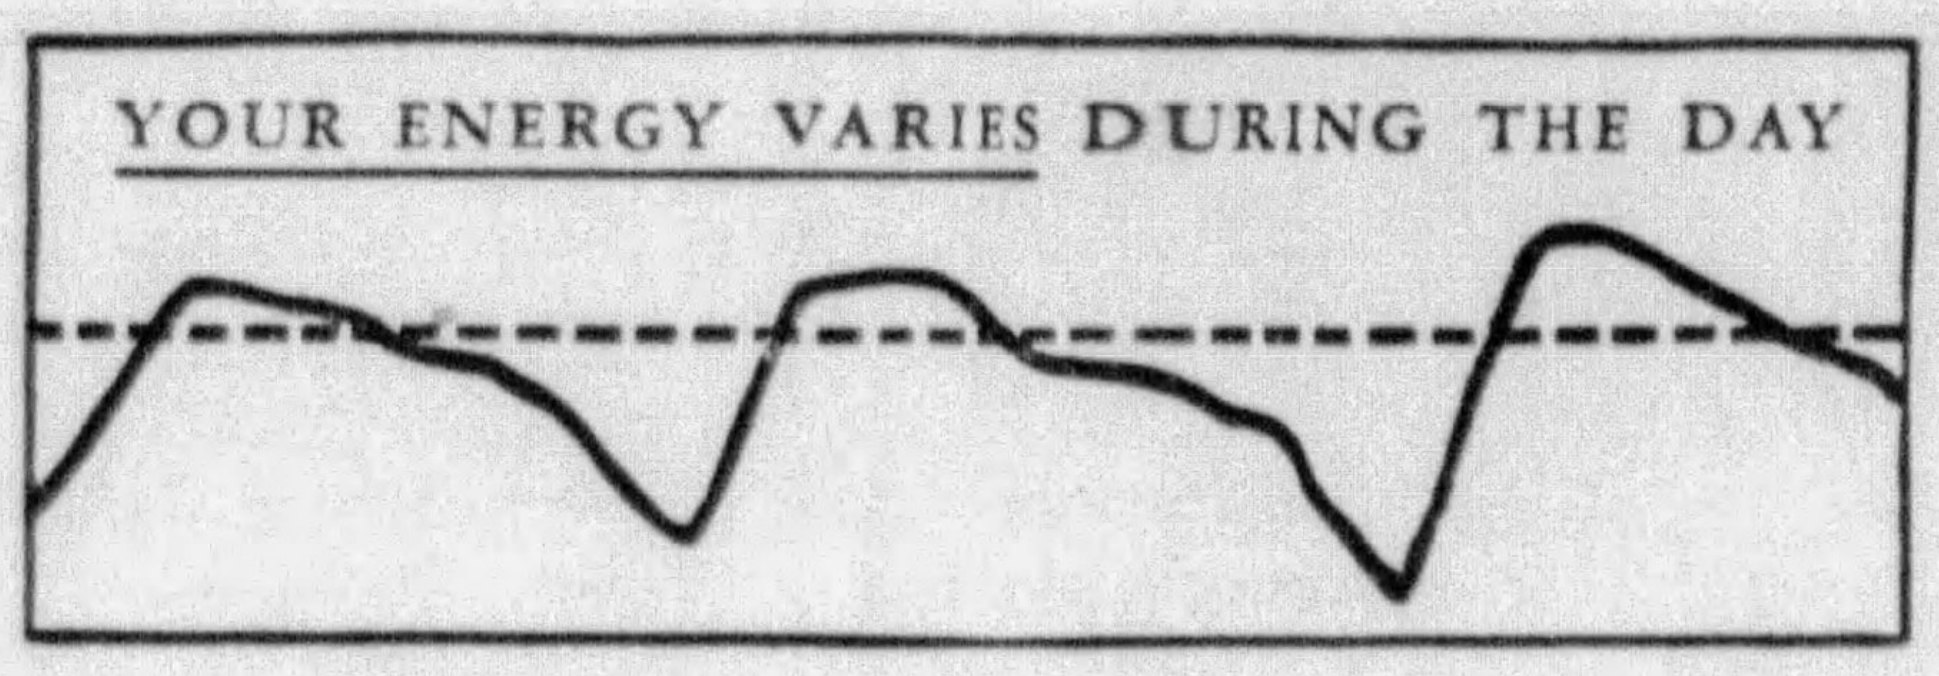
AND NOW! An Interesting New Discovery Every Smoker Should Know!



Experience of Camel Smokers Confirmed!

In New York a famous research laboratory announces a basic discovery that throws new light on our past knowledge of cigarettes. It embodies an "energizing effect." Through it the flow of your natural energy is restored in a harmless . . . utterly delightful manner. Fatigue and irritability quickly fade away. Thus an experience long known to Camel smokers has received new scientific confirmation. You do "get a lift with a Camel," and it is a pleasure that you can repeat as often as needed—all day long. For Camels never get on your nerves.

Feel Played Out? Let CAMELS Increase Your Flow of Energy

Are you irritable . . . cross and fussy when tired? Then light a Camel. As you enjoy its cool, rich flavor . . . notice how quickly you feel your flow of natural energy restored.

This fact is known to many through their own experience. How that "done-in" feeling drops away. How your natural pep and energy come flooding back and you are again able to face the "next move" with a smile!

NATURAL ENERGY IS RELEASED

The effect is produced by Camels in a wholly safe, natural, and utterly delightful way.

So, whenever you feel run-down, tired and irritable, just light a Camel. Enjoy its fragrance to the full—let your flow of energy swing back—and you are your real self again!

NO NERVE IRRITATION WITH CAMELS

You can smoke just as many Camels as you want. And it's a pleasure that actually helps you to maintain your energy.

And the finer, more expensive tobaccos in Camels never get on your nerves!

TIRED OUT FROM SHOPPING . . . and then she smoked a Camel!

CAMEL'S Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves

CAMEL
TURKISH & DOMESTIC BLEND CIGARETTES
QUALITY

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

WATCH OUT for weariness and irritability that come from a low level of energy. Smoke a Camel for a quick comeback in the flow of natural, healthful energy . . . as frequently as you wish. You will feel like your real self again, and you'll like Camels—a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos!

ROAR WELCOME

Troops at the boat landing presented arms smartly as the statesmen prepared to go board.

Bearing a huge Nazi flag, the motorboat dashed rapidly across the lagoon, receiving salutes from Italy's Adriatic destroyer squadron as it passed. When the motorboat went by Venice's famous Piazza San Marco thousands of Venetians roared a welcome to both premiers.

When the party arrived at the Grand Hotel, Hitler left the boat first, as the crowd gathered about and cheered. The premiers entered the hotel but shortly reappeared in an upper balcony, where they waved to the thousands massed below.

A girl presented Hitler a bouquet. A minute later Mussolini left the hotel and stepped into the motorboat.

HUGE OVATION

Mussolini arrived last night, spending the night at the Villa Pisani at Stra, once owned by Napoleon, 20 miles from Venice.

He was given a huge ovation as he sped down the Grand Canal shortly after 9 a. m. on his way to welcome Hitler.

At the airfield he inspected troops, composed of infantry, artillery, air and naval units.

SIGNS BOY'S CARD

Mussolini, who rose from the common people—he was the son of a blacksmith—to lead them was raised literally by the common people today.

After greeting Chancellor Hitler, Mussolini went to the Piazzale Roma by motorboat, then started through ranks of police toward his automobile.

A small boy, disregarding uniformed authority, broke through the police line and begged Il Duce to sign his Fascist card. Mussolini obliged.

Then the crowd went wild, tossed the police aside, surged around the Premier and, cheering, carried him on their shoulders to his automobile.

Hitler's plane made a perfect landing and was followed immediately by Von Neurath's airship. Five escort planes landed at the same moment.

Shortly after Mussolini's departure, Hitler also left the Grand Hotel to visit Mussolini at Stra.

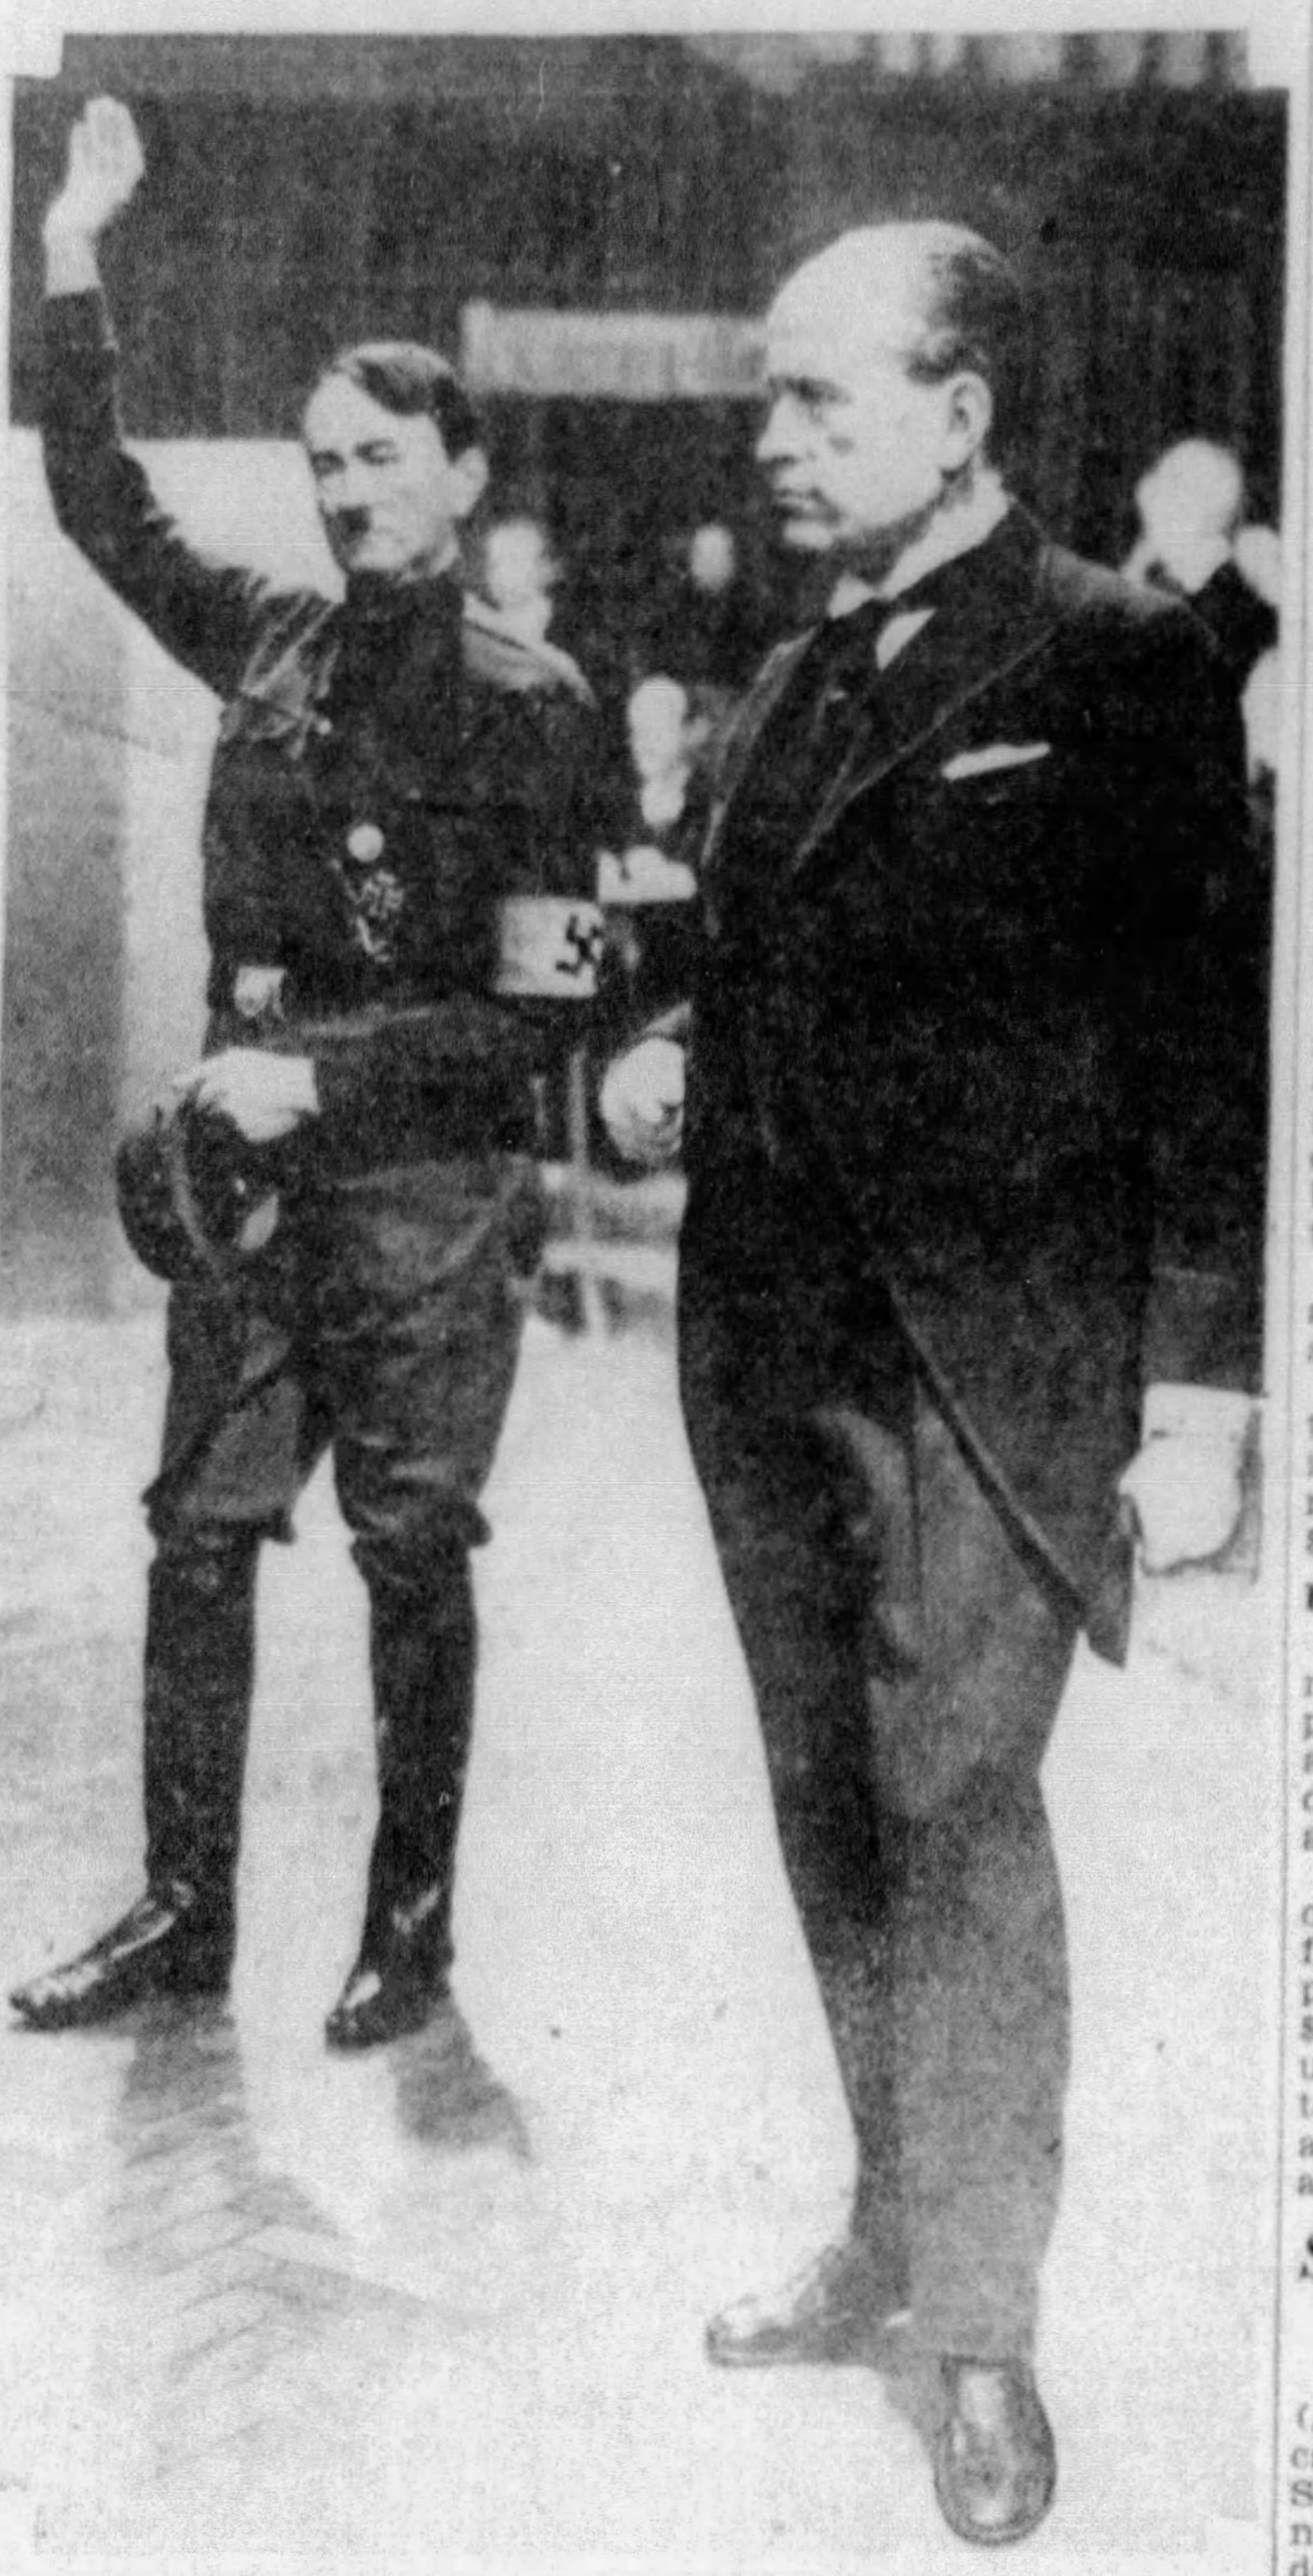
The German Chancellor made the trip in a motorboat as far as the Piazzale Roma, then transferred to an automobile for the remainder of the trip to Stra.

He sped past the industrial Port of Marghera, then skirted the beautiful River Brenta lined with the summer villas of wealthy Venetians.

Everywhere along his route, Hitler saw thousands of placards in red, white and green bearing the single word "Duce." The little village of Dolo was ablaze with color. According to the custom there, brilliant bedspreads and carpets were hung in the windows.

The roads were plentifully sprinkled with plainclothes men and carabinieri—the armed guards of Italy—as the Nazi leader drove past.

Hitler, Duce Together



ADOLF HITLER BENITO MUSSOLINI

The iron dictators of two nations—Germany's Chancellor Hitler, Italy's Premier Mussolini—pictured as they might have appeared at Venice in their history-making face-to-face meeting to discuss problems common to their nations, vital to the peace of Europe. This, the only existing picture of them together, shows them in wax in a London museum's collection of European statesmen. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

DEBTORS OF U.S. IN PAYLESS PARADE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Italy, Poland, Rumania and Hungary joined the debt-defaulting parade of nations today.

Each officially notified the State Department of their intention not to pay the installments on their debts to the United States, due tomorrow.

This action by these four additional powers means that all the principal European debtor nations will pay nothing on the $175,000,000 due.

UNITED FRONT

It represents a virtual united front on the part of the principal debtor nations to force a drastic reduction of the twelve billion dollars owed American taxpayers by suspending all payments until there isa new settlement.

Great Britain, France, Belgium and Czecho-Slovakia already have sent formal notification of default.

The little republic of Finland is the only debtor to have announced its intention to make any payment. Finland will pay in full its $166,538 installment.

FOUR STILL OUT

Only four more debtor nations remain to be heard from and with possible exceptions of one, Lithuania, all the other are expected to default. They are Estonia, Lavvia and Jugo-Slavia.

Italy was due to pay $14,741,593 on its June 15 installment. Its failure to make this payment will place it in default on a total of $28,428,605, which includes past unpaid balances. Poland was due to pay approximately $4,000,000 and will be in default on a total of about $16,000,000.

Senate Approves Credit for Filipinos

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—The Senate has passed and sent to the House the Tydings bill to establish on the books of the Treasury a credit in favor of the Philippines for $23,862,750 as a result of the decrease in the weight of the gold dollar. The House rejected a similar bill earlier this week.

Balance Sheet Awaits Figures In Trade Drive

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—George N. Peek, foreign trade advisor, began drafting for President Roosevelt today the outline of a blank international balance sheet he hopes the administration will fill in through its trade expansion drive.

The sheet would link closely the administration's activities concerning war debts, trade treaties under the new tariff act and general dealings in goods and services with foreign countries.

Peek already has presented to the President a balance sheet covering the 38 years up to and including 1933, which showed, he said, a foreign trade trend "cumulatively disadvantageous to us."

He estimated that the trade balance in favor of the United States during this period was such that the world owes this country $36,646,000,000 in goods alone. Against this figure he quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying imports and exports must balance.

Peek himself directly tied war debts, services and such items as tourist spending into his total balance, and set up the theory that the whole should balance.

SPEED SIFTING OF RUSHMORE ENTRIES

Preliminary judging of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition entries will end Saturday. All school and organization committees must submit their selection of the best in the individual groups before noon Saturday.

Active participation in the tremendous nationwide competition by these committees was an expression of their patriotic spirit in the historical movement that is furthering the carving of a great national monument in the South Dakota Black Hills. Their volunteer service to conduct part of the preliminary judging greatly assists the Pittsburgh Regional Rushmore Committee.

When the committees complete their work Saturday, the important task of naming the winners of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia will be undertaken by the regional board. Leading educators and patriotic leaders compose its membership. Next week will be devoted to the final judging.

From the thousands of entries submitted, the regional group will scan the best texts and select those which will be sent to the national committee of awards. This group is headed by President Roosevelt.

Announcements from the national headquarters indicate the national committee will announce the final winners shortly after July 4. Some entrant among the million in the nation will receive the honor of having his or her text selected as the basis for the final inscription to be carved on the mountainside.

O'HARA WATER COLOR SHOW AT INSTITUTE

By PENELOPE REDD

The Carnegie Institute presents today an exhibition of 48 water colors by Eliot O'Hara. Although today marks the forty-fourth anniversary of his birth, Mr. O'Hara did not concentrate exclusively upon painting until 1928. Then a Guggenheim Fellowship afforded him an opportunity for two and one-half years' European study. Later he painted icebergs in Labrador. His most recent adventure was a five months painting tour of South America in 1932-1933. He studied with Russel T. Hyde of Pittsburgh, Charles Hopkinson of Boston, and Andre L'Hote of Paris.

Miss Redd.

His travels which are adequately illustrated in the show at Carnegie do not indicate any influence derived from his teachers. The South American water colors inevitably suggest comparison with those of Lucien Simon exhibited here earlier this season. Simon seemed to use water color as a means of preserving color notes for his personal pleasure. O'Hara uses water color as a fluent medium to make a picture for the world at large. The harbor at Rio well demonstrates the differences between Simon and O'Hara.

Eliot O'Hara's paintings in which the water is an important part of the composition are his best. O'Hara's skill in rendering the body and the fluidity of water may be seen in three typical examples. "Sunrise, Bermuda" with the water waiting for the touch of the sun to spring into living color; the "Kennebunk River" glancing brightly with the yellow green of grass and deeper green of trees as contrast; and "Cherry Blossoms" with the Potomac flowing silver and the pink blossoms, represent this phase. Mr. O'Hara's exhibition will be on view at Carnegie Institute for the next month.

LEGION HONORS DOROTHY DELL

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP.)—New Orleans today received the body of Dorothy Dell Goff with military honors and a sad farewell.

The actress was killed last week in an automobile accident near Pasadena, Cal., at a time when she was approaching the height of her career as a star of the screen.

After a change in plans, her grief-stricken mother, Mrs. Elbert Goff, wired here that the funeral and interment would be held Sunday in New Orleans instead of in Mississippi, the girl's home state.

An American Legion and a police escort accompanied the body from the railroad station to the funeral home.

Dorothy Dell was started on her way to fame in an American Legion beauty contest in New Orleans.

FAIR PORTRAYS LIGHTING TREND

World's Fair lighting today, with its colorful mass effects and widespread use of glowing gas tubes, indicates the general trend of future lighting development.

This was the assertion here yesterday of J. L. Stair, Illuminating Engineering Society national president, who designed the lighting for many of the Fair buildings.

At the Hotel Schenley last night, he inaugurated the organization of the Pittsburgh chapter of the society into a section, which will widen the chapter's scope to include all Western Pennsylvania.

Stair pointed out that such "new" developments in lighting, as "black" light, invisible ultra violet rays and cold light, such as neon tube lighting, are already on the market. He expects their use to broaden in the future.

'GIRL IN THE FAMILY' Announces Engagement By Beatrice Burton

Betrothal Ring Admired When 'Girl in Family' Visits at Cullens

CHAPTER X.

Years ago, long before Susan's time, Uncle Arthur had owned another grocery store, a smaller one, and it was there that Susan's father had met her mother. Her uncle had told her about it a great many times. It had happened on a June day in 1906 when Janet Cullen had been going over the books of the store, and Morris Broderick had stepped in to buy some tobacco.

"Janet used to come down to the store once a month to make out bills for me, and straighten out my book-keeping," Uncle Arthur had told her. "She was quick as lightning at figures, and I never was any good at them. Well, along the street came a little electric runabout, your father sitting in it with a little black mustache on his lip and a colored band around his hat—"

It never seemed quite real to Susan, somehow. She could not imagine her father wearing a mustache or being in love with anyone except Mrs. Ada Hopper. The whole thing was like a story to her.

Girls at Home

Howard was in front of the store, lifting baskets of groceries into his father's delivery truck when Susan came around the corner of Mills Road on Saturday afternoon. The Cullens all worked, and he helped at the store every afternoon after school and all day on Saturday. A white butcher's apron was tied over his clothes and his face was red with cold.

"See you at supper, Susie!" he called to her, getting up into the seat of the truck. "The girls are at home."

The Cullen girls were usually at home on Saturday, after their workaday week, and Susan had fallen into the habit of coming there every Saturday afternoon and staying for the evening meal which the Cullens all called "supper."

They were the kind of people who always asked their friends to take pot luck with them, and if pot luck happened to be hash or stew, they did not apologize for it and they were not embarrassed in the least. Aunt Nell's food was always well-cooked, and the Cullen jokes always came bubbling up in the table conversations, and the girls kept popping into the kitchen to bring more hot biscuits or another helping of chicken pilau all round. It was almost impossible for anyone to be stiff or ill-at-ease with the Cullens, for they were so simple and friendly and full of fun themselves.

Susan opened the front door and walked into the house without knocking or ringing the door bell. No one who knew the Cullens ever rang and then waited to be admitted. If you were a friend of theirs you simply walked in, looked around and, if no one was in sight, called out, "Hello! Anybody at home?"

This was what Susan did now as she took off her wraps in the white paneled hallway. She could hear voices upstairs and she started up. "All right for me to come up?" she called.

Footsteps came along the upper hall and Mary Cullen appeared at the head of the stairs. "It's Susie Broderick!" she sang out to someone in the room she had just left, turning to look back over her shoulders. "Susie in person! Good show!"

Mary was the beauty of the Cullen family. Even now in a pongee smock, with her red hair in water wave combs and her face quite bare of make-up, she was more than pretty. There was a tiny upward tilt to the outer corners of her eyes and a clever humorous slant to her red mouth that made her face interesting as well as lovely.

"We're having beauty shop," she said, showing Susan her nails, which had been covered with coral polish. "Look at those! Don't they look just like red jelly bean candy!—Susie, what's all the gossip we've been hearing about you! Connie says that John called her up this morning and told her that you're engaged to Wallace Steffen."

'Catch-All' Room

The sitting room was called the Catch-All by the Cullens. It was a large bright room filled with a cheerful litter. There was a tennis racket on the wall above the open book shelves, and the top of the shelves was a sort of picture gallery—snapshots, for the most part, of the Cullens at home and abroad. Aunt Nell working in her little garden, Uncle Arthur standing beside his first automobile away back in 1914, the girls in their bathing suits, Howard at 10.

On the floor, in front of a fire of gas logs, sat Sara Cullen and Connie Sayre, who had lived with the family for several years. She and Mary worked together at the North Side branch of the public library, and, although she paid her board at the Cullens', Susan had never thought of her as their roomer or even as their "paying guest." She was like a member of the family, and every summer when she went home to her own family to spend her vacation with them, Mary went with her and John often spent a week-end with them.

"John did tell me that," she said when Susan came into the room. "Now, don't hold out on us, darling. It's true, isn't it?"

"It's perfectly true," said Susan, and held up her left hand to show them the ring.

Sara let out a little gasp of admiration. "Oh, Susie! How gorgeous!"

Didn't Pick Ring

"Did you pick it out, yourself?" Connie pulled the folds of her red flannel kimono around her and got up to examine the ring.

"No, I didn't." It occurred to Susan that she did not know who had picked out the ring. She could not be sure that Wallace had. She could not be sure of anything except the fact that he had brought it to her in a Ludlow and Ludlow box.

"Well, all I have to say is that you're a bright girl, Susie," Mary said dryly. "It takes real brains to land a husband these days. Especially a husband worth a diamond and two enormous sapphires!"

There was a sudden rat-tat-tat of feet on the stairs and Susan's Aunt Nell came into the room. "I thought I heard Susie's voice," she cried in a rich contralto with warm motherly tones in it. "Why didn't you girls tell me she was here?—How are you, Susie?" She was a short woman, plump but not over-large, and although she was the sort of woman who is called an old-fashioned mother, there was nothing in the least old-fashioned about her appearance. Her gray hair was carefully waved and drawn into a flat knot at the back of her head, her house-dress of crisp gingham was well cut and there were no basting threads on it to indicate that she had just left the sewing room downstairs, as she had.

"Well, well, well! Will you just look at this!" she exclaimed when Susan showed her the ring. She made a clucking sound of admiration. "Did you ever see anything more magnificent in your life!—It's a little loose on your finger, isn't it, Susie? And it's so easy to lose a valuable thing like this. When are you going to bring your young man here to let me congratulate him?"

Painful Evening

"Oh, very soon," Susan answered her. The one and only time she had brought Wallace to call on the Cullens still stood out in her memory as the longest and most painful evening of her life. He had been stiff and frankly bored with them and all their works. With their jigsaw puzzles and anagrams, their singing of song hits at the piano, their mid-evening refreshments of cider and doughnuts. Afterward he had insisted that he had enjoyed himself, but he had never suggested a second visit or even mentioned the Cullens again.

"I could get up a nice little dinner some night and you could bring him over," said Aunt Nell, smiling, hospitable as she always was. "You just set a date, Susie."

Girls' Room

The room that Mary and Sara shared was at the back of the house. Its three windows that looked out into the bare snow-encrusted branches of a maple tree were framed with pale green chintz curtains. On one side of the room, which was an unusually large one, stood Sara's three-quarter size bed, her dressing table and her pale green arm chair. There were books on a hanging shelf above the bed and on the wall above the dressing table was a single picture. A snow scene done in black and white.

The other side of the room belonged to Mary, and it was crowded with her possessions and overlaid with her personality. There were snapshots of her men friends and her girl friends all over the wall. There were green silk mules, edged with gold kid, under the bed, and her armchair was piled with small green and yellow silk pillows. A lamp with a frivolous, frilly green silk shade stood on the bedside table, and beside it lay a volume of a snappy story which Mary was reading for her own pleasure, and two volumes of Marcel Proust which the head librarian at the North Side Branch had asked her to look over before Monday.

Somehow during her busy week-end, Mary would manage to do it. Hers was the quick eye that picks up a whole paragraph of reading matter at a glance or two and takes it in.

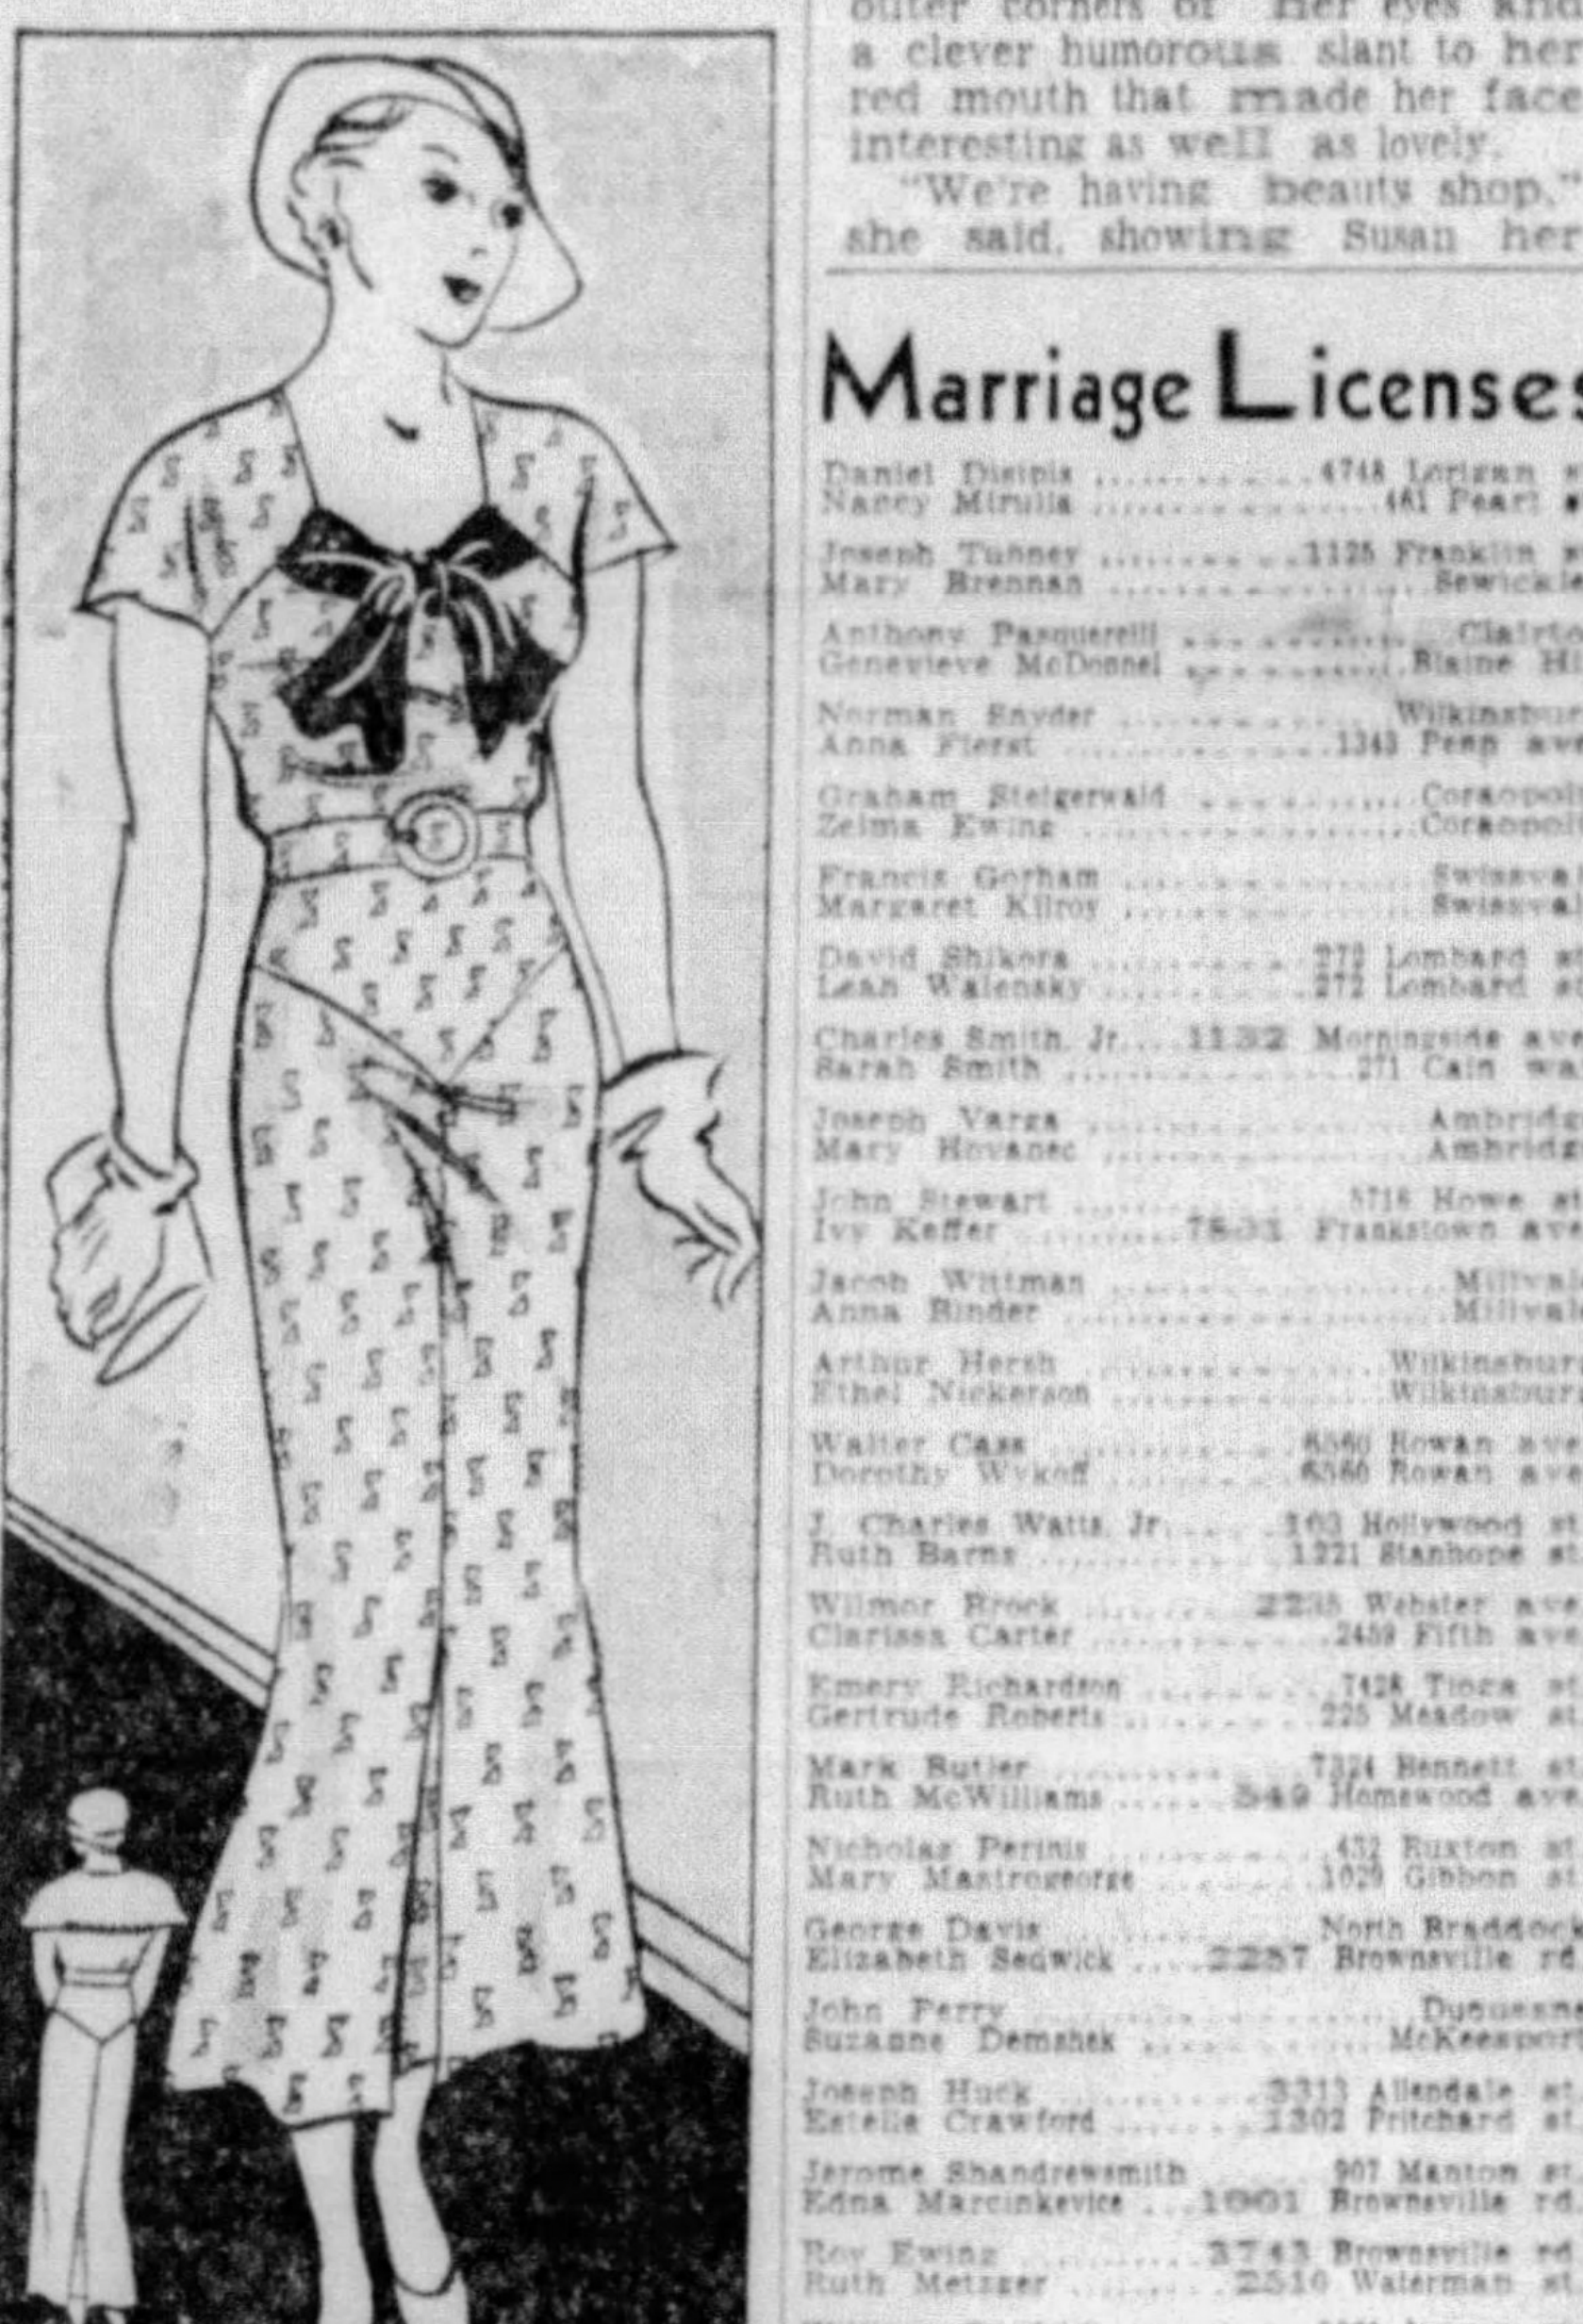
A Particularly Chic Frock and Easy to Make

Pattern 1911

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern



This frock is attractive on anyone from size 16 to size 44. It has the style which accompanies subtle simplicity and good lines. Without a superfluous detail to take unnecessary time and labor in the making, it contrives to give an exceedingly smart effect. The tie knotted at the front, which may, of course, be omitted if one wishes, gives an opportunity for the introduction of a telling note of color. With a print it may repeat the outstanding shade in the pattern—and with a plain fabric strike a lively contrast. It is a perfect frock for cottons—not difficult to launder nicely.

Pattern 1911 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 36-inch fabric and 1⅛ yards 5-inch ribbon. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

New Chief for WCAE Monday

"Something absolutely new for Pittsburgh . . ."

That's the way Jack Stewart, former director of Station WFBR, Baltimore, whose appointment as general manager of WCAE was announced yesterday, sums up the program ideas he will bring into play after assuming his new duties Monday.

Following his arrival here yesterday, Stewart, whose connection with the radio industry dates to its inception, said:

"In Baltimore, where I developed two stations, I had to contend with tremendous conservatism of the listeners of that area. Program scheduling was not an easy matter.

"I've seen Broadway stage hits go to pieces in Baltimore—and I've seen productions successful in that city become Broadway smashes. Recognizing that conservatism, producers always try out their shows there.

"That's why I think the ideas and programs I have developed will go over with a bang here—because Pittsburgh is a much more cosmopolitan city. They'll be absolutely new."

Prior to becoming director of WFBR, with which he was affiliated nearly four years, Mr. Stewart held a similar post at WCAO, Baltimore, four years. It was through his efforts that both stations became units of nation-wide networks, and that Baltimore gained her first newspaper-radio station link.

The new Sun-Telegraph station head also has been associated with Station WAIU, Columbus, and Stations WTAM and WHK, Cleveland. He is a graduate of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

Sunday Show to Aid East End Needy

Food will be the admission charge at a benefit show in the Sheridan Square Theater from 2 to 10 p. m. Sunday. Sacred Heart Church is sponsoring the affair, and will distrbute the foods collected to the needy of the East End district. Warner Brothers have donated the theater and all employes have agreed to contribute their services.

WCAE Features Tonight

The first anniversary of the NRA is the topic of a talk by George H. Goff, broadcast by WCAE at 5:30 today under the auspices of the retail code authority of Pittsburgh.

The sparkling Manhattan Merry-Go-Round goes on the air at 7.

At 10, WCAE will take listeners to Madison Square Garden for a blow-by-blow description of the heavyweight title bout.

Globe Trotter

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

I am sure we found the lamb that Mary lost. It dropped in at the home of Mrs. R. Angermyer, Clara street, Millvale. Its owner doesn't have to worry because Mrs. Angermyer will keep it for Mary and not let it find its way into the stew.

* * *

The pandulum has swung the other way. A couple of days ago I had more go-carts than babies, now I have more babies than go-carts and so I need go-carts.

What's more, I am in dire need, for a distressed mother, of a crib.

I am just as glad we don't have quintuplets here.

* * *

Not so long ago I printed a story about the South Side Community Picnic. Johnny Jones wanted a couple to be married there.

I want to acknowledge a letter from Miss M. D., who with her boy friend, is offereing to have the fatal knot tied at the picnic.

* * *

Mrs. R. McM., Coraopolis. The information you ask will be printed in the sports pages of the Sun-Telegraph.

You and your friends from out of town will be welcome at the baseball game on Thursday. Of course that means only out-of-town lady friends will be admitted as guests of the Pirate management.

* * *

I have received many letters asking for a copy of the interview with Mr. Conick, who discussed the new stock exchange control act last Saturday on the Globe Trotter's evening broadcast.

Mr. Conick is out of town now. He will be in Pittsburgh in a day or two, at which time the copies of the interview will be sent out.

If you haven't sent for your and you still want to, just drop me a line.

ALL DURING JUNE

When you buy
AN AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR
you want "the facts..."

Here they are!

WE BELIEVE that the New Air-Cooled Electrolux is the very best of all automatic refrigerators. And we want to tell you why.

Electrolux operates upon a different principle than the others . . . a simpler, more efficient principle. A tiny gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant. Ordinary air cools it. For that reason it costs less to operate, has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairing, is permanently silent, and gives constant steady cold.

Only Electrolux can offer you all those things. In addition, the new Air-Cooled Electrolux has the modern conveniences that women appreciate so much.

Here are a few of them: Temperature regulator. Split shelf. New gleaming white Newtone finish. Trigger tray release. And many others.

You buy more than a kitchen appliance when you buy an automatic refrigerator. You buy fuller protection for foods . . . new pleasure in preparing salads and desserts.

Please consider this an invitation to come in and see the New Air-Cooled Electrolux. We know you'll appreciate it more after actually examining it.

And remember. Your own gas company stands back of Electrolux—promptly and willingly services every one it sells.

Operates for only 2¢ A DAY

BARGAIN HOURS

THE "Bargain Hours" on out-of-town calls effective during the evening and night offer a worthwhile saving and are an added inducement to keep in touch with distant friends and scattered members of the family.

After 7:00 P. M. Standard Time most Station to Station rates are about 15% lower than the regular day rates.

After 8:30 P. M. Standard Time they are as much as 40% lower.

Thus you can telephone from Pittsburgh to Akron, Ohio, or to Altoona for 55 cents by day; 45 cents in the evening; 35 cents at night.

HOW TO MAKE A STATION TO STATION CALL

Give the number to your local operator (dial red "0"). "Information" will give you any number you do not know. Just say, for example: "I want Atlantic City, Marine 1234," and hold the line.

If you ask for a specific person, hotel room or extension telephone you will be making a Person to Person call which costs more and offers no Evening or Night reductions.

SOUTH HILLS TO CARRY TUBE TOLL FIGHT TO PRESIDENT

270 DEGREES AWARDED BY DUQUESNE

Youth Problem Biggest Facing Nation, Speaker Holds

Only the long process of education offers a solution for the perplexing problems which beset the country today, Dr. George Frederick Zook, United States Commissoner of Education, stated before a capacity audience in Memorial Hall last night as Duquesne University conducted its fifty-sixth annual commencement exercises. He said:

"The country is faced with many perplexing problems these days. Our first inclination is to turn to some government agency federal, state or local—for some quick remedy. After a thorough examination of the situation it slowly begins to dawn on the people who hope for an early solution that nothing can be done until there has been widespread education leading to popular acceptance of the proposed solution. Therefore, they turn hopefully to educational administrators and teachers to go through the long process of educating in the schools of today the men and women of tomorrow who will be in a position to do something about the problem in hand."

The Commissioner declared the responsibility is not confined to the educators but is shared by the humblest citizen * His topic, "Our Youth Problem," was said to be the greatest problem facing the nation at a time when problems are numerous.

The Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university, conferred degrees on 270. The honorary doctor of laws was conferred on Dr. Zook, Bishop James Hugh Ryan, rector of the Catholic University of America, who preached the baccalaureate sermon Sunday, and State Senator Frank J. Harris. Bishop Ryan's degree was conferred in absentia.

Mrs. Mazie S. Langfitt, wife of a prominent Pittsburgh physician, was awarded the gold medal for general excellence. Gold medals were also awarded the following: James Francis McBride, for church history; Hugh McMullen Shaffer, oratory; Leo Edward Sullivan, philosophy; Joseph William Boes, music, and Bernard J. Schiller, pharmaceutical science.

STEEDLE TRIAL PLEA JULY 17

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker set July 17 for hearing of arguments on motions for new trial for Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, State Legislator, and others, convicted May 24 for conspiring to violate the election law at the congressional election in November, 1932.

Those convicted with Dr. Steedle were Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, Scott Township; Police Chief Thomas Saunders, Stowe Township, and Wallace Ray, clerk in the inheritance tax office.

The motions will be opposed by Federal Prosecutors James I. Marsh and Louis E. Graham. In the meantime Judge Schoonmaker will go on his summer vacation.

Twelve other defendants in the same case were acquitted on binding instructions of the court.

Odd Fellows Plan Canadian Initiating

Three hundred and fifty members of Pittsburgh I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges will go to St. Catherines, Ontario, June 22, to confer degrees in Empire and Empress lodges. The party will be in charge of John McGall, past district deputy, and Mrs. Clara Jacobs, district deputy.

Unity Man Heads Township Committee

The Penn Township Republican Committee has named Carl Shirer, of Unity, chairman, it was announced today. Other officers are Henrietta Hillegas, vice chairman; William C. Walters, secretary, and Edward Snyder, treasurer.

Cut in Savings Deposit Interest Delayed Here

Pittsburgh bankers have taken no action on cutting interest rates on savings deposits but reductions ordered in other cities may be followed here.

Prominent bankers in this district stated today that there had been no general discussion of cutting interest rates. They implied, however, that bankers in this city would not be likely to continue to pay rates higher than those in other important financial centers for any long period.

Rumors that a cut is to be made on interest on savings accounts here followed the announcement of reductions in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville and other cities.

At present banks here are paying 3 per cent interest on savings accounts. Reductions in other cities have brought the rates down to 2 per cent in many cases and, at a few points, rates are down to 1 per cent.

This action has been taken in other cities as a result of the fact that few banks have been making large commercial loans. Banks have tended to put increasing amounts of their money into government securities which yield a small return. This leaves only a narrow margin to cover operating expenses and to provide for a profit.

CHARITY CAMP LIMITS GUESTS

Pittsburgh's undernourished children will benefit this year from the summer vacation camp at Oakmont, maintained by the Association for the Improvement of the Poor.

Under a new policy announced today, only undernourished children, recommended by hospitals and physicians, will be given summer vacations at the camp.

The camp includes an open-air swimming pool, recreation facilities and modern kitchens, which enable the camp to give a free two-weeks vacation to children at cost to the association of $10, according to Secretary H. W. Shepard.

France's Offer 10 Cents Better Than Her Last

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

France bobs up and says she will not pay a dime. That's 10 cents better than her last offer.

England has already sent us the black-bordered congratulations.

Well, you cannot squeeze rain out of a dust cloud. Europe is drier than a kippered mummy.

France, Germany, England and Russia are saving their money for the next war. They saved our money for the last one.

There is nothing to do but gracefully accept the royal medal of perpetual postponement with the two empty palms.

Honey and vanishing cream are both hard to find after they have been used.

Don't let's forget it and concentrate on Primo and Maxey, who are fighting to see who is in the worst shape.

OPEN RWD JOBS TO NON-AIDED

Relief and employment officials at a meeting yesterday decided to hire non-relief workers in districts where there are not enough men on relief rolls available for Relief Works Division projects. The meeting was called to consider a labor shortage on RWD projects.

The meeting, held in the office of James L. Stuart, County Administrator for the RWD, was attended by Stuart, A. W. Motley, of Harrisburg, director of the Pennsylvania Employment Bureau; Deputy Administrator Philip H. Lantz, of the RWD; Maj. Ralph W. Gibbs, head of the Federal-State Employment Bureau here, and John Sheldon, assistant director of the Allegheny County Relief Board.

Action taken at the meeting will eliminate to a great extent the shortage of 2,500 men for relief works jobs in the county.

Socialists Protest Food Destruction

WORKER GIVEN MEDAL FOR HEROISM

Rescued Companion Shocked While Repairing Wire

While repairing a wire attached to a pole at Penn and Negley avenues on May 16, 1933, George Fritz, of Allison Park, was knocked unconscious as electricity surged through his body.

Through the heroism of a fellow worker, who climbed the pole and disengaged the limp figure from the wires, Fritz was saved from a tragic death.

The hero, Michael Butchko, of 146 South Sixteenth street, was presented yesterday with the Edison Electric Institute Medal, the first Pittsburgher to receive the award. His resuscitation of Fritz is called the second rescue of its kind effected in the history of the electrical industry in the United States.

Both men are employes of the Duquesne Light Company, in whose offices the presentation was made. Butchko also received a $50 check.

ICKES SPEAKS FOR LOAN HERE

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Prospects for the allotment of $30,000,000 for the Allegheny County Authority looked brighter today when Public Works Administration Harold L. Ickes gave the Western Pennsylvania congressional delegation assurance of his renewed interest in the project. The necessary federal legislation was consummated when President Roosevelt signed the Kelly bridge bills authorizing the construction of the seven structures spanning the Allegheny, Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers.

It is regarded as practically certain that the Senate will pass the deficiency bill appropriating one billion one hundred and seventy million dollars to provide public works funds for the coming year.

The bill is expected to come up in the closing hours of the Senate session not later than next week.

PRISONER VOTE REPORT READY

BEAVER, Pa., June 14.—A report on the findings of a commission investigating the release of a Beaver County Jail prisoner who is alleged to have engaged in the primary election campaign was submitted to Judge Frank E. Reader today.

The commission refused to disclose the contents of its report. It had heard testimony in connection with the release of John Oriol, of Ambridge, a few days before the May primary, while Oriol was serving a two to 10-year sentence on an arson charge.

Judge Reader said he would not make the report public until he had an opportunity to read it.

Oriol was alleged to have electioneered among Polish residents of Ambridge in behalf of primary candidates. The court had not issued an order for his release.

50 Years a Barber

AUGUST KUEHNER, 65 . . . STARTING HIS SECOND 50 YEARS

ENDS 50 YEARS AS BARBER

August Kuehner, 65, a barber, who has his shop at Kelton and West Liberty avenues, Dormont, begins his second half-century of cutting hair and shaving chins today.

For the last 19 years Kuehner has owned his own shop in Dormont, but he likes best to tell of the days when he was "downtown" and singed the beards of some of Allegheny County's most prominent politicians and financial magnates.

He learned the trade in 1884 in Sweitzer's barber shop, Smithfield street and Fifth avenue, where Kaufmann's stands now.

Once, he says, he trimmed H. C. Frick's hair. Frick at the time, which was about 1892, was well on his way to his first million, but he paid him only the regulation 50 cents for hair cut and beard trim.

RICHMAN DINES STAFF HERE

For exceeding its quota by a greater margin than any of the other Richman Brothers Company stores, the Pittsburgh store workers were honored last night at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel. The local staff also received a cash award.

The employes were addressed by C. B. Pelder, vice president in charge of stores and former manager of the Pittsburgh store, who asserted that stores in all steel or automobile centers have exceeded their sales quota since March 6.

The home office was also represented by F. C. Lewman, vice president and general manager. J. P. Mulvihill, local store manager, also spoke.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.,
June 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Debt thing lobbed up again today. The news never gets so dull that somebody can't bob up with a new proposal. We can always revive talk of it, and interest in it. But we just cant seem to revive payment of it. In fact, a great many of the ideas we have loaned 'em, they haven't even paid back.

Well, it's good to get it all stirred up before the new congressional elections. The following sounds awful good on the platform.

"Did the man you last sent to Washington make Europe pay? No! No! Well, elect me and I will make them pay." So it will always be a good argument.

Yours,

WILL.

YOUTH SEEKS SITTING MARK

Shipwreck Kelly, who holds the flagpole sitting championship with a record of 240 hours aloft, has a rival today.

The newest sitter is Johnny Danko, 21, of Homestead. Perched on a small wooden frame hoisted near the top of a steel pole in front of Homestead Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Ninth street, Danko plans to "rest" there 11 days—264 hours, a day longer than Shipwreck's record.

His manager is Thomas Pupik, 24, who achieved a certain measure of fame by doing a Steve Brodie off Brown's Bridge recently. Friendly bystanders chipped in and rewarded him with 75 cents for the feat.

Pupik says that he and Danko hope to do a little better with the flagpole sitting. He has heard, he says, that there is an offer of $25 for the man who can outsit Kelly, but he doesn't know who makes the offer. A crowd, mostly children, heard Danko sing and play the mouth organ on top of his pole yesterday.

Natrona Boy Drowns In Fall From Boat

Four-year-old Joseph Pyiesal, of 18 Center street, Natrona, drowned last night when he fell from a boat in which he had been playing in the Allegheny River, according to a Coroner's report.

The child was taken from the water five minutes after the accident by Natrona firemen, but efforts to revive him failed.

Councilmen Pick Site For Incinerator

An incinerator site adjoining the Brilliant Pumping Station on the Allegheny River at the edge of Highland Park has been selected by a committee of City Council.

Specifications have been prepared and the Health Department is ready to go ahead at once with the taking of bids.

Council has also asked for an appraisal of two other pieces of real estate which are being considered for the second site.

One is the Pittsburgh Forge and Knife property at Chateau and Ridge avenues, north end of the West End-North Side Bridge and the other is owned by the McGunnegle estate, a tract along Chartiers Creek near West Carson street at the McKees Rocks Borough line.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston and Park Supt. Ralph E. Griswold objected to the use of the Brilliant site for an incinerator.

Both referred to the possibilities of developing the Allegheny River frontage for recreation purposes.

Chairman Charles Anderson, of the Health and Sanitation Committee, expressed surprise that city officials should stand in the way of the incinerator program.

Councilman William A. Magee declared he felt there was much in what Director Johnston said about developing the river front as a park. He agreed to vote for the Brilliant site provided that before it is finally approved an agreement be reached on its use by officials of the Health Department and Griswold.

M'NAIR BACKS FIGHT TO BALK 'ROBBERY'

Mayor to Make Two Talks in Protest; Leaders Elected

While South Hills residents prepared to protest to President Roosevelt against the proposed toll charges on traffic in the Liberty Tubes, Mayor McNair today stated his opposition thus:

"I'm against the County Commissioners putting highwaymen at the ends of the tubes to rob the people."

The Mayor will speak at Peabody High School and Latimer School, North Side, tonight to protest the proposed tolls. He will speak at Peabody High at 8 p. m. and later at Latimer School.

200 DENOUNCE PLAN

McNair said the tolls would depreciate real estate values in the downtown Triangle.

Taxing the tube traffic is included in plans for public works projects in the county, the authority for which was ruled constitutional yesterday by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Meeting in Hillsdale School, Dormont, last night, 200 citizens of the communities affected by the toll, if it is levied, unanimously denounced the proposal and planned to circulate petitions demanding that it be removed from the PWA plans.

APPEAL AUTHORIZED

Officers were elected and authorized to appeal to the President and the County Commissioners.

Raymond R. Politi, head of the Dormont Chamber of Commerce, was named president. Vice presidents were chosen from each borough, township and district represented at the meeting.

They were: Daniel W. Baker, Mt. Lebanon; James R. Galbraith, Brookline; W. E. Armstrong, Baldwin Township; Samuel V. Barton, Castle Shannon; Elmer E. Harter, Jr., Beechview, and Robert E. Lewis, Overbrook. Mr. Politi was authorized to name others from neighboring communities as they unite in the campaign.

George H. Dunn, secretary of the South Hills Kiwanis Club, was chosen secretary, and Thomas Bard, treasurer.

FLAYS PROPOSAL

George Kountz, Mt. Lebanon civic leader, flayed the toll proposal as a breach of faith on the part of the County Commissioners, declaring:

"When the grand jury approved the construction of the Liberty Tubes, along with other county projects, it was with the distinct understanding that no toll would be charged. Had that not been included in the plans, they would not have been sanctioned."

Kountz asserted the agreement not to tax the tubes was verbal, and there is no record of it.

The possibility of jeopardizing the entire PWA loan should not hinder the drive, according to J. W. Bamford, secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association, who declared:

"It's true that we may imperil the loan, but why should we worry about that?"

WOULD CUT BUYING POWER

Bamford said a number of the projects included in the PWA plans will never be self-liquidating and South Hills residents will pay toll until they are liquidated.

He asserted the toll would cut off the purchasing power of the South Hills from the Golden Triangle and would cost residents of the district who work in Pittsburgh at least $30 a year.

L. T. Stevenson, former president of the Real Estate Board, termed the proposal "a marvelous step backwards." He said the problem confronting the people of the South Hills is the most serious they have faced since the communities were founded.

Motor Club Sounds Speed Trap Warning

The Pittsburgh Motor Club today issued a warning to motorists against speeding in the vicinity of New Eagle, on Route 88, and California, on Route 88. Both municipalities are waging campaigns to enforce 20-mile-an-hour speed regulations in the boroughs, the club warned.

Noted Fliers Wing Way Here Saturday For Giant Junior Birdmen Air Pageant!

Mayor McNair Proclaims It Aviation Day!

By J. JAMES MOORE

Hello, everybody! Four famous flying aces will wing their way here Saturday to take part in our mammoth Air Pageant to be held at the City-County Airport beginning at noon.

The first is Col. Roscoe Turner, daring speed and racing pilot, who is familiar to every one of you. You don't want to miss seeing him or his speedy ship which he will fly all the way from Seattle, Wash., in order to give you some real flying thrills.

GET YOUR —WINGS—

The Junior Birdmen of America is a nation-wide organization. Membership is open to all boys and girls 10 to 21 years of age, inclusive. To enroll fill out this coupon, enclose ten cents for your wings and membership card, and mail it to

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I wish to become a member of the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a ten-cent coin (well-wrapped) to cover the cost of my membership materials.

My name ....

My address ....

My city .... State ....

My age now is .... GIVE YOUR CORRECT AGE

Members 10 to 15 will receive silver membership.
Members 16 to 21 will receive gold membership.

You will surely want to see him "streak" his plane across the sky at five miles a minute speed, hear him tell you about his flying adventures and see his lion Gilmore, which I believe he may bring along with him. Mere words do not express the thrills he has in store for you.

Secondly you will see Lieut. Felix Vaitkus, Lithuanian U. S. Army aviator, who will make a trans-Atantic flight next month to Kaunas, Lithuania. He will fly here in the plane which he will use from his trip across the Atlantic. That should be a treat.

Next on the program will be Capt. Frederic W. Haig, chief aviation officer of the Vacuum Oil Company in Australia and one of the most famous fliers in that country.

Capt. Haig, who is a member of the Rotal Aeronautical Society of London and the American College of Air Law, is making a world-wide survey of aeronautical developments. He will arrive at the airport shortly after noon from Detroit on a Central Airline plane.

You will see him coming in at the field, for our air show begins at 12 noon and lasts to 4:30 p. m. The program will open with several dozen of aerial bombs being fired into the sky from the field runway. From them will burst colored parachutes and American flags.

Fourth on the list of pilots coming here is Lieut. "Light Horse" Harry Wilson, former football star at West Point. He will fly here in a trim Army pursuit plane from Langley Field, Va. Other Army fliers are expected from Mitchell Field, Long Island.

Special Street Car Rates to Field

Though the County Airport is located outside of the city there is no reason why you cannot attend the field day. Special street car and bus rates have been arranged to get you there.

A special 25-cent round-trip street car and bus pass to the field for any boy or girl under 16 years of age has been arranged by the Sun-Telegraph through the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The pass will be on sale at the following stations:

The Sun-Telegraph main office, Telegraph square; the Sun-Telegraph branch office, Fifth avenue and Market street; Homewood News Company, 540 North Homewood avenue, Homewood; L. Broudy Confectionery 5466 Penn avenue; Brown's Confectionery, 115 Shady avenue; Mr. Conegley, book store, 326 East Eighth avenue, Homestead; Young News, 5804 Forbes street; Roderos Brothers, 316 Seventh street, Braddock; Muhr's Confectionery, 757 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks; West End Dairy Store, 432 Main street, West End; Carrick News Company, 2605 Brownsville road, Carrick; P. & A. News, 220 Federal street, North Side; North Boro News, 603 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue; C. Eiszler, Freeport street, Etna; Tege's Confectionery, 622 East Ohio street, North Side.

Or you can get your field day pass at the following street railway car houses.

Keating, Millvale, Manchester, South Hills, Ingram, Rankin, Glenwood, McKeesport, Craft avenue, Homewood, Highland, Herron Hill, Plummer street and the main office, 435 Sixth avenue.

To reach the airport from the downtown, take a No. 56 McKeesport car. It will carry you out Second avenue, through Hays and Lincoln Place. At Grandview stop—where the Lebanon Church road bridge crosses the street car tracks—a bus will take you the remaining mile to the airport.

Junior Birdmen, over 16 years of age, and adults will have to pay the regular street car rate to Grandview stop. The bus fare to the airport will be five (5) cents each way. We hope that you members take advantage of the special street car and bus rates.

The special 25-cent pass will be good on all street car lines and in all fare zones except on interurban, special or picnic cars. It will be good only on Saturday.

If you bought a ticket last week it will be good again this week.

Ten Points to Remember

There are several "don't" which I wish all members would observe strictly. Here they are:

1—Don't stray from your group.

2—Don't ask unnecessary questions of the pilots.

3—Don't walk out onto the airport field.

4—Don't touch any plane at any time.

5—Don't touch or lean against the propeller of any craft.

6—Don't disobey your leaders or airport officials.

7—Don't run. Walk at all times and avoid injury.

8—Don't throw papers about the field.

9—Don't make unnecessary noises.

10—Don't go outside the field lines or you won't be able to get back in again.

If you follow these 13 "dont's" carefully you will get into no trouble.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

Junior Patrol Mail Box

No matter what the season, you can help others, fellows!

In winter time, the needy should have warm clothing, of course, and in the summer time poor people need to get out into the country for a cool vacation.

Several summer camps, such as the ones run by the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America, will open soon. They will give many poor children vacations at these camps. The food is swell, and in some camps there is a swimming pool, and the camps are in the country where the air is pure and bracing.

Many children, and grownups, too, who go to such camps come back with a healthy coat of tan—pounds heavier and feeling lots better.

But money is needed to run the camps. And they have to buy plenty of fresh vegetables, fruits, eggs, butter and milk.

It would be a wonderful thing if every Junior Patrol Club could hold a benefit or a garden party or sell something to make money to give to one of the fresh air camps.

It may be that even a small gift from you would save a child's life. Certainly, your money would make some children very happy—happier than they have been for a long time.

Not long ago we told you about Pittsburgh's parks, and what an advantage they are for everybody. We were walking in Frick Park—that's the big park out near the end of Forbes street, sort of between Pittsburgh, Wilkinsburg, Swissvale and Edgewood—the other day and we noticed that they put little metal plates on some of the trees telling you something about the trees. For instance, there was a plate on a beautiful beech tree. It said that almost all the trees around the Pittsburgh district grew larger only during 40 days of the year—in the spring and early summer.

And other plates on the other trees tell how to know the various trees by looking at the bark and leaves. Books tell the same things.

THUGS KIDNAP, ROB VICTIM

Two Negro bandits kidnaped Jacob Korner, of 6811 Lyric street, at the East Liberty Pennsylvania Railroad Station early today, forced him into an automobile, robbed him of a watch and $84 and drove him to the Hill district, where they tossed him out of the car.

Korner turned in a fire alarm from a box at Webster avenue and Logan street. When firemen and a police car arrived, he reported the robbery.

Police attempted to pick up trace of the bandit automobile, but failed.

Change Time for New York Planes

J. D. Condon, president of Central Airlines, Inc., today announced a change in the two-way plane passenger service between Pittsburgh and New York. The eastbound ship will leave here at 1 p. m. instead of 9:30 a. m., arriving in New York at 3:05 p. m. Leaving New York at 5:15 p. m., the west-bound plane arrives at the County Airport at 7:35 p. m.

When Bladder Is Irritated
When Passage Is Difficult
When Backache Bothers

Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys

If you aren't feeling just right—are nervous—have dizzy spells and occasional backache—study your kidneys and learn more about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters become clogged with poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need a good cleaning.

So if you have such symptoms of Kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes, get a 35-cent package of this grand diuretic at any modern drug store—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

But be sure it's GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland.

COL. ROSCOE TURNER WILL FLY TO AIR PAGEANT HERE

established routes between Seattle and Pittsburgh is 2,619 miles, local aviation offices said.

Col. Turner's visit was made possible through the courtesy of the H. J. Heinz Company.

Col. Turner recently flew from Detroit to this city in 49 minutes and 19 seconds. His motor, timed for 2,400 revolutions per minute, was operating at 2,150 revolutions at the time.

Flying from Pittsburgh to Chicago in May to help in the reopening of the Century of Progress Exposition, he clipped off the 430-mile hop in 104 minutes, averaging 240 miles per hour. Later he claimed a new record between Chicago and Indianapolis, making the flight in 38 minutes and 10 seconds, an average of 262.21 miles per hour.

HIGHEST TROPHY

Airmen everywhere speak of Col. Turner's flying records with respect. In 1932 the Harmon Trophy, highest honor in aviation, was awarded him by the League International for his outstanding contributions during that year to aviation. In 1933, streaking from coast to coast in 11 hours and 30 minutes, he won the Vincent Bendix transcontinental trophy.

Flying back from California to New York in September, he lowered the record to 10 hours 4½ minutes. More recently he flew from Detroit to Pittsburgh to break another record. In his gold-colored racing plane, the most powerful and fastest single-motored land plane in the world, he is still making records.

Whether Col. Turner, flying from Seattle, would follow the established route by way of Salt Lake City and Chicago, or would try to clip miles from the trip, was not known. It was thought he would follow the beacon-lighted route, unless intent on making a new record on this flight.

SPEED KING

Acclaimed as the "speed king" of the air, Col. Turner, who holds both transcontinental records and who recently declared he expects soon to cross the country in six hours, will be one of the features of the flying meet arranged by the Sun-Telegraph wing, Junior Birdmen of America, the organization which is sweeping the country and making America's youth air-minded.

There's no question that the pageant will prove one of the high marks in local aviation interest this year. Noted Pittsburgh fliers and famous army and commercial pilots from other cities will participate in a meet filled with thrills.

Speed tests and stunts will give young America an idea of what today's planes can do.

A group of monocoupes will play "follow the leader" high in in the air as one of the features of the meet.

Other planes will show how "spot landings" are made, landing with motor cut on a designated line on the ground.

INSPECTION TRIP

A trip around the airport and its hangers will show the youngsters how busy an airport of today is, how it is operated, and the work that is done on the planes as they are quartered here between hops.

During another part of the program the youngsters will see how flying models are made—featured in the Junior Birdmen's column daily.

Special street car and bus transportation for youngsters under 16—and information as how to get to the field—are contained in the Birdmen's column today.

The Air Pageant is free to all—children and their parents. There is no age limit. Youngsters between 10 and 21 are eligible to join the Junior Birdmen, but membership is not necessary to attend the meet. Everybody is welcome. The program will start at noon and will last until 6:30 p. m.

Just to make certain that bad weather doesn't interfere again with the meet, arrangements have been made to broadcast a bulletin over WCAE at 10 a. m. Saturday morning. By that time weather indications should be clear, and you will know before leaving home whether the pageant will go on as planned.

WILLIAMS REGRETS

Keen regret that he could not be here for the air pageant was voiced today by Al Williams from Washington. Williams, whose air career is an open book to every youngster, said he would be detained in Washington until Monday. He added:

"Some other time I want to appear before the Junior Birdmen. I think the organization is doing a wonderful job in educating youngsters, and parents as well, as to what aviation is going to mean to all of us in the near future. It's a great outfit, and I strongly urge every boy and girl who is interested in flying to join it."

Prison Assured Star Catcher 4 More Years

CINCINNATI, June 14—(AP.)—Edward J. Fordin was up before Judge Robert R. Nevin for sentence after being convicted in United States District Court—for the third time—of rifling mail boxes.

Asked the Judge:

"What is the attraction down at Atlanta?"

Wordin pondered:

"Well, I was the star catcher on the ball team, and I got to liking it."

Judge Nevin made sure the federal penitentiary there will have its star catcher for the next four years.

Stabbed in Refusal To Surrender Bed

Ben Molden, 50, of 439 Water street, was in Mercy Hospital today with a stab wound in his side, because he refused to surrender his bed, crudely made of paper, to an unidentified man. Molden had made the bed at Second avenue and Try streets in the shadows of Liberty Bridge. The stranger, angered at Molden's refusal to give up his bed, police said, drew a knife and stabbed him in the side.

PINCHOT URGES JOB AID FOR INJURED

HARRISBURG, June 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today appealed to Pennsylvania employers to give jobs to as many as possible of the state's 600,000 physically handicapped. The Governor said:

"From a job-getting angle, life is just one depression after another to them.

"The barriers they must scale in order to secure employment are higher than they should be because, with so many able-bodied in the market for jobs, the tendency is to push the physically handicapped back and down and out.

"This is in spite of the fact that many of the physically handicapped are skilled in crafts they followed before their accidents or which they mastered after their accidents.

"Before a man or woman is rejected because of physical disability, it ought to be remembered that some of the very greatest of our citizens have had to overcome physical handicaps."

He referred to President Roosevelt, who suffered infantile paralysis, and Charles P. Steinmetz and Thomas Edison, electrical wizards, one of whom was a hunchback and the other deaf.

The Governor said Pennsylvania is doing everything possible to help the physically handicapped, asserting the Department of Labor and Industry has found jobs for 3,100 in the last five months.

The present Mrs. Von Dietz is the former wife of Michael Curtiz, film director.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Unpopular Chum Problem For Girl With Beau

The girl friend who can't make a HIT. That is Sweet Nineteen's trouble. And she is feeling loyal enough to this unpopular sister to write to me about it.

She has a boy friend, and he wants to run around with her most of the time. But he doesn't especially want the girl friend along. And it isn't that he hasn't done his best. For he has invited other boys on double dates with his girl and her unpopular chum. But it is NO GO, so far as the chum is concerned. None of the strangers ever make a second date with her.

Miss Brunot

This girl will STEP OUT OF the PICTURE every time, never making inroads, herself, into the hearts of the boys. And yet she clings tenaciously to my perplexed reader . . . who is the popular sort. They have been friends for ever so long, too.

And NOW shall she GIVE UP this girl? And on account of her BOY FRIEND . . .

She fears she will not be able to keep the real liking of both . . . For each WANT her TIME . . .

She has known her boy friend for nearly a year, and thinks rightly, that he is not trifling with her . . .

Your letter, sister, rings true, and so you are UP AGAINST something serious . . . A sincere friend of your own sex is not easily found . . . And sometimes one that is none too popular with the boys, proves a marvelous confidante. For she is always so willing to receive the SECOND-HAND THRILLS you pass out to her . . . And if you are the sort who likes to talk of your accomplishments in winning hearts, you are having a GOOD TIME with her as a listener . . .

Also, the genuine liking you have for her comes in. You see her good qualities. You know her faithfulness . . . Her very staying out of the PICTURE has an attraction for you. For it represents a certain sensitive nature which perhaps few others notice.

DOESN'T CLICK

And you do so WANT TO HELP HER . . . Right under your wing, you would like to take her, and lead her straight up to the portals of POPULARITY.

But that you will NEVER BE ABLE TO DO . . . For she will never be able to take the GRADE, you have mapped out for her . . .

She just doesn't CLICK . . . that's it . . .

And so, Sweet Nineteen, if you really care for your boy friend, the very first big sacrifice you will have to make to keep him at your side, is to give him the preference to this girl chum . . . He has been gentlemanly enough in his efforts to aid her . . . He has shown a BIG NATURE to be willing to try and make DOUBLE DATES for her and you . . .

And you cannot expect MORE of him . . .

MEET AT DANCE

Dear Miss Brunot:

Perhaps I have less cause than some others to write to you. But here is my grievance. I am a girl of 19, and am deeply in love with a fellow. I met him at a dance in December. There were three couples, including myself and this young man. We went to an inn, and danced. Stayed for several hours.

He asked me for a date, but I refused him. I was sorry afterwards. I saw him again at the same place, and we danced as before. I noticed him as soon as I came in. My friends and I took seats, and he came and asked me immediately to dance. We had many such dances together. Then he asked me why I had refused him in the date.

He said he thought we would get so much better acquainted if we had a date together. I think this, too.

Do you think it would be all right to ask him on special night to come and see me? Or might I invite all my friends in for an evening. And have him, too?

I am,

VERY LONELY AND BLUE.

Well, Very Lonely and Blue, I think the party would be an excellent arrangement. Then, afterwards, if everything has gone smoothly and he asks you for a special date, you can let him have it. It is always wise for a girl not to rush into a love affair too rapidly. I agree with you, he appears to be very upstanding young man.

TROUBLE-MAKING ROMEO

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been reading your Speak Up, Sister, column and think it great . . . I am going to ask for your kind advice about a problem that has been on my mind for some time. So please help me. I am 18 years of age, and have a girl friend who has been to me more of a sister than anyone else. And I do not want in any way to spoil this friendship. But so many people have tried to do so.

My girl friend and I are very fond of a fellow. Then she began acting differently toward me. I am sure it is on account of this fellow. She tells me when he takes her out. And he tells her mean things about me. When he takes me out, he tells me the same sort of things about her.

Please tell me if I should stop going with such a fellow. I cannot understand why he should conduct himself in such a manner.

TRUE BLUE RITA.

This fellow isn't a really fine character, that is his trouble, True Blue Rita . . . Give him a quick GO-BY . . . that is my advice . . . He will cause the breaking of your friendship with this girl, if you don't. You do not seem to care anything for him, anyway . . . And so if she wants him, let her have him.

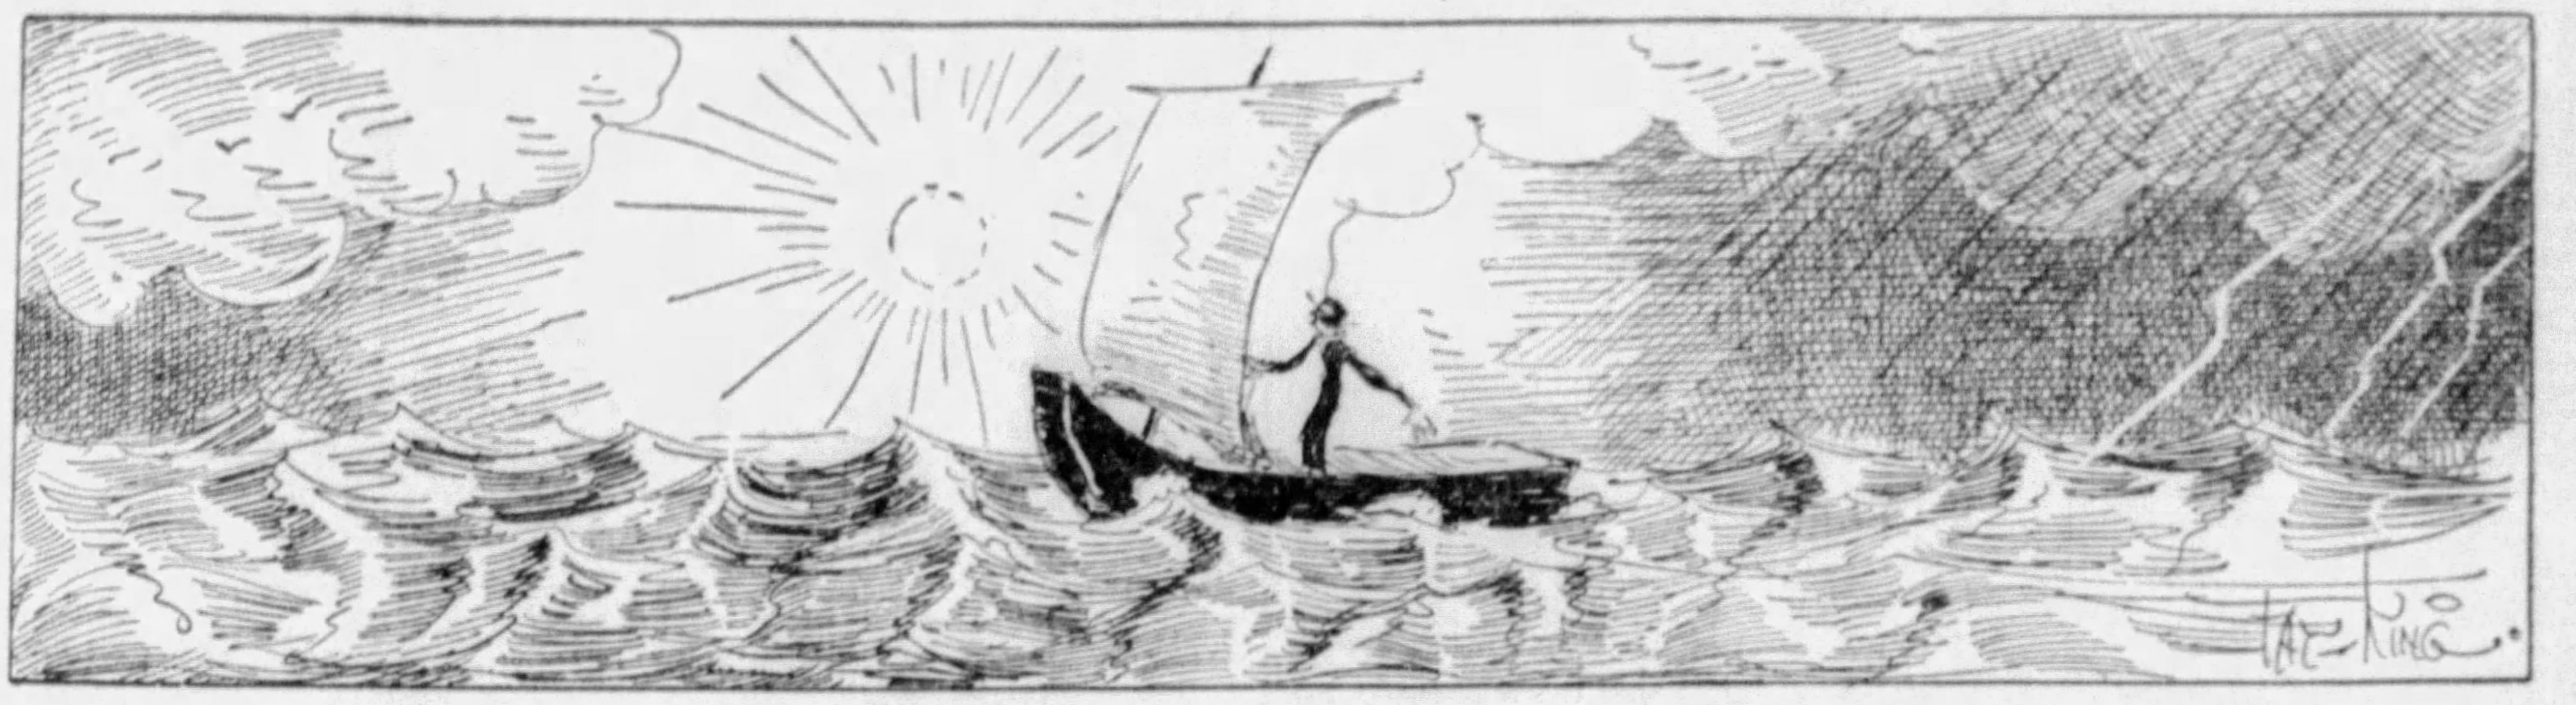
No man can keep going out with two girls who are close friends, and at separate times . . . There will be trouble in the end . . .

And since your letter shows me plainly, your heart is not the least bit affected by him, let it be YOU who does the giving up . . .

You will be glad that you have done so . . .

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

LIFE IS A SEA, SAYS FAY KING, WITH ONLY TWO PORTS FOR ALL



By FAY KING

I like to think of Life as a great sea on which we each are sailing in our own little ship.

There will be sunshine and storm. High tides and low tides. At times we are becalmed, but then some favorable breeze sends us on our way.

There are dangers to navigate, and ports to avoid.

But we are all making the same voyage, from the Port of Birth to the Port of Death.

We despair at times, but nothing that may happen to us on our voyage, but has happened to countless others also.

Some in moments of panic have deserted the ship, jumped overboard committed suicide.

But how much braver were others who, weathering every storm, saw their voyage through!

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Vetoes Hugh's Plan

There was such delicious Quixotism in Hugh's proposal to get his car and drive Mrs. Arlen and Avis to the city, as soon as they could get ready, that my heart warmed to his chivalry.

It did not take unusual perceptions to see why he had made the gesture. Lillian's little outburst had convinced him that Avis Arlen's feeling toward me was something stronger, more dangerous, than mere dislike, and he had reacted instantaneously to the fear of harm coming to me.

He had forgotten the impulse toward championship of Avis which he had shown unmistakably while Lillian, with palpable if subconscious hostility, was questioning the girl concerning the happenings upon the balcony. The first hint of danger to me had put everything else out of his mind.

It was a tribute heady enough to intoxicate any woman, and I possess a normal amount of feminine vanity. But mingled with my gratification was a distinct sense of guilt, which dampened my spirits materially.

Lillian, however, gave me no opportunity to indulge either my vanity or my conscience. She answered his query with an incredulous little laugh that labeled his proposal as the fantastic thing it really was.

PROPOSAL IMPOSSIBLE

"My dear Hugh!" she said. "Exercise just one cell of that massive brain of yours, and you'll see how utterly impossible your proposition is. It might not be a difficult task to shanghai the fair Avis, especially if you were driving the car"—again her impish smile flashed out—"but consider hauling a woman of Mrs. Arlen's age and dignity out of her bed at this hour of the night and telling her that she and her daughter were to be deported, or words to that effect. It simply—"

Hugh put up a swiftly protesting hand, while his cheeks reddened, a rare thing indeed with him. His embarrassment and chagrin must be something unusual, I mentally commented, thus to betray themselves.

"Please!" he begged. "Don't rub it in. I know how preposterous that must have sounded. I saw it even before you spoke. But the thought of danger to—to either of you—at the hands of that girl or anybody else, made me temporarily irresponsible, I think. I cannot explain by any other hypothesis my voicing so insane a proposal."

I wondered if Lillian had noticed, as I had, the hesitancy before the words "either of you." I decided that she had when I saw the corners of her lips quirk into a smile. But her voice was carefully conventional when she answered his impassioned apology.

"Do not think of it again," she said. "You only put into words what I was wishing could be done. Perhaps we are psychically tuned, or whatever the jargon is, and you reflect my sub-conscious. How's that for a theory? No, you needn't answer. We'd better go back to our muttons, in the good old English phrase, and listen to what you have to tell us about Lee Chow."

Hugh's eyes were suddenly shadowed, and he looked at her appealingly.

FEARS EAVESDROPPERS

"Do you think we ought to discuss that here?" he asked. "Not that I think we shall have any more eavesdroppers on the balcony, but—"

"One never knows," Lillian struck in, "and now that we know people are so vitally interested in the subject, it might be as well to postpone this story until we are by ourselves. Tomorrow, for instance: most of the guests are departing then. I can promise you"—she lowered her voice almost to a whisper—"that Marion will be on hand whenever you need her. Just give me twenty-four hours' notice and I'll have her here."

"That being the case—" Hugh rose and bowed ceremoniously to both of us—"I think I will go back to Lee Chow for a while."

"Let us know if anything new develops," Lillian said carelessly, and I wondered at her somewhat cavalier manner of speaking. But when he had left the room she threw her arms above her head and executed a little dance step.

"I thought he never would go," she said flippantly. "I've been dying to have you tell me how clever I was in spiking the guns Avis had trained upon Hugh."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Parents and Parties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a party for boys and girls and in my opinion I don't think my parents should stay at home. They think they should. As our apartment is a small one, they would have to sit in the same rooms as my guests, and I think my friends would feel out of place. What is your opinion? Do you think they ought to stay at home or go visiting, or to a movie? K.

If your parents think that they should stay at home, to welcome your guests and to help with the hospitality, you should abide by their decision. Perhaps later, if they see that the apartment is too crowded, they may, after greeting your guests and assuring them of their hospitable welcome, go out for a while to a movie, to return in time to say good-night to your guests.

But remember, my dear girl, that our friends, those who are well-bread and discriminating, always like to see that we have a background of politeness and hospitality in our homes. And if you "shoo" your parents out of your home, without giving them a chance to "extend the hospitality" of your home, you won't give your friends an opportunity of seeing that you know what's what about the social grace of a home.

Children's Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to have a birthday party for my 12-year-old daughter. Would it be proper for me to invite six boys and six girls to the theater and then to dinner? My apartment is very small.

Or could you perhaps suggest something else? S.

Since your guests are to be such young girls and boys, it would be more appropriate for you to invite them to luncheon, and then a matinee, or to the matinee first and then to a "tea-party," preferable in your own home.

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Choosing the Card to Play

It is sometimes difficult to convince a Contract Bridge player that often the entire fate of a hand may rest upon the card played to a particular trick. The play of one card may block a suit hopelessly and thus result in defeat, while the play of another card will permit the triumphant fulfillment of the contract. It cannot be too strongly or too often emphasized that every Bridge player, before playing a single card from either Dummy or his own hand, should make a plan, subject to change at a moment's notice as to the manner in which he plans to to play his hand and as to the cards played to any particular trick. Had the player of the South hand below remembered the importance of the choice of a card, instead of being defeated two tricks at a game contract, he would have made that contract redoubled. The hand was:

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ A 10 7
♡ A Q 7 6 2
◇ A 4

West:
♠ 9 6 5 3 2
♡ K 9 5 4 3
◇ 8 3
♣ 8

East:
♠ K 8 4
♡ J 10 8
◇ K Q 7
♣ Q 7 6 3

South:
♠ Q J
◇ J 10 9 6 5 2
♣ A 10 5 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	2◇	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♣	Pass
5♣	Double	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's bid of three hearts was a slight overbid. Undoubtedly he had in mind playing the hand at a game contract in notrump and did not wish to risk the possibility of a pass. South, with his top-card tricks, necessarily continued the bidding, and North's Raise to five clubs, after the bid of four clubs was perfectly sound. South's Redouble after East doubled was based, of course, entirely on his distributional values.

West chose as his Opening lead a spade, which was won in Dummy with the Ace. The Ace of hearts was led, and the Declarer's last spade discarded. Next, the Ace of diamonds was laid down, followed by a small diamond, which East won. He then returned a heart, which South ruffed. South led another diamond and ruffed in Dummy, but at this point he made the fatal mistake of ruffing with the nine instead of the Jack. Despite East's double he did not make allowances for a possible holding of four trumps in the East hand. He next played the King and Jack of clubs, and when West failed to follow, he was forced to shorten himself in trumps to return to his own hand. As a result, he was set two tricks.

Had the third diamond been ruffed with the Jack, South could have overtaken the nine of clubs with the Ten, drawn another round of trumps, and then conceded a trump trick to the Queen, thus fulfilling his contract.

(Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your question to Josephine Culbertson, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.)

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Mystery Pain Often Due to a 'Focal Infection'

A term, "focal infection," is commonly heard in every day conversation. I wonder how many who use it actually know its meaning.

This is an expression which has come into use within recent years. In fact, it is only within the past decade that the condition has been recognized and accepted by the medical profession.

Dr. Copeland

By focal infection is meant a disturbance or infection existing somewhere in the body, but producing symptoms remote from the infected area. For example, you may have pain in a shoulder, foot or toe. Upon careful examination no infection is found at one of these points, but further investigation may reveal a focus or point of infection in the teeth, nose or tonsils, or even in the gall bladder.

The localized disturbance is the point of focal infection. The poisons or toxins generated in the infected tooth or tonsils are circulating in your body. They set upon some weak place, causing an irritation there, but so far away as to make it difficult to find the real seat of trouble.

Though the teeth, tonsils and nasal sinuses are the most common sites of focal infection, the appendix, gall bladder or other organ may be the place of diseases. Bear in mind that any infected organ of the body is a definite hindrance to good health and a stumbling block to long life.

No one will deny the dangers of a diseased appendix. Yet acute pain in the region of the appendix may be entirely absent.

Fortunately, modern methods of diagnosis and a more thorough understanding of focal infection, have minimized its dangers.

All persons who have vague and unaccounted for complaints should be warned of the possibility of focal infection. Even though your teeth appear to be in good condition and free from pain I would advise periodic X-ray examinations. As I have stated, the teeth and nasal sinuses are the most common points of focal infection and may be the seat of trouble elsewhere in the body. A simple X-ray picture will determine whether or not they are infected.

There may be a temptation to overstate the possibilities of focal infection. It cannot be denied, however, that many a happy person is ready to testify what relief, almost magical relief, has followed the clearing up of a focal infection.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A small quantity of borax, a saltspoon to a cup of melted soap, will help make a good job of the shampoo when hair is inclined to be excessively oily. Won't do a bit of harm, it will be rinsed away. Don't comb the hair until it is dry, unless you have a permanent or a natural wave that the fairy godmother gave you.

Be chary when using the scissors on nail cuticle. Never use them at the base. All right to clip away hangnails. After that's done, their job is finished.

Before treating cuticle, soak the finger tips in warm soap suds, dry and apply olive oil. Be faithful to the cuticle cream, rubbing it in every night. It will help keep the fabric of the nail delicate, smooth and of rosy color.

If a girl won't take the trouble to find out the most becoming shade of rouge and lipstick for her particular type, she'd better chuck makeup altogether.

A good way to determine what shade of rouge is right is to pinch the inner side of the arm until the flesh is red and match that color. The lipstick must be harmonious.

It is bad business to file finger nails too far down at the sides. There is a chance of causing a wound in the skin; when that happens cuticle thickens, spoils the appearance of the pretty pink thimbles.

Get the best file you can buy, one of high-grade steel and fine-cut metal that does the work quickly. A file lasts for many years. It is a good investment.

LUX TOILET SOAP
You can use Cosmetics as freely as you wish, if you guard your skin as I do—with gentle Lux Toilet Soap
ELISSA LANDI

When you remove cosmetics the Hollywood way, you guard against unattractive Cosmetic Skin . . .

POWDER and rouge every day? Skin delicate? Even then there's no need to worry about getting unattractive Cosmetic Skin.

Even though you may already have detected warning signals—tiny blemishes, enlarging pores, blackheads, perhaps—you can guard against this modern complexion trouble the Hollywood way.

Cosmetics Harmless if removed this way

Cosmetics need not harm even delicate skin unless they are allowed to choke the pores. Many women who think they are removing cosmetics thoroughly are actually leaving bits of stale make-up in the pores day after day.

Then, the pores become clogged, distended—Cosmetic Skin develops.

Lux Toilet Soap is made to remove cosmetics thoroughly. Its ACTIVE lather sinks deeply into the pores, carries away every vestige of dust, dirt, stale cosmetics. Before you apply fresh make-up—ALWAYS before you go to bed—remove stale make-up thoroughly with Lux Toilet Soap. Protect your skin—keep it lovely.

This is a midsummer's tale (no dream!) . . . and we saw it all with our own eyes!

For instance . . . a $2.75 promotion of cotton frocks that will cause much mouth-watering on your part . . . and gnashing of teeth on the part of the ones who have nothing like them! Seersuckers . . . ginghams . . . cord laces! Spectator and active sports types for everyone! Styles and colors that borrow their origin from higher priced numbers! Street types! And sizes 12 to 20 . . . and 11 to 17. Dozens and dozens . . . sisters . . . cousins . . . aunts . . . the House of Cotton has come to town!

* * *

Here's an item that's occasioned so much applause around the town that we can't resist using it in spite of the fact that it has been reordered three times and is still going strong!

It's a dress, of course! A shantung dress . . . that washes for all the world as if it were cheesecloth . . . and wears better than that . . . and looks like Mrs. Ritz-Carlton, if nothing else! A separate top with a dark skirt.

Several color combinations—as white tops and black bottoms (bla-ack bot-tom! bla-ack bottom!) pink tops and brown skirts (we thought that after all we'd better say "skirts!") . . . yellow or white tops with said brown . . . and pink with navy! Sizes are 12 to 20 . . . and the price is something to remember them by for its savings—$8.95.

* * *

Mamma-girls, please note! We haven't put you on the black list . . . we have been keeping our eyes open to find you something pretty nice and new . . . pretty fresh and Summery . . . and pretty young (none of this mature-looking styling for you even if you DO wear up to 46!)

Especially when there are sweater blouses like these priced $1.98—$2.98 — $3.98 — and $4.98! In acele and silk boucle (acele at $1.98) . . . with diagonal closings . . . ruffles 'round the neck . . . short sleeves (some of them more tailored than others) . . . and every delectable shade (with the new dark brown that is so popular). Sizes to 46.

Baby pants . . . the better to swim in, my dears! . . . the better to sun in . . . the better to cover up your little before-and-aft in 1934 beach manner! There are baby pants and others! . . . but for a really good value and style, we choose those at $2.98 which one of the stores is showing. They're all wool (NOT a yard wide! . . . yard-wide-ers shouldn't wear them anyhow!) . . . and have their tops faced back a way with white jersey. In the back a couple of bone rings have tabs pulled through them by which the pants can be made tighter 'round the middle.

And with them you wear a halter! Of linen . . . gingham . . . cotton jersey . . . or acele (synthetic, and oh, so slithery!) Prices from 59c up . . . styled smartly, in violently nautical manner, or simpler vein! In other words . . . ensemble your own beach costume and be extremely different for less than four dollars.

* * *

To burn is out of the question this summer. No longer does one see Mr. and Mrs. Charcoal sauntering along with the color baked in where it shouldn't be . . . and out where it SHOULD be!

The answer is the umbrella that you wear! Made of gingham . . . gathered on a metal circlet that springs into place and holds the fabric firm . . . yet can be bent into a flat round piece and stuck into an overnite bag! With polka dots in colors . . . and a band holding under your chin . . . and a hole in top where your scalp-lock needs ventilating! $1.25.

* * *

And as a parting shot we suggest the tea balls there are now . . . that make a whole gallon of ice tea—5c.

Or the ice cream sauces . . . to make sundaes! 15c each . . . 2 for 25c . . . 12 for $1.35. And nice gooey messes like pecan . . . maple walnut . . . caramel . . . strawberry . . . pineapple . . . and butterscotch! Good sized jars, too!

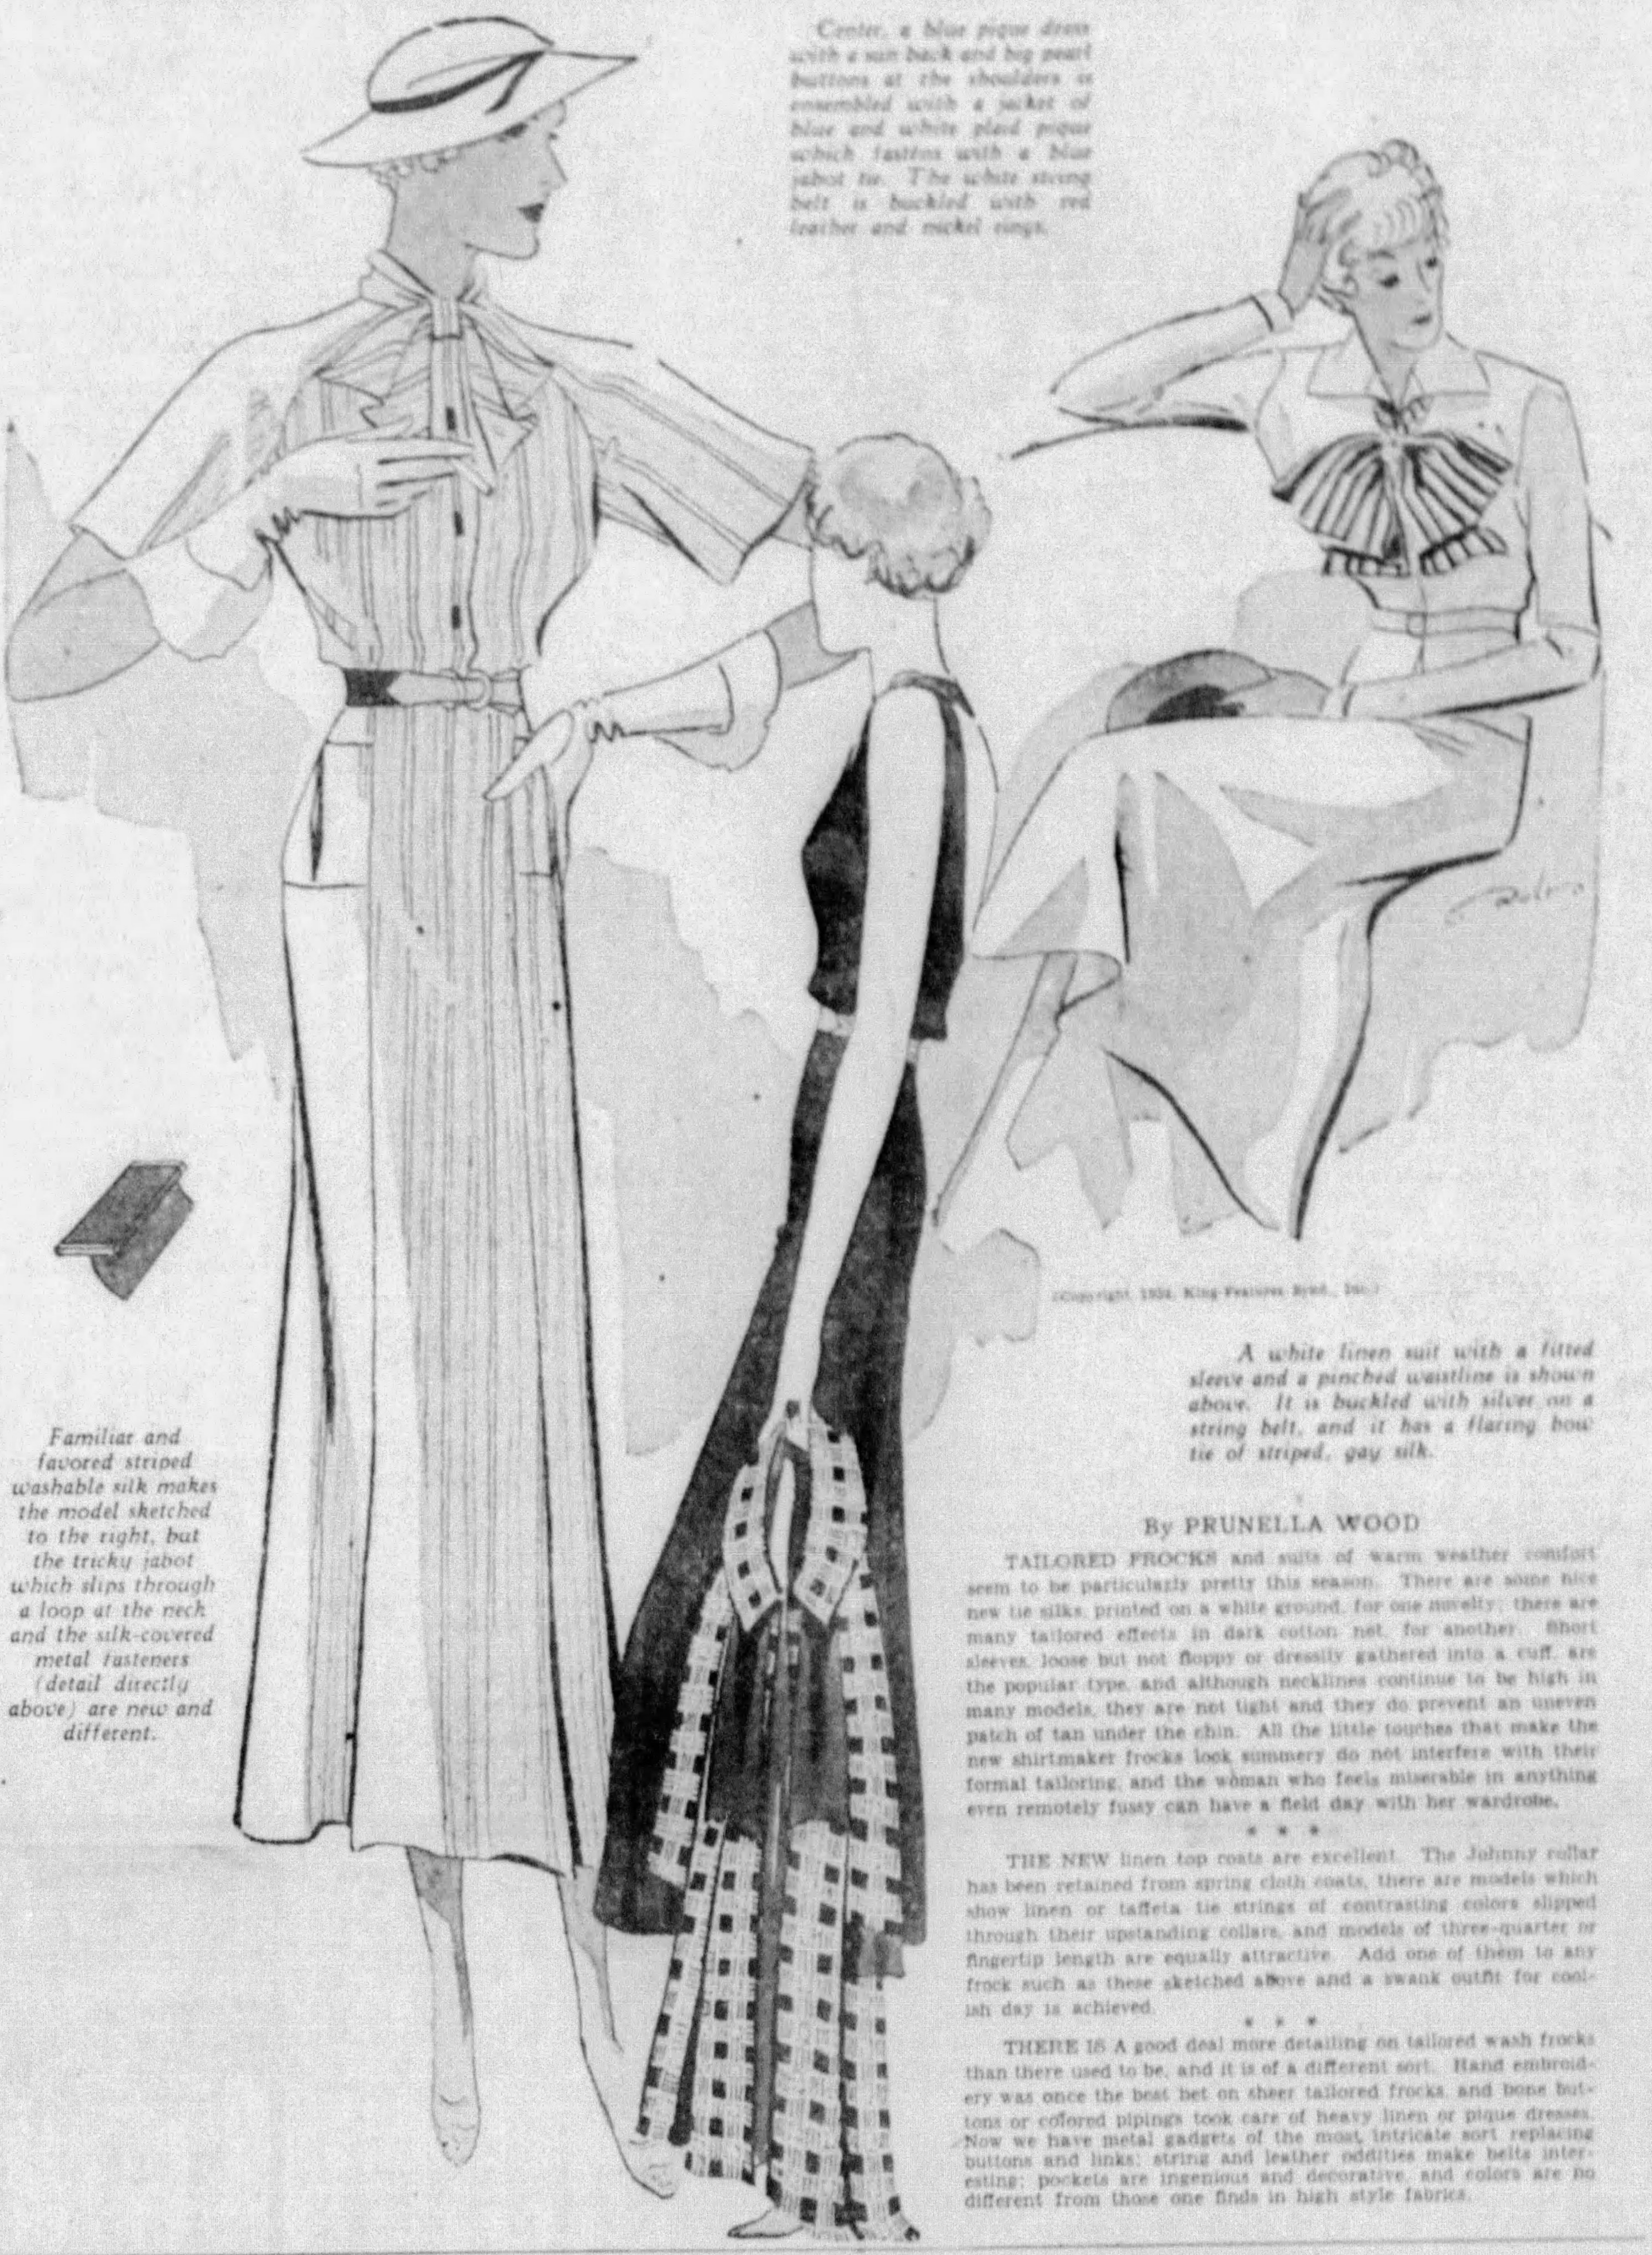
COOL OUTFITS FOR TAILORED WOMEN



Center, a blue pique dress with a sun back and big pearl buttons at the shoulders is ensembled with a jacket of blue and white plaid pique which fastens with a blue jabot tie. The white string belt is buckled with red leather and nickel rings.

Familiar and favored striped washable silk makes the model sketched to the right, but the tricky jabot which slips through a loop at the neck and the silk-covered metal fasteners (detail directly above) are new and different.

A white linen suit with a fitted sleeve and a pinched waistline is shown above. It is buckled with silver on a string belt, and it has a flaring bow tie of striped, gay silk.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

TAILORED FROCKS and suits of warm weather comfort seem to be particularly pretty this season. There are some nice new tie silks, printed on a white ground, for one novelty; there are many tailored effects in dark cotton net, for another. Short sleeves, loose but not floppy or dressily gathered into a cuff, are the popular type, and although necklines continue to be high in many models, they are not tight and they do prevent an uneven patch of tan under the chin. All the little touches that make the new shirtmaker frocks look summery do not interfere with their formal tailoring, and the woman who feels miserable in anything even remotely fussy can have a field day with her wardrobe.

* * *

THE NEW linen top coats are excellent. The Johnny collar has been retained from spring cloth coats, there are models which show linen or taffeta tie strings of contrasting colors slipped through their upstanding collars, and models of three-quarter or fingertip length are equally attractive. Add one of them to any frock such as these sketched above and a swank outfit for coolish day is achieved.

* * *

THERE IS A good deal more detailing on tailored wash frocks than there used to be, and it is of a different sort. Hand embroidery was once the best bet on sheer tailored frocks and bone buttons or colored pipings took care of heavy linen or pique dresses. Now we have metal gadgets of the most intricate sort replacing buttons and links; string and leather oddities make belts interesting; pockets are ingenious and decorative, and colors are no different from those one finds in high style fabrics.

Attention, Housewives! Here's Recipe Giving You a 'Day Off'

Here you are, housewives—just the "day-off" recipe you've been looking for. You want to take a whole day to go shopping and maybe see a movie, yet don't know how you can manage so as to have dinner ready when the family gets home?

The things that go with it, vegetables of your choice, a salad, fresh fruit or a slice of cake for dessert, can be chosen so as to need little more preparation than the actual serving.

Don't you want to be equally helpful to other women with your extra good dishes? Come and join in the better-meals movement by sending your best recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. ARMY MEN TOUR WESTINGHOUSE

The eighth annual observational tour of the East Pittsburgh works and research laboratory of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company was made yesterday by 63 members of the Army Industrial College, comprising ranking officers of all service groups. The tour was under the command of Lieut. Col. W. A. McCain.

Col. McCain after the tour said:

The officers were guests of F. A. Merrick, president of the Westinghouse company, at a luncheon. Merrick is a member of the advisory board of the Pittsburgh Ordnance District. Addresses were made by W. G. Marshall, Westinghouse executive in charge of industrial relations; Merrick, Lieut. Col. McCain, Col. H. B. Jordan, who will succeed Col. McCain as director of the industrial college, and William A. Minkler, air conditioning engineer.

In the afternoon the officers were addressed by Dr. S. M. Kintner, vice president in charge of research.

A few months ago Miss Greeno moved here from the Texas city, leaving her pet with a friend.

Recently the cat arrived at the home of Miss Greeno and aroused her by mewing at a window.

FIX QUITTING, NOTE IN MAIL

PHILADELPHIA, June 14—(AP.)—The resignation of Alvin F. Fix as collector of Internal Revenue for the Philadelphia district is reported on its way to the White House, but Fix still declines to say whether he complied with President Roosevelt's request that he quit.

Reports from Washington said the Chief Executive last night had not received the resignation, asked on the recommendation of the Civil Service Commission Tuesday after Fix was accused of soliciting political contributions from employes of his office.

Sources considered authoritative said the resignation was mailed from Fix's home in York, Pa., in a registered special delivery letter yesterday. Members of his family said he left for an undisclosed destination.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

The Private Papers of a Reporter

Thumbnail Descriptions: Will Rogers: Mark Twain in long drawers . . . Ann Harding: Cashier in a Norwegian restaurant . . . John Gilbert: Box office man in a burlesque theater . . . George Arliss: A London pawnbroker . . . Stepin Fetchit: A plumber in a hurry . . . Benny Rubin: A sidewalk salesman (who sells magic tricks) until the cop shows up . . . Groucho Marx: A dentist in the Bronx . . . Mack Gordon: Humpty-Dumpty with rhythm . . . Harry Revel: A walking Steinway . . . Marlene Dietrich: A blonde who could use some sleep . . . Kate Hepburn: Wesley Barry in skirts . . . Clark Gable: An airplane standing on its tail . . . Ben Bernie: A drunk who insists on singing . . . The Marx Brothers: Field day at the asylum . . . Buddy Rogers: A Roxy usher on his night off . . . Jimmy Durante: Al Smith gone nuts!

I wish I were in New York right now to grip the hand of Alfred V. S. Olcott, the general manager of the Hudson River Day Line . . . His telegram made me happier—it reads: "This is something you would have done for 400 crippled children. We left the Bellevue Hospital Pier aboard the Chauncey M. Depew, drafted from our Hudson River service and made a complete circle of the fleet. The children were given (in your name) ice cream cones with oodles of chawklitt as you suggested in your 'If I were Mussolini of Manhattan' Column. Regards." It's little things like that, sir, that make big paragraphs like these. Thanks.

Perhaps you've never heard of the Bay View High School, but that isn't important . . . It is just another of the thousands throughout the country. . . . But what's more important is this: A few weeks ago, Henry Tomaszewski was a hero. . . . Henry, you see, was a track star . . . The girls, and the boys, too—thought he was the future Paavo Nurmi of Milwaukee . . . Seldom did Henry run a race that he didn't win. The boy had stuff . . . But recently—along came a really important track meet and Henry was lousy . . . A few real friends consoled him as best they could and walked away . . . You know how people are—when you lose . . . The rest gave him the well-known razzberry—but loud! . . . Henry had no excuse to offer . . . The least he might have done was alibi his way out—but the kid preferred taking the rap . . . The other day doctors happened to blurt out the truth why Henry lost. . . . Two days before the event, it appears, Henry secretly donated a pint of blood to save the life of another student. . . . Therefore—If I know my pals at the FTD in Detroit—within one hour after this paragraph hits the New York newsstands—Mr. Henry Tomaszewski of the Bay View High School, Milwaukee, will receive real white orchids.

Leave it to some of those chomming ladies who scriven pieces for the papers to mess things up . . . One of them drew the titters of the crowd by reporting on the M-G-M lot Mary Robert Rinehart's son was engaegd for pictures . . . He happened to be Gottfried Rinehart, son of the world renowned "Miracle" man . . . The legend is that Hollywood will eventually be governed by the stars who have "guts"—and that the "revolution in the movies" is gaining momentum . . . Whatever became of that "If I Were the Roosevelt of Hollywood" column that was going to be contributed by three noted novelists, who know Hollywood backwards and who insist that I use their names when I use their article? . . . Which is okay with me—but where the devil is that column—so I can see some of this California one day?

The tiff has been patched up so why mention names? . . . The young leading lady broke off her engagement (with her heart) in the middle of a picture she appeared in—and handed the lad his huge square cut diamond . . . But she had been wearing that sparkler in every scene up to that time—and the alert movie assistants realized its absence would be noted . . . So what? . . . So production was held up five hours—at a cost of about $1,000 an hour, while property men and others searched the town for a duplicate . . . Such excitement . . . And then the following day, after a substitute had been found—the couple kissed and made up.

Have a little lowdown on one Hollywood marriage . . . The reason the husband of one famous foreign star (who has such shapely shafts) can overlook his frau's carryings-on is that he's living in her house on the Coast—with his girl friend, while she resides elsewhere—and you see her name in print almost daily linked to this ham or that one.

Myrna Loy Scanned By Psychologist

A mentalist reports that Myrna Loy is "not emphasizing the splendor of her pesonality," and that Stuart Erwin "can't be kidded, but likes to tease others."

Dr. Kenneth Williams, psychiatrist and psycho-analist, was sight-seeing in Hollywood studios the other day and ended up by touring the sub-consciousness of the stars. In addition to his discoveries about Myrna Loy and Mr Erwin, he found that George Brent "is given to moods of depression" and that the rough heart of Wallace Beery is often troubled by "tremendous emotionalism."

New Astaire Dance Kept Secret

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are rehearsing a new dance for "The Gay Divorcee." It is practiced behind locked doors and will be shot on a closed set. No one will see it until the film is completed. It is said to be a variation of the famous waltz originated by Vernon and Irene Castle. Zion Myers, who is producing the film, believes it will fit the current vogue for the slower dance measures.

Studio Casualities And Recovery

After six weeks on vacation and much playing of tennis, Ralph Bellamy tore ligaments in one leg the first day at Columbia in "By Persons Unknown." Phil Regan, singing cop, wears a bandaged eye. Some one tossed a nail on the Warners' set. Kay Francis is back at work after an injury to her arm.

Mr. Fluke lived in Pittsburgh until six years ago, when he went to New York. He leaves four brothers and two sisters, William L. Fluke, of Oakdale; Ira Fluke and Mrs. J. H. Newman, of Pittsburgh; Harry Fluke, Howard Fluke and Mrs. S. I. Buck, all of Altoona.

Other Times Not So Hot For Stars

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—Hello! Not that the present isn't interesting, but I do like digging up pasts. Chasing down odd things about celebs in the current spotlight, in other words.

And, just to prove I can do it, here's what some of cinema great were doing before the land of celluloid clicked them to fame:

Claudette Colbert walked the streets of New York and rode the subways delivering gowns for a dress shop.

Mae West plugged popular songs of the day on Broadway when she was 13 years old.

Bing Crosby was a lumberman trying to cut brush and succeeded only in cutting himself on both legs.

Charlie Ruggles was dispensing prescriptions from behind his father's drug store counter.

Mickey Neilan was a taxi-cab driver with a stand in front of McKee's Cafe, Spring street, Los Angeles.

Frank Lloyd was a pole-climbing lineman for the local electric power company.

Lela Rogers, mother of Ginger, wrote scenarios for Baby Marie Osborne.

Cary Grant was a member of Bob Pender's acrobats, and once worked at Coney Island.

Tom Mix was tending bar—to earn enough money to rent a horse.

And, so you see—pasts are sometimes interesting.

Movieland meanderings—Walter Futter and Ben Bogeaus departed for New York and the Carnera-Baer tussle . . . When Greta Garbo upset the entire M-G-M studio by paying a visit to the Ernst Lubitsch set, everyone wanted to know what the sphinx-like star had said. Lubitsch refused to tell. Well, we do know that she chirped:

"Hal-low, Lubitsch!" and "Ay tank Ay go now!"

"Little Morocco," the girl who swished about with the "Dance of the Seven Veils" at the Chicago Fair last year, is now wiggling for "Stamboul Quest" at M-G-M—and she's afraid to go home to her native Damascus. There unmarried girls never dance in public, in case you didn't know.

When an actor voluntarily sacrifices approximately 20 per cent of his income for the privilege of appearing behind the footlights each year, there must be something more than a mere whim behind his action.

Herbert Marshall, English actor who is the current movie rave, has arranged his screen work so that he can devote three months each season to the legitimate stage. This coming fall, Marshall will appear in a play to be produced on Broadway by Henry Miller.

"Financially this plan is anything but profitable. Roughly, I would estimate that it will cost me one-fifth of my income, but I believe that in the long run it will add many years to my usefulness in motion pictures," Herb explained.

Madame Schumann-Heink's son, Ferdinand, has clicked with another story idea. This time it's about Hollywood and the extras who trod the "Streets of Broken Dreams."

"Weather Permitting" is the title. It's the line pulled by Central Casting Office when calls are put out for the atmosphere players for location work. If the sun isn't shining, they might as well stay in bed and hide from the landlady.

* * *

Odds and Ends—John O'Hara, the New York newshawk, secured a nice writing contract with Paramount . . . W. C. Fields pust received a critical rating in London in which he was acclaimed as "better than Chaplin"—and Charley's a native, too.

* * *

Boulevard Buzzing—Jane Wyatt, New York stage beauty, and William Wyler, Universal director, are carrying on in a romantic way . . . Jack Oakie and Toby Wing are reheating their once warmish cupid stuff . . . Walt Disney is introducing a couple of new cartoon characters in the latest of his silly symphony series—Donald Duck and Peter Pig.

Too Many Women

Mona Barrie is one of the several too many women interested in Warner Baxter in "Such Women Are Dangerous," photoplay coming Monday to the Fulton screen.

Told to Stand Up Extra Stretches

On "The Scarlet Letter" set the other day, Colleen Moore made her entrance as Hester and the mob was ordered to stand up. The cameras started and Robert Vignola shouted "cut." A man with a long beard had remained down. They started the scene again. Again, the scene was stopped. The man was still sitting down.

An assistant rushed in and got his attention over the heads of the crowd. "But I am standing," the extra said frantically, stretching up on his toes. He was, his height being about five feet two.

Your Theater and Mine -:- By KARL KRUG

TALE OF TWO ACTRESSES

This is to be a tale of two actresses, one a foreign importation who rode to motion picture "stardom" on the wings of the most expensive redfire campaign conceived in the history of the screen; the other an American girl, who thumbed her nose at Hollywood's first offer and then burst into full bloom as the heroine of "Only Yesterday."

They still chuckle, in those New York places of cool drinks and hot music, over that widely fanfared search throughout Europe by a certain producer for "the sort of actress he wanted for the picture he was planning." The public was kept in close touch with the search by the best press agent in the film business.

Then she was found, brought to America and schooled in English. She was beautified, photographed, pedigreed, interviewed, psychoanalyzed; in fact, practically taken apart and remade. By the time she was launched, she was, in the language of the newly arrived battle fleet, "a full-blown battle cruiser."

The total cost of introducing that young foreign lady to American screen audiences was well over a million dollars, and she wasn't worth it. At least, she wasn't in her first picture. The red ink flowed freely when the receipts were counted.

MARGARET RUNS AWAY

Now consider Margaret Sullavan, who, unknown a year ago, established herself in the front rank of the Hollywood First Ladies by her touching and tender portrayal in "Only Yesterday." It was after stock experience in Baltimore and Boston and small parts on Broadway that Miss Sullavan won a role in the original stage production of "Dinner At Eight."

Then she had a screen offer. She turned it down. Then came another. It was for the lead in Universal's "Only Yesterday," and she accepted. If you know your movies, you know the answer. Now we are to see her in a role even more difficult than the one she handled in her cinema debut. It is the part of Lammchen in the screening of Hans Fallada's "Little Man, What Now?" due in the Stanley tomorrow.

What Margaret Sullavan accomplished as she made her bow to screen audiences was done without benefit of fanfare, ballyhoo and pyrotechnics. Aside from the routine studio press notices but little attention was paid to her. It wasn't until "Only Yesterday" was released that her bosses realized what a gem they had unearthed.

Then the press agents went to work, but Margaret crossed them by running away to an isolated vacation spot. One publicity man finally found her, and, without consulting her, arranged for long distance telephone interviews with motion picture critics in several cities. To the Broadway lads he had boasted of "the swell Sullavan stunt that would break all the papers." Imagine his embarrassment when Margaret refused to be interviewed.

GOOD NEWSPAPER 'COPY'

Whether Margaret was smart enough to know that such tactics would gain her more publicity than if she sought it is beside the point. What does matter is that her triumphant entry into the film wars was achieved without shouting from the housetops. Her ability was recognized by both the public and the critics and she immediately became "news."

Just the girl herself. She has that something that other humans want to see. Some call it genius. Newspaper writers call it color. To some it is magnetism. Whatever it is, you cannot manufacture it. It cannot be built with externals. It is there or it isn't. A beauty specialist cannot impart it. Teachers of diction, poise or histrionic trickery can help a little, but not much. That spark must be there.

Our skins need this gentle soap . . . made with olive oil!

1 "We ought to know about soaps! Aren't we as tender as can be . . . and don't we all get baths every single morning? Well, then, we want that gentle Palmolive, the soap doctors approve because it's made from olive oil!"

2 We don't blame them . . . not a bit! For Palmolive is such a pure and gentle soap. The reason is, of course, that it's made only from pure vegetable oils . . . a scientific blend of soothing olive and palm oils!

4 And when you think of the 20,000 beauty experts who say Palmolive is best to guard complexion beauty, you know it just must be a truly fine beauty soap! Why don't you try Palmolive "facials" every day?

All In A Day

Ham and Small Potatoes

THE FISHBEIN family was eating dinner. It was a hot day in the summer of 1907 and a money panic was on. Papa Fishbein, a hard-working manufacturer, had worries. But in the evening, at mealtime, he always managed to squeeze out a smile.

"How is the little lawyer getting along in school?" he asked, grinning.

The generous body of Mrs. Fishbein sat bolt upright.

"Lawyer? Lawyer?" she repeated. "What do you mean, lawyer?"

Mr. Fishbein stopped grinning.

"So what do I mean, lawyer?" he said, half-rising. "The boy is going to be a lawyer, that's what I mean. He's cut out for a lawyer, and he'll be one if I have to starve."

Mrs. Fishbein shrugged disdainfully.

"So all right," she repeated. "A lawyer he'll be, and we'll all starve. Who wants to be a lawyer? Isn't the city full of lawyers? Irving wants to be a doctor, but his father says a lawyer. All right, he'll be one." She waved a menacing fork. "Crawling on your hands and knees you'll be some day to tell me I'm right. Watch and see, you dope."

Irving looked up quietly.

"Pa," he said, "What's the difference between a straw hat and a kiss over the telephone?"

Papa glared at his pride and joy.

"Riddles you ask me," he shouted, "while your mother calls me a dope. Why do you waste time on riddles?"

"The difference," said Irving, "is that it's never felt."

Papa Fishbein held entreating palms out to his wife.

"You see what he's got in his head?" he murmured. "You see? Riddles. Jokes. Fun he wants to make. We're raising a head full of jokes. Maybe," he said, sarcastically, "Irving would rather be an actor—God forbid!"

Irving almost dropped a potato in his lap.

"Gee, Pa!" he shouted. "That's just what I want to be." . . .

You know how those things work out. Irving grew up to be neither a lawyer, a doctor, nor an actor. Jack Goode, who knew the family, remembers the day that old Mr. Fishbein made his pride and joy the office manager of the steel stairway company.

Those were war days and plenty of money was to be made. Irving would have sacrificed the huge sums he was making without batting an eye, if only he could have become an actor. There was no doubt that he was a very witty young man. There was no doubt that people literally died laughing when he started to talk. But Broadway held its nose and refused to look upon Irving Fishbein as a find.

By 1927, Irving was alone in the business. Both his mother and father had died. He owned the steel stairway business outright now, and the country was in an era of prosperity that looked as though it would go on forever. He made more money than he ever dreamed of before. But he wasn't happy.

His friends kept telling him that Lou Holtz and Eddie Cantor were completely overshadowed, when compared with his genius. They insisted that there must be something crooked about Broadway when a brilliant comedian like Irving was kept from making the world laugh.

Irving lent a happy ear to all this, and finally decided to make one more stab at becoming an actor.

He registered with a manager, and was promptly told to go off somewhere and get a little experience. Irving tried to explain that he was a natural comedian, and didn't need any experience. But the agents just laughed and said that, if he knew any more gags like that, he should stay off the stage and write continuity for the radio.

More years went by. The depression came and liked the place so well it decided to stay. It didn't worry Irving, though, because he had more money than he'd ever need.

Last week, after many years of trying, the first break came to Irving. He was sitting in the Casino de Paree with a party when a short, fat man nudged him. The man whispered in his ear and a delighted expression crept over Irving's map.

"The big producer, you mean?" he asked. The fat man nodded. "Do you think he'll give me a job?"

The fat man patted him on the back.

"See him tomorrow. You're in, kid. Told me himself that you're the man he needs."

That night was hell for Irving. It lasted an eternity before morning came. Irving was at the big producer's office a half-hour ahead of time, wading knee deep in secretaries and indigent actors. When his name was uttered, the secretary smiled and showed him inside.

"My name," said Irving Fishbein, "is Irving Fishbein. You sent for me?"

The Great Man smiled cordially.

"Absolutely," he said. "They tell me that you're quite an artist—in your own way."

"My friends think so," Irving smiled modestly.

"Well," said the producer, "we won't waste words then. I'm putting on the biggest production that this town ever saw. It will go into rehearsal about the middle of August. It's going to be the biggest, finest, most elaborate thing of its kind in the world. And I need your help as much as anybody in the cast."

"Gee," said Irving. "That's swell. I mean, I'll do my best. You certainly won't regret giving me this chance."

"I know I won't," said the producer kindly. "What I want you to do is to build two beautiful chromium steel stairways from the lobby to the balcony."

PLAYS AND PLAYERS :-: By William J. Lewis

A young man called at my desk this week and said that he would like to try his hand at reviewing pictures. He expected no compensation except the experience he would acquire. Perhaps you think it is a strange and unusual request. I don't believe it is strange, and I am sure it is not unusual, because I receive quite a number of such proposals each year. And it is not young men alone who ask for the privilege of a trial at this kind of work. There have been just about as many young women as young men.

Because I am an old softie, I presume, and don't like to discourage ambition in young people, I have at times even consented to let them try themselves. That is, I have assigned them to "cover" a certain picture, write their views about it, and turn in their "copy," even telling them the points expected to be illumined, and to do the best they could because they would be in competition with a more experienced reviewer who would look at and write about the same picture. The next day I would ask the candidate for the job of critic to compare his review with the one that had been used, and to note wherein he had fallen short.

One young woman who had written a review under such conditions revealed to me that she already had made the comparison before she came into the office, and said that she had cried about her failure. She asked for and was given a second trial, after which she never came back. A young married woman also tried for two weeks, when she, too, gave up.

I have stated that I do not think such requests strange, and the reason I don't is that I believe we are all critics at heart. I remember that when, as a kid, I sat among the gallery gods in the days before there was such a thing as a movie, all the boys in peanut heaven would make lip-smacking sounds whenever there was a love scene on the stage. Just a juvenile form of criticism, and perfectly natural for boys. The "clinches" in movies still give me a pain, but I had always thought the feeling was entirely masculine until one time a woman told me they made her sick, too. So I asked other women, and not one of them felt that the showing of long embraces and mushy or sexy love scenes were anything in the way of entertainment.

There are many other things about which most people are able to comment intelligently. Most of them know good acting from bad, the logical from the illogical, and are quick to spot any lapses. They sum it up usually tersely but eloquently with either "it's a swell show" or "it's a lousy show," and at least 90 per cent of them are correct in their decision, no matter which way it may be.

They could be a big force in the theater were their voice concentrated instead of diffused. Box office records are only one way of telling theater owners what the public opinion of a picture is. If it draws well, it may be the popularity of the star. It may be the combination of star and story. Yet there may be in it something objectionable to the majority of the audience, which is unwilling to condemn an entire picture for one fault. Should the audience forget it?

I think not. If they are critics, as many of them are, they should let the theater managers know what they think. Remembering that they want "constructive" criticism—that is, ideas for improvement.

Cortez Waits Year To Answer

Ricardo Cortez had to wait a year before he could answer a letter that came while he was making "The Phantom of Crestwood." Needing an overcoat for him in "A Hat, a Coat and a Glove," the R-K-O wardrobers fitted him with a coat Cortez recognized. It was a perfect fit because he used it in making the picture a year ago. He stuck his hand in the pocket and brought out a letter.

"I've been looking for this to answer for twelve months," he said.

Plane Crash on Screen

Scenes of the airliner crash in the Catskill Mountains in New York, that cost the lives of seven persons on board, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, with a description of the tragedy by The Globe Trotter. The pictures show the wreck of the plane scattered over the mountain peak known as The Last Chance. The charred remnants mutely tell the story of the fire that followed the crash.

From Sellick, Wash., come other pictures of a passenger plane crash but the eight occupants escaped death, only three of the passengers being slightly injured.

Olin Dutra, giant Californian, is shown beating Gene Sarazen by one stroke for the National Open Golf Championship at Ardmore, Pa.

Eight thousand Junior Birdmen attend their first airplane meet at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, and are greeted by Mayor La Guardia. The Junior Birdmen then see thrilling exhibitions.

In London 145 debutantes appear in charity ball tableaux.

King Carol of Rumania and little Crown Prince Michael are given a huge serenade by townspeople in their picturesque costumes.

Nearly 2,000 West Point Cadets hold their final parade before graduation.

Thousands of persons are shown aboard the ships of the fleet in the Hudson, at New York, with literally millions lining the shore. Never before have such crowds turned out to see Uncle Sam's ships.

In Livermore, Cal., a thrilling rodeo is staged.

Pictures of the sweep of ruin throughout the wheat belt because of the record dry spell show Kansas farms desolated. To save their cattle farmers are shown feeding them wheat that has not grown higher than a foot.

Note—Owing to the necessity [illegible] to arrange programs [illegible] schedule, it is possible some subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

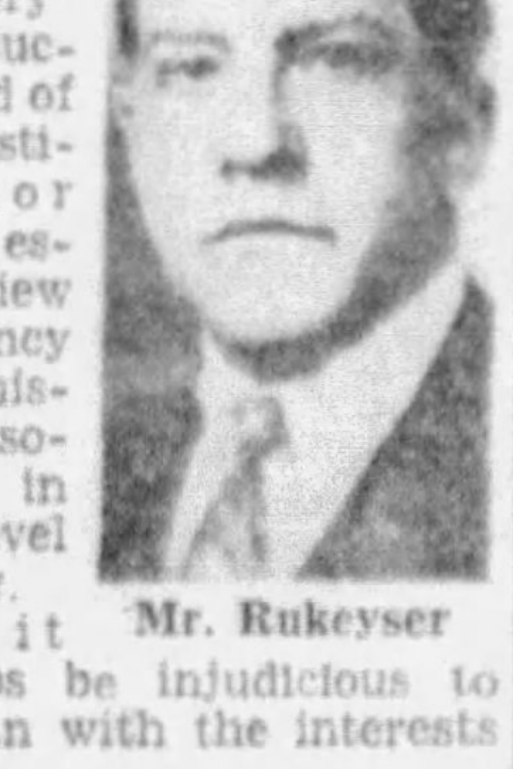
RECOVERY PLAN FAVORING BULLS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 14.—In spite of the verbal castigation of speculators and money changers, the administration is on the side of the bulls.



Mr. Rukeyser

If the "managed recovery" program succeeds, it would of course constitute a major bull factor, especially in view of the tendency of the administration to associate a rise in the price level with recovery.

Politically, it would perhaps be injudicious to identify a plan with the interests of the bulls.

As a matter of fact, when former President Hoover in the White House conferences in November, 1929, sought to oppose the deflationary forces with a constructive plan of spending, he was careful to point out that the government was interested in maintaining employment, not in supporting security prices.

President Roosevelt has been even more direct in giving the impression that, as far as he is concerned, the speculator has become the forgotten man.

PAYROLL GAINS

For every six persons gainfully employed in the United States early in the year, there was one on the public payroll, according to a survey by the national industrial conference board. Total public employes, including emergency workers, at the beginning of this year were double the number of regular workers on governmental payrolls in the United States in 1932, when government agencies accounted for 17.3 per cent of the total amount paid to employes and investors out of the national income produced in that year.

Last February the oil companies in the Far West were hopeful that order would come out of the chaos in the industry as a result of a cartel agreement. However, it was junked on account of objections raised by the Attorney General. The Pacific Coast branch of the industry, however, has worked out a new agreement along different lines, and has submitted it to the Attorney General and the National Recovery Administration for approval.

EXECUTIVE WRITES

In referring to this proposed pact, one of the outstanding oil executives of the Far West, in a message to this column, pointed out:

"There are some 725 producers in California and only 35 refiners, so in this agreement we have attempted to approach the subject of control at the neck of the bottle, the refiners. It aims to keep production within proration by each refiner agreeing not to handle the crude oil from any property which produces in excess of the allowable. Each refiner undertakes to maintain his own posted price for his own products straight through to the consumer, no matter if the route goes through several hands. Each of the smaller refiners, some 26 in number, agrees to produce gasoline in a quantity not in excess of a stipulated percentage of the consumption and in return is guaranteed a supply of crude oil sufficient to manufacture that quantity of gasoline and if he fails to market it all, is guaranteed, through the agreement, a price for his surplus equivalent to 1 per cent per gallon less than the price at which he sells the balance of his gasoline.

"It is an experiment and the agreement is made for the life of the NRA only."

Social Plan Lauded by Youth

By B. C. FORBES

THAT MANY people would like to have the government take care of them—by maintaining them when unemployed, by paying them old-age pensions, by financing homes for them, etc., etc. — is revealed by the response to the vastly comprehensive plan President Roosevelt has vaguely outlined.

Mr. Forbes

Whereas men of affairs, accustomed to dealing with realities, have doubts as to how the cost could be met, and some adult citizens are dubious as to the effect the proposed all-embracing paternalism would have upon the development of sturdy self-reliance among the younger generation, letters received by this column from folks in modest circumstances are enthusiastically for the idea.

THE BEST communication from a (presumably young) man of this class is worthy of consideration, since it reflects what unquestionably are widely held sentiments:

"My dear sir, the President does not wish to do away with self-reliance, or self-discipline. Like any decent human, he wants to make it possible for people to attain security, but he is realistic enough to admit that under the system you like so well they have not got it, nor can any considerable number of them ever get it. The figures on the number of old people who are dependent on relatives and public charity are too well known to need repetition.

"Your entire reasoning is based on the theory that the average man need only show himself willing to work, to plan, to discipline himself, to deny himself today's pleasures for tomorrow's contingencies, and he must win out in life's struggle.

"All history is a denial of this theory, and all experience shows it to be utterly false. Our young people can no longer be fooled like they once were. Life has forced them to face bitter realities. At a time when the 'paradox of plenty' is a festering sore, when maldistribution of necessities is the greatest curse of the world, you can still obscure progressive thought by calling for 'the sacrifice to save,' for 'self-denial.'

"Why in the name of simple reason call for self-denial? Why should a man deny himself? Is your Puritan psychology ingrained, and must you insist fanatically on self-denial as a punishment for the crime of having been born? Is it true that the soul can only be made worthy of a figurative heaven by the wearing of sackcloth and ashes?

"Will mankind be sapped by paternalism, or will common sense demand the good things of life for all, instead of for the wealthy few?

"Will the great mass of mankind, or, to narrow it down, the American people, attempt to develop sturdy manhood, the soul, and sterling character through starvation and denial? Or will they perceive that the means is here to enjoy themselves, and take those means?

"No, Mr. Forbes, the government under President Roosevelt has realized that what Stuart Chase calls 'the economy of abundance' is here and getting more so all of the time.

"The government is only giving shape and direction to the national understanding. The people have slumbered, but now they are awakening. No longer can any great number be blinded by dragging the red herrings of thrift, self-denial, and the other homely virtues, so-called, across the trail. These qualities were virtues in the prairie wilderness, when capital had not been developed. Today the emphasis is on getting goods into the hands of the consumer, which means literally everybody."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT's proposed "social" scheme constitutes the most momentous proposal now before the American people. Instead of coming under the head of the New Deal, it can appropriately be called the New Deal.

Some ideals are attainable; others are found unattainable in this work-a-day world.

Whether this particular idealism can be harnessed to realism, whether the nation can supply the necessary billions on top of all the other multiple billions already spent and the other billions already appropriated, and whether the social, economic and moral results would be likely to prove satisfactory, are questions deserving the most careful, searching, dispassionate consideration.

Scoffing at "thrift, self-denial and other so-called virtues" may help to bring a New Deal of a kind; but will it last? Old-fogies will doubt it.

Investment Bankers Hit Snag on New Law

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

INVESTMENT BANKERS are facing a knotty problem in conforming to the provision of the Banking Act of 1933 which forbids them to receive deposits or to engage in commercial banking after June 16.

The rule appears quite simple at first glance. The section in the law contains only 37 words, but so many complications have been encountered that the Investment Bankers' Association of America has found it necessary to retain seven firms of attorneys to prepare a 4,000-word memorandum to interpret the law.

In the natural course of their business, investment bankers receive funds in many ways in the interest of their customers. The question immediately arises, when is such money a deposit and when is it merely incidental to the conduct of the business?

* * *

Study Covers Fourteen Cases

THE 4,000-WORD study covers fourteen or more circumstances under which funds received by investment bankers may or may not be deposits.

Many customers have been in the habit of keeping money with investment firms for their own convenience and with no immediate intention of having the money invested. The memorandum declares that such funds constitute deposits and are forbidden.

On the other hand, funds placed with an investment banker which are to be subject to orders for the purchase of securities within a short time are not considered to be commercial deposits. The proceeds from the sale of securities which are left with investment bankers pending orders for reinvestment also are not considered to be deposits. However, if these funds should be left with the investment firm for a long period of time without any specific orders the account begins to fall in the deposit type and should be examined in order to determine whether or not it involves a prohibited transaction.

* * *

Decision Rests On Good Faith

THE TEST as to when a deposit is not a deposit should be that of reasonableness and good faith, according to the study, which continues:

"The mere fact that a credit balance arises in favor of a customer in connection with his security account does not mean that there has been a violation of the statute, nor does the mere fact that a customer's credit balance is allowed to continue in existence for a period of time. So long as the credit balance is reasonably incidental to the carrying out of security transactions in connection with such account, it is believed the balance should not be viewed as a 'deposit' prohibited by the statute."

The report suggests that funds transmitted for investment should be accompanied or followed within "a week or two" by actual instructions. Funds from sale of securities and awaiting reinvestment "should normally be covered by investment instructions within a period of, say, 30 days." When a firm has unlimited discretion, pursuant to written agreement, this is considered equivalent to instructions, but funds should be invested within a reasonable time.

BANK DEMAND DEPOSITS ON INCREASE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, June 14.—The general position of the stock market, from a chart standpoint, is one of having broken out of a trading range on the topside, and then run into resistance at the 100 level (Dow Jones). Here it has stuck for several days.

Wall street is not 100 per cent bullish, but the predominant sentiment is one of hopefulness and increasing confidence that the market will do better. Let us examine the forces at work.

1—As to the underlying conditions, probably the most important is the prospect of increased government spending. This has at least three aspects: (a) As counteracting the reaction in business, (b) as stimulating business this fall, (c) as leading to further public debt and thus to inflation. Looked at in any one of these ways it is considered "bullish" marketwise.

No careful student has ceased to consider inflation as a factor in the market. In fact, so many of the more farsighters have made provision against the thing that I am inclined to think that the average investor is in the attitude of really wanting a little of it. (This, by the way, illustrates how the barriers to control gradually break down—"vice is a monster," etc.

RESERVES PILE UP

In this connection, we should note the continued piling up of demand deposits and the huge "excess reserves" in the banks. The effectiveness of all this "credit" is limited by the fact that it is artificial and due to government borrowing and spending, but it is hard to see how it can help but "break loose" some day.

The silver bill is about to be passed.

2—As to more immediate factors pertaining to business, one notes first the growing probability that no general steel strike will be called. There may be sporadic walkouts, but nothing more. Probably the administration will now ask and get emergency powers to deal with strikes, in lieu of the Wagner bill.

There are apparently well-founded reports that "mortgage money" is loosening up. This, together with the little spurt in building trades.

Some response to automobile price appears to have occurred. A fair volume of locomotive and freight car business has been booked by Baldwin and Pullman, respectively.

We may add that securities financing prospects have picked up following the amendment of the securities act, and the new stock exchange regulation act is being accepted by Wall street in a good spirit.

3—As to the more technical indications, I note the following: The more comprehensive "averages" closed at a new high for the move on Tuesday. The most active issues were up. Railway stocks have shown strength of late. Bonds made new highs on the move.

STOCKS HIGHER

A fair sized handful of stocks have made new highs for the year, including Dome and Walgreen, among those which have been mentioned in this column.

On the other hand, we must note the disturbed condition of foreign finances, particularly in Germany. Steel production seems to be slipping, and railway car loadings seem likely to show less than the usual seasonal increase for last week. The textile industry is not in good shape, and the oil industry at the moment is unsettled by overproduction.

The short interest has been greatly reduced, while public interest in the market is, on the whole, at low ebb. Nor is there in sight anything to bring the public in in any large way.

Finally, the action of the market in the last few days may be described as "backing away" from an upper resistance.

It seems well to be cautious here. Eventually higher prices are to be expected, but I would prefer either to buy a little cheaper, or to let the market demonstrate that it has the steam to go through.

Cattle, Grain Reduction To Continue

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Cattle and wheat reduction will continue into next winter, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace indicated today as his department pushed a program aimed at eradication of approximately 200,000,000 head of surplus stock.

Developments in the department's plans were:

Wallace's prediction of a 135,000,000-bushel wheat carry-over as of July 1, 1935, despite the present drought, and probable continued acreage curtailment next year.

Announcement that a huge surplus of dairy and beef cattle must be thinned by 1,500,000 to a probable 200,000,000 head, with an acute stock feed shortage expected which will force a continuation of the campaign through this summer and into next winter.

Addition of 172 counties to those listed as in the secondary drought area making a total of 732 counties in 21 states now involved in the calamity.

The carry-over of wheat is based on the present consumption figures coupled with the present carry-over and the crop which is expected to survive the drought.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Stocks were a trifle nervous today in the face of a possible steel strike, the German moratorium on foreign debts and further heaviness of grains.

The majority of traders found side-line seats quite comfortable and transactions were few and far between. There were several noticeable declines, due to special situations, but prices, as a whole, were rather narrow. The oils and some of the utilities were resistant. The lack of any sizeable liquidation, under the circumstances, was encouraging to proponents of the advance.

Wheat dropped more than a cent a bushel and the other cereals recorded lesser recessions. Realizing on news of additional rains in the drought districts appeared. Cotton and rubber drooped, but silver was fairly steady. With the exception of another relapse in German issues, bonds did little. United States government securities again displayed a firm tone. The dollar held about even in foreign exchange dealings, although the reichmark was heavy.

Shares of Auburn Automobile lost more than 3 points. At the same time slightly higher prices were recorded by Standard Oil of California, Socony-Vacuum, Great Western Sugar, American Sugar, American Commercial Alcohol, Consolidated Gas, North American and du Pont.

Announcement from the steel workers' convention at Pittsburgh that there would be no strike today, and indications that the walk-out decision might be further delayed pending final Congressional action on the President's four-point peace program, renew hopes in the financial district that settlement of the controversy may be near at hand.

While reports from the various steel centers indicated that most of the mills have completed preparations to meet the strike, if it comes, estimates of the number of workers that might be involved varied. The American Iron and Steel Institute stated that a recent vote, under the employe representation plan, showed 85 per cent of the workers did not want a strike. Union officials disputed this figure.

The effect of the German moratorium on American markets was considered problematical. Some foreign observers believed the present situation has been largely discounted here. Most banking quarters were studying carefully the prospects of Germany devaluating the mark. Should the reich reverse its present attitude against devaluation, it was conceded that other foreign currencies would be adversely affected and that America might be finally forced to again boost the price of gold as a defensive measure.

WHEAT PRICES TAKE PLUNGE

Rallying at the last, wheat closed nervous, 1⅝@2⅛ under under yesterday's finish, September 94⅞@95, corn ⅛ off to ½ up, oats 18@½ down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

'BIG BREWING,' FOLLANSBEE SELL OFF

The price movement was erratic in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today but volume of business remained light and the usually active securities showed only minor changes. Pittsburgh Brewing preferred took a sharp drop at the start, selling off 2½ points as compared with its last previous price, recorded Tuesday. The stock has been quiet for several weeks with a "thin" market prevailing. The company's 6 per cent bonds were firm. A $1,000 block of the issue sold at 100, up ½ from the preceding sale, made late last month.

Fuel stocks were quiet but the group held very close to the previous session's quotations. Follansbee Brothers preferred slipped back a point to $6 on a few sales. The low on the stock this year was $5, registered when receivership proceedings were instituted several weeks ago. Vanadium Alloys Steel was unchanged on a sale at 19.

FOREIGN SALES HURT COTTON

NEW YORK, June 14.—Cotton futures opened easy, 8 to 12 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables, liquidation and foreign selling. July, 12.03; October, 12.27; December, 12.38; January, 12.43; March, 12.55; May, 12.63.

The selling was prompted by a favorable view of the over night weather reports from the south, but initial offerings were absorbed by covering or trade buying and prices steadied up a few points from the lowest right after the call.

Covering was encouraged by some uneasiness as to the further course of the storm reported in the gulf, but this threat did not seem strong enough to bring in much buying and after selling up from 12.24 to 12.31, October eased off to 12.24, again with the general list showing net losses of 13 to 15 points at the end of the first half hour.

After showing net losses of about 12 to 15 points the market steadied on covering and trade buying. Trading, which had been fairly active at the start, tapered off later and the market was about 7 points net lower. The general list at that time was 9 to 12 points net lower. The census report placed domestic consumption for May at 519,765, compared with 620,561 last year. This was slightly below expectations, but without apparent effect on the market.

Market Action Reflects Lack of Leadership; Small Investors Buying Stocks

Action of the stock market today continued to indicate lack of aggressive leadership. Brokers said buying was coming in on a modest scale from investors and other interests bullish on business prospects for the second half of the year and demand from those sources ate into the increased offerings which appeared as the market returned yesterday to the recent rally tops. However, holders of stock were not very anxious to sell, as was reflected in the contraction of trading volume as the market eased off.

Very few stocks in recent months have sold below the extremes of the 1929-1932 bear market established two years ago. Those which have were mainly among utilities, a group that has not been able to get a comfortable distance away from the bear market depths. Auburn Automobile, once a spectacular favorite of bull traders, joined the thin group which have the dubious distinction of making new lows lately. A further decline carried it below 27, to the lowest price recorded in at least 10 years. Its 1932 low was 28¾. In the final stage of the bull market in 1929, it touched 514. Further liquidation in the stock was prompted by omission of the dividend on it earlier in the week.

The upturn in prices of hogs and hides the past few days has attracted renewed buying to packing company shares. Packers sold in Boston yesterday a large lot of hides at a full cent a pound advance from early June levels. Although leading packing companies have been paying about 18 per cent more in wages since the NRA started to function, they have managed to hold down costs in other directions. As a result, they were able to cover their dividend requirements for the first seven months of their fiscal year, or to the end of May.

Industrial shares on the average are about 10 points under the tops for the year established early in February. However, individual issues have been moving to new peaks for the year or longer the past few days. Among outstanding issues which have topped their previous peaks this year are American Sugar Refining common and preferred; Dome Mines, Eastman Kodak, Kennecott Copper, International Salt, Liggett & Myers B, Reynolds Tobacco B and Pillsbury Flour. These are all dividend payers and illustrate the current character of the buying, which has been for income rather than for immediate appreciation in market value.

With Congress about to adjourn, Wall street figured the utilities would get a respite from further proposals damaging to their position. Sentiment has been more friendly to public utility shares since the proposed American Telephone and Telegraph inquiry was voted down for the present. Hence utility shares began to reflect the steady gain in recent weeks in power production. Leading power shares held firm today in the face of easing tendencies in the general list.

Although lower rates and increased operating costs have prevented the utilities from translating expanding gross revenues proportionately into net income, they have been showing some increase on the profit-making end. Electric output for the week ended June 9 made a sharp and unexpected recovery from the decline in the week which included Memorial Day. Power output holds around peak levels for the year, in spite of slackening of industrial operations in textile, motor and other lines recently.

OPPOSE 'MOKAN' PIPE PLANS

WILMINGTON, Del., June 14.—(AP.)—The answer of Franklin B. Richards, Robert W. Wooley and A. P. McManus, comprising the New York protective committee for the stock of the Missouri, Kansas Pipe Line Company, has been filed in Chancery Court, opposing the approval of an agreement of the Missouri-Kansas stockholders' protective committee.

The agreement is opposed, the answer states, on the grounds that it is a plan of the Columbia Oil and Gas Corporation and the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation to acquire complete control of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company for an inadequate compensation and to obtain full and complete release of all liabilities.

Stephen J. McTague, of New York, was appointed as commissioner to take testimony of witnesses in connection with the petition. Chancellor Wolcott directed the commissioner to make a report on his findings on or before July 26.

FLORIDA PHOSPHATE EXPORTS

Phosphate exports from Florida in May were the largest in any one month during the past four years, 75,990 tons. Other months this year ranged from 35,000 to 65,000 tons. May's lumber exports passed recent averages, with a total of 3,051,000 feet. Other exports were 24,736 cases of canned grapefruit and nearly 20,000 gallons of grapefruit juice.

NEW ENGLAND STORE SALES

In May, department store sales in New England increased 2.9 per cent over a year ago, a rate which was below the gain of 13.6 per cent shown for the first five months as a whole. In Boston the total was just in line with a year ago, while Massachusetts had an increase of 1.5 per cent, this being the smallest of any New England state.

CARNERA AND BAER AWAIT BELL FOR TITLE GO

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Baer Has Winning Stuff. Chance Depends on Head. Worry May Hurt Primo. ♦ Braves Let Star Slip. Olympic Prospect Looms. Earning of Golf Titles.

In the most muddled situation that ever preceded a world heavyweight championship fight, it still looks as though the possibility of Primo Carnera's being toppled from his throne in tonight's battle will depend entirely on the degree of intelligence that Max Baer shows in his system of ring action. Carnera, far from being a great champion, can be beaten in spite of his tremendous size, and Baer has the physical stuff with which to do it, but Max must apply that stuff properly to make it count.

Primo Carnera

Carnera is too good a defensive boxer to be reached effectively with wild swings. Neither can Baer outbox him. Max's chance lies in cutting out the clowning and carrying on a crouching preliminary body attack that may eventually open the way for him to get a shot at the titleholder's jaw. A 260-pounder who couldn't hurt old Tommy Loughran in 15 rounds certainly can't hurt Baer, whereas Baer has the punching power to hurt even such a giant as Carnera. If Max doesn't let his light-heartedness carry him to the point of clowning he will be in the better mental state of the two, for Carnera is reported worried, and against an opponent in that condition a light-hearted fighter always has an edge. Baer can win if he keeps his mind on the right track.

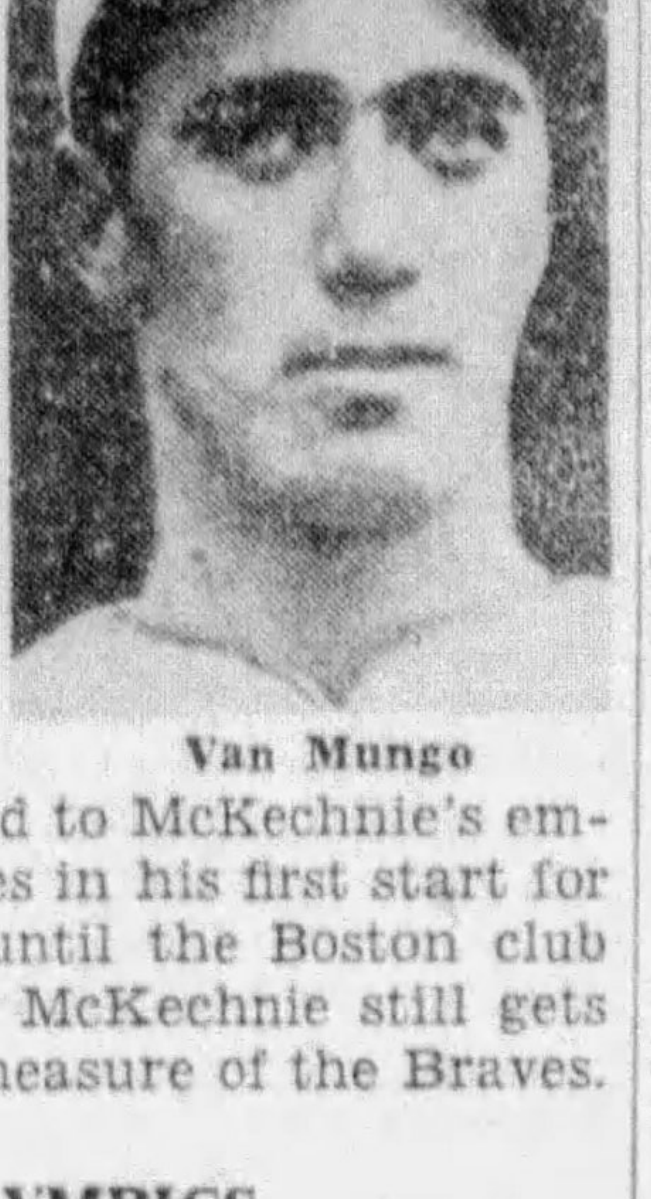
FIRST TITLE CHANCE FOR JEWISH HEAVY

Not only will Baer be the first Jewish world champion in the heavyweight class if he defeats Carnera, but he is the first Jewish heavy ever to get even as far as to enter the ring in the role of a challenger for the big title. There have been other good heavies to represent that race, but they never got a chance at the crown. The most famous Jewish heavyweight in the early days of the fight game was Daniel Mendoza, born in London in 1764. He was the most scientific boxer of his time, and held the English heavyweight championship from 1792 to 1795, though weighing only 160 pounds and meeting all comers. In 1820, when 56, he fought Tom Owens for the equivalent of $250 a side to settle an old grudge, and lost in 12 rounds.

The greatest of the later Jewish heavyweights was Joe Choynski, who resided in Pittsburgh for a long time after quitting the ring, being boxing instructor of the P. A. A. and a member of the first city fistic commission. Choynski, like Mendoza, had to give away a lot of weight in meeting the big fellows, but he fought them all, from 1884 to 1903—Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Johnson, Maher, Ruhlin, Tom Sharkey, Goddard, McCoy, Hall, O'Brien and many more. Four of the men he met—Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries and Johnson—later won the heavyweight championship, but Joe never got a chance in a title match.

MUNGO PASSED UP BY SCOUT FOR BRAVES

There isn't a club in the major baseball leagues that wouldn't pay a fancy price right now for Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodgers' fast-ball star, yet Ed Murphy relates that one of them once passed Van up as not worth $2,500. Bill McKechnie and the Braves were the losers through the faulty judgment of a scout while Mungo was pitching for Winston-Salem in the Piedmont League in 1930, when McKechnie received a tip on the youngster and also learned that his employers were eager to sell him for $2,500 to pay off a debt to their league.



Van Mungo

Bill sent Dick Rudolph to inspect Mungo, and Dick didn't like the pitcher at all. Mungo was too wild and never would do the Braves any good, Rudolph reported, so McKechnie lost interest in the hurler. Soon afterward, Nap Rucker took a look at Mungo for the Dodgers, recommended his purchase, and after spending a season with Hartford for development, Van proceeded to make his mark in the big show. To add to McKechnie's embarrassment, Mungo shut out the Braves in his first start for Brooklyn. It wasn't long after that until the Boston club gave Rudolph his walking papers, and McKechnie still gets a headache every time Van takes the measure of the Braves.

NEW SPRINT STAR FOR NEXT OLYMPICS

They breed great sprinters on the Pacific slope almost as rapidly as they produce tennis stars. Now comes a new one named George Anderson to join the line that has included Charley Paddock, Frank Wykoff, Bob Kiesel and others. Anderson is just a freshman at the University of California, but already he is being tipped to become one of America's best bets in the 1936 Olympic Games. In a night meet at Los Angeles he surprised the experts by running 100 meters in 10.4 seconds. Few men have beaten that time. The world record is only 10.3 seconds. Anderson is said to have done 100 yards in 9.4. He has speed, power and the will to win, and coast critics see in him a potential world beater.

OPEN TITLES TERMED RARELY EARNED

As golf experts continue to hold post-mortems over the recent national open tournament at Merion, they may find in the way the title slipped away from Gene Sarazen to Olin Dutra by one stroke some new support for Sarazen's old contention that the open crown is rarely earned. Gene always has argued that most opens are lost rather than won, his idea of winning a championship being to earn it by every blow of the club against the best game of opponents rather than have it fall into your lap like a ripe apple.

Gene Sarazen

Sarazen says that while he has won the United States open only twice, it is satisfying to know that he earned both of those titles by strong finishes under pressure. At Skokie, he trailed Jones by four strokes, Mehlhorn by four and Black by three as the last lap started. None of his three rivals cracked, and he had to shoot a 68 to nose them out. It was the same at Fresh Meadow, where he had to cover the last 27 holes in 98 to grab the title, finishing with a 66, the greatest spurt of his career. On the other hand, Sarazen recalls that several titles have eluded him because of late slips. He had last year's British open in his pocket until a bunker swallowed him on the final lap. He took an 8 on a par 5 hole and lost by 2 strokes. And at Merion last week a disastrous 7 on the treacherous par 4 No. 11 hole robbed him of another crown. But with all due respect to Sarazen's theory, it would appear that the contestant who performs well enough to keep out of trouble, and avoids making those costly slips and mistakes, is playing the better golf and deserves the reward that comes to him. The pay-off is, as it should be, on the best golf.

PIRATES SHOW IMPROVED ATTACK

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Piling up a total of 17 hits, nine of which were extra-base blows, the Pirates overwhelmed the Dodgers yesterday in the second clash of the series. The score was 15 to 2.

The Buccos put the game away in the second round when they scored seven runs. Fluke hits started the rampage, but after the barrage got under way, the home players dotted the landscape with line drives.

Bill Swift pitched shutout ball for the Pirates after the Dodgers had scored twice in the first round. Herring was shelled off the slab in the second by the Pittsburgh batters. Munns and Beck finished for the Dodgers.

The swatting of Suhr, Vaughan and P. Waner featured the game. The three sockers amassed 10 safeties.

Chillysauce.

Mid-June finds the two major baseball races in a lovely tangle that makes for interest everywhere, but countless friends of the game are convinced that the lively ball has brought harm to the sport.

Approximately 500 home runs have been recorded in the National and American leagues with the race only one-third run. The cheapening trend thus given what should be the greatest swat of the sport cannot fail to bring ill results.

Otis Crandall, coach of the Pirates and a man who knows as much about slab genius as any person in the game, points out that the lively ball has developed a situation that makes it unusual when a starting pitcher finishes a ball game. Crandall said:

"The lively ball with its high scores means there are runners on the paths practically all the time. This of course demands many more pitches per game, not to mention the strain a hurler feels when toiling with the runners on the sacks. The rabbit ball, therefore, necessitates a larger pitching staff, and it has taken the beauty of smart baserunning out of the game."

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: SQUARE AND CIRCLE—A circle of 2.55 inches in diameter will have the same circumference as a two-inch square, namely eight inches (except for a microscopical centimal fraction—plus—in favor of the circle. But, while the area covered by the square will be four square inches, the circle will encompass an area of 5.1 square inches plus. THE INLAND SEAPORT—Although it is nearly 1,000 miles inland, Montreal is Canada's principal port of entry and holds a position in ocean navigation second only to the harbor of New York in North America. It lies at the foot of a great system of rivers, lakes and canals. The ship channel below Montreal permits the passage of some ocean vessels, more than 1,200 of which enter this inland harbor annually.

MORGAN NEW SECOND

One of the eleventh-hour arrangements will send Dumb Dan Morgan, veteran manager of boxers, who handled Jack Britton, the welterweight champion, and Battling Levinsky, the light-heavyweight champion, in his time, into Carnera's corner as one of the seconds. He will take the place of Bill Duffy, one of Primo's managers, who is in the custody of Uncle Sam for a federal offense. Jack Dempsey will be near Baer's corner to lend advice.

The fast-speeding hours before the fight find the experts divided in their opinions as to the likely winner. Most of them string along with Carnera because he is the champion and a good boxer. But the Baer shouters look for their man to discount Primo's superior skill with his punch. There is an almost unanimity of opinion as to how the battle will be waged, however. Baer is expected to go to work on Carnera's body with left hooks to make him drop his hands and then shoot the works with his swinging right to the head. It is generally accepted that if Primo has a weak spot it is in the body.

On the other hand, the champion is expected to rely upon his speed in moving about and his long left hand to keep the challenger at bay and to call upon right uppercuts when Maxie rushes in to close quarters.

A rough and ready battle is anticipated. Baer is that sort of a fighter, and Primo can use his weight to good advantage when he wants to. Both fighters have been warned that they will be penalized for foul punching, but they are not likely to pay much heed to this injunction in the heat of the fray.

BAER POPULAR

Although Carnera is the money favorite, Baer is the sentimental choice of the fans to win. He appeals to the imagination, possessing color, personality and all of the other vestments which go to make up fistic "it." A victory for him will be popular, while a successful defense of the title by Carnera is not likely to be hailed with delight. It is the old story of mob psychology. The paying customers want to sit in to see a new champion, an American, at that, crowned. Maxie's public demands it. It's a case of off with the old, on with the new. The king is dead, all hail his successor.

Many Pittsburghers will be at the ringside. Former Mayor John S. Herron is here. So is Harry L. Neaman, and so is John Hernon, the fight promoter. And so is Jack Zivic, the former welterweight threat, along with Boxing Commissioner W. D. McClelland. Zivic, by the way, likes Carnera to win.

In addition to his other advantages, Carnera also has the edge in the matter of experience. He has been fighting almost a year longer than Baer and has had almost twice as many fights. He has three bouts since Max last fought, the last two of them going the full route of 15 rounds, with

CARNERA WEIGHS 263¼ POUNDS, BAER 210 FOR TITLE FIGHT

BOTH BATTLERS PRONOUNCED IN TOP FORM

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, weighing 263¼ pounds, will have a 54-pound pull in the weights when he defends his title against Max Baer in Madison Square Garden Bowl tonight. Baer weighed exactly 210 pounds.

Both boxers were reported in "excellent condition" by physicians of the New York State Boxing Commission, who examined them before they stepped on the scales at the commission offices in Centre street.

MAX QUIET, SERIOUS

The California challenger was first to appear, coming from his mid-town hotel apartment, and for the first time since the fight was signed appeared to be taking the matter seriously. His customary smile was missing and his agile tongue quiet as the doctors thumped his chest, had him say "A-a-a-h" and took his blood pressure and heart action.

Carnera, driving in from his New Jersey camp at Pompton Lakes, was a few minutes late, but soon followed Max on the scales and submitted himself to the physical examination.

PRIMO'S WEIGHT SURPRISE

The weight of Carnera came as something of a surprise. The big Italian had been ailing from a sore throat and reportedly losing weight, but he tipped the scales at just about the figure if not a bit beyond, what he said he should weigh for his title defense.

Big Primo weighed 260½ for his fight against Jack Sharkey a year ago when he won the title and weighed 272 for his 15-round title defense against Tommy Loughran in Miami, March 1.

Baer's weight of 210 pounds was seven pounds over what he scaled for his last fight, against Max Schmeling last June, but was what his trainer had figured as his best weight for the Carnera brawl.

PRIMO SHUNS BANTER

During the business of weighing and completing the final examination of the two fighters, Baer, with a theatrical gesture, offered to bet Carnera $5 he would "lick" him, but the huge Italian merely shook his head and declined to enter an exchange of repartee.

Carnera received a cablegram from the secretary of Premier Mussolini of Italy. It read:

"Remember, you must win."

The verdict of Dr. William Walker, official examiner, after making his third test of their condition within a week, was that both fighters were in "very good" physical shape. He added:

"The only difference is the naturally more nervous temperament of Carnera, whose pulse rate was 68, as compared with Baer's perfectly normal 62. Apparently Baer's is a temperament that simply does not know how to worry. They are both in very good physical condition."

The challenger appeared a trifle miffed because he made a stage entrance before the scene was all set. He roared:

"Look at me. I'm mentally at ease. Who does that big guy think he is to keep me waiting?"

Carnera appeared a few minutes later, leisurely stripped and stepped on the scales.

BOOKS NEAR CITY TITLE

If Books get over the present week without a defeat in the City League, the other clubs will be ready to concede the first half title to the Olympia Park crowd. This evening the J. J. Vaughans make the trip to the Mounties' field, making the fourth game of the week for the defending champions.

With five games facing him on Monday, Playing Manager Heinie Boll was feeling far from happy over the outlook, with some of his stars, including himself, on the injured list.

Other games this evening find Bill Dalzell taking his Homewood club to McKinley Park to meet the Beltzhoover nine and Dormont should attract a large crowd when it stops off at Mt. Oliver.

In last evening's tussles, Parmelee, with Laughlin hurling seven-hit ball, defeated the J. J. Vaughans, 17 to 2, the victor banging out 22 safe hits. Homewood upset Dormont, 9 to 5, the victory giving Bill Dalzell's team a firm grip on second place.

Playing at New Kensington, the Crawfords defeated the New Kensington Elks, 7 to 1.

Bricker Victor In College Golf

The second annual tri-state intercollegiate golf tournament came to a close yesterday at the St. Clair Country Club, Jack Bricker, of Western Reserve University, of Cleveland, replacing Claude McKee, of Pitt, as match play champion. Bricker won the title when he defeated his teammate, John Jaeger, in the 36-hole final, 7 and 6, in which he displayed spectacular golf.

JOHNNIES TIE FOR THIRD

Figuring in a tie in the Mid-Atlantic League standings seems to have become a habit with the Johnstown Johnnies.

Yesterday, and most of the time in the past two weeks, the Johnnies were tied with Beckley in second place. Now, as the result of a 5-4 defeat last night by Zanesville, the Johnnies are tied with Springfield for third place.

The Dayton Ducks strengthened their hold on the league leadership by defeating the Charleston Senators, 9-2, in the opening game of a series.

The Ducks thus prevented a gain on the league pinnacle by the Beckley Black Knights, who also won, toppling Springfield by a 14-2 score.

In the fourth game, Huntington downed the Wheeling Stogies, 4-2, although Pitcher Davis, for Wheeling, allowed only three hits.

GARDINER, ACE ICE GOALIE, SUCCUMBS

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—Charles (Chuck) Gardiner, called the greatest goal tender hockey has ever known, is dead—a crushing blow to the championship aspirations of the Chicago Blackhawks, of which he was the captain.

The fiery, black-haired young Scotchman died unexpectedly last night in Winnipeg, his home town, the victim of a tumor of the brain. He had been ill only since Sunday. The seriousness of his condition did not become known until yesterday, when he was rushed to a hospital. He was 29.

Gardiner's name was known everywhere hockey is played. A model young man in private life, who neither drank nor smoked, Gardiner was an inspiration to the entire Blackhawk team, which swept to victory in winning the Stanley Cup championship this year. Twice in the last three years he was awarded the George Vezina trophy as the National Hockey League's leading goalie. Nearly every all-star team of the last seven years listed him.

Straight-Heat Wins Mark Oval Races

Straight heat victories featured the Schenley Matinee Club's weekly program of harness races at Schenley Oval yesterday afternoon. Only one of the four events resulted in a split heat triumph.

Miss Mary McCune, driving for the first time on a half-mile track other than the Montour Farm's training oval, piloted Mig Dean to victory in the 2-year-old trot.

The Andersons will have the E. J. McAvoys for their opposition in the senior division of bracket 4 in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament at Herron Hill this evening. Southpaw James Richards is scheduled to take the mound for the McAvoys.

In another senior class game, the Blues Chasers will invade the East End to play the East Liberty Drugs on the East Field, Hampton street. These teams are in bracket No. 3. Manager Morris Middleman has assigned his star battery, Danny Auslander and Frank Rubinstein, to oppose the Blues Chasers.

The Travelers Insurance softballers defeated Main & Co., 19 to 9, and Fidelity Trust won from Federal Reserve, 21 to 17, in bracket 1 games of the senior competition.

After trailing for four innings, the S. A. O'Toole club last evening put on a spirited rally in the eighth inning by bunching seven hits to score six runs and defeat the Harris Reds, 11 to 10, in bracket 3 of the senior class. In the big eighth, Johnny O'Connor hit a home run with a man on base. Bill Ramsden, of the Reds, also hit for the circuit.

Tom McKenna, although he was hit hard, pitched the entire game, as did Mel Port, of the losers.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

Manager Jack Kilpak, of the Goodwill Industries senior softball team, is anxiously awaiting his opening game in the Sun-Telegraph's s o f t b a l l tournament. Kilpak, who is a good outfielder and a dangerous batsman, has several promising players. Harry Pickens looks like a [illegible] comer in the pitching ranks. The [illegible] is more than 6 feet tall. William Cook, Jr., is another youngster who has been playing a fine game in the outfield for the Goodwill team.

William (Lefty) Mizerski, who played baseball for the B. J. Brodericks and the O'Malleys several years ago, is playing shortstop for the Goodwill team. He is a very clever fielder and batter. He will be dangerous on the base paths because he is a speedy runner. Lou Bovee and Eddie Barnes have been playing good ball in the outfield for the Lawrenceville outfit. Chester Kristol pitches for the Goodwill aggregation when he is not called upon to play another position.

The Younius Newsboys, of Squirrel Hill, played 84 games last year and lost only 12 of them. This team is an entrant in the intermediate division of the Sun-Telegraph's softball tournament.

Manager John Weisshelmer, of the McAvoys, has his team on edge for their initial contest today. Joe Mahorko and Reddy Tavani are slated to play in the infield. Mickey Blank is the other McAvoy hurler. Heyward does the catching.

'I'll Win,' Chorus Primo, Max in Statements

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Here's what the two contestants in tonight's heavyweight championship bout have to say regarding their prospects for victory.

BY PRIMO CARNERA

Max Baer is a good fighter or he would not be getting this chance at the heavyweight championship. Without saying I will knock out Baer I will say positively I will retain my title. I am feeling great. The trouble in my throat will not bother me. If I thought it would, I would not enter the ring. Baer's work will decide what kind of a fight it is to be. I am ready to box or slug, it makes no difference to me. I am ambitious to become a great champion. Baer will not destroy that ambition.

BY MAX BAER

I am going to leave the ring tonight the new heavyweight champion of the world. I have felt all along that I was destined to become the champion, and I hope I win in such a manner as to convince everyone I have the ability to fight as well as frolic. I became absolutely certain I would win when I found it so easy to "ride" Carnera when we met at the State Athletic Commission examination. He's easily flustered, and that's in my favor. I am in perfect condition despite the criticism my training workouts aroused. I know how to whip Carnera. You'll see tonight.

MIDGET WOLGAST WINS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 14.—(AP.)—Midget Wolgast, world flyweight champion, took a 10-round decision from Sammy Seaman, of California, here last night. Wolgast's title was not at stake.

PITT TO PLAY WISCONSIN IN '36 AND '37

A two-year football agreement between the University of Pittsburgh and the University of Wisconsin, has been closed, according to an announcement today from the Pitt athletic department. The contract calls for games in 1936 and 1937. The 1936 game will be played in Madison, Wis., and the 1937 game in the Pitt Stadium.

The games were arranged by W. Don Harrison, of Pitt, and Dr. Clarence Spears, of Wisconsin. Dr. Spears formerly was coach at West Virginia University and it was largely through his efforts that the series was arranged.

Wisconsin is the fourth Western Conference eleven to appear on the Panthers' football card. Ohio State was met in 1929 and 1930, Iowa in 1931, Ohio State for the third time in 1932 and Minnesota last fall. Minnesota will be met in a return engagement in the Pitt Stadium next October 20.

"Frankly," says Mr. T. W. Davis, Jr., "when my friends told me of the savings Gulf-lube was effecting for them, I was skeptical.

"But now I'm converted! I had occasion recently to drive, twice to Pittsburgh from Roanoke, Va. On my first trip I used my regular 25c oil—and in just 104 miles a quart was used up.

"The second time I made the trip, I tried Gulf-lube. Believe it or not, I got all the way to Washington, Pa. —226 miles farther—before a quart of Gulf-lube was consumed!"

Stop paying out money for oil every few miles! Switch to Gulf-lube—the oil that went 28½% more miles per quart than 3 other famous 25c oils in AAA tests. SENATORS DISPLAY HITTING POWER

GEHRIG, BONURA ADD HOMERS TO RECORDS

Associated Press.

The Washington Senators, like the team which beat them in the world series last fall, the New York Giants, have been saying it with hits this season since their pitchers have not been performing so well as they did a year ago.

At the last semi-official checkup last week the Senators had about 30 more hits to their credit than their nearest American League rival, although they hadn't done so well in scoring. They added considerably to both totals yesterday when they walloped the Chicago White Sox in both games of a doubleheader, 11 to 3 and 13 to 11. The two contests saw them bang out 25 hits.

JOE CRONIN STARS

Manager Joe Cronin was the big gun of the assault as he made three hits and drove in five runs in each contest, contributed a time homer in the second and did a great deal to overcome the effects of Zeke Bonura's sixteenth circuit swat of the season. The Sox contributed several errors to their second defeat.

The two triumphs served to return the Senators to a first division place by a few percentage points over the Browns, who took a 6-to-2 beating from the Yankees as Lefty Gomez pitched six-hit ball for his tenth victory and Lou Gehrig propelled his sixteenth homer into the bleachers.

The Yanks' victory put them a game closer to the top as Detroit came out on the short end of a 15-13 score in a slugfest with Boston when the Red Sox's eight-run second inning proved better than the Tigers' 22-hit total. With Sugar Cain hurling five-hit ball, the Athletics won the fourth American League game from Cleveland by an 11-to-2 count.

DAVIS BEATS CUBS

A pair of young lefthanders provided the big news of the National League as Curt Davis, of the Phillies, limited the Cubs to seven hits and came out with a 2-to-1 decision with the aid of Ethan Allen's four-ply wallop off Charley Root, and Ted Kleinhans, of Cincinnati, gave the league leading Giants a scare before he finally went out in the seventh and New York won, 6 to 4.

Fred Frankhouse, a St. Louis "jinx," made it easy for Boston to beat the Cardinals, 9 to 0, when he held the second-place club to six hits and Leo Durocher made four misplays in the Cardinal infield.

Pittsburgh's batters had a field day at the expense of Brooklyn pitching, banging out 17 hits, including nine extra base blows, to win, 15 to 2.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

Former star, now coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I guess it is human nature to figure that the other fellow's pastures are greener than your own, but I have been wondering how many good players got away because they were home town boys. Take Ralph Birkofer, of the Pirates. He is a Cincinnati boy and I bet you the Reds could use a fellow like that. Also I bet you there was a time when Birkofer would have been tickled to play for the Reds. Now I don't say all this applies to him, but I use his case as an illustration of a point I want to make that many a lulu of a player gets away because the folks remember him in short pants. Regards,

HONUS WAGNER.

CARNERA, BAER SET FOR BOUT

Paulino Uzcudun and Tommy Loughran as his opponents. Tonight's bout marks his third defense of the title which he won with a six-round knockout over Jack Sharkey last summer.

CARNERA GAME

You have to give the devil his due. Whether or not you like him, Carnera has been a fighting champion, and in meeting Baer tonight he is taking on the man who, rated on his 10-round knockout of the plodding Max Schmeling last summer, stands out as the most formidable challenger in the field. Carnera has not picked his spots, but has taken them as they have been served up to him, which speaks well for his confidence.

As a result of his pre-fight boasting, Baer is in a tough corner. He must win the championship in this bout or be rated a prize ballyhoo artist and little else. He has gone out of his way to malign his opponent in every manner imaginable, admitting all along that every move has been designed to torment and embarrass the giant. He has made no attempt to disguise the fact that his actions have been intended to get Carnera's goat, just as Jim Corbett prepared John L. Sullivan for his Waterloo years ago. If he can't back up his boasts, Baer stands to lose much of his prestige, and that, my friends, is just what I fear he is going to do. And Broadway seems to think the same, if you are willing to concede that money talks.

SHARKEY FOR PRIMO

Jack Sharkey, incidentally, is out on a limb for Carnera as the winner. He has fought the huge Italian twice, easily defeating him the first time and losing his title to him the second time. The Boston squire doesn't think Max will be able to reach this tall, fast-moving target with his Sunday punches sufficiently to hurt him. Primo is an expert on defense. Maybe Baer can bring him down to his own size with that looked-for body attack, but he'll have to do it before Sharkey and other Carnera men will believe it.

Coming down to the day of the fight, Baer still retained his blustering, jaunty poise and his man of destiny air, while Carnera remained the gruff and champing-at-the-bit serious fighting man. They probably will go into the ring the same way, with Baer twitting his opponent right up to the moment the bell rings.

Then we shall see what we shall see. If Baer comes through, my, oh, my, what a hero he will be. And, if he doesn't, well—you'll have to ask Jack Sharkey how a man feels under the weight of such a disappointment. He knows. Sadly he knows.

TENNIS ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Men's singles entries for the forty-sixth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships will close at 5 o'clock this evening. Chairman Frank S. Smith will receive names of prospective contestants by telephone at Atlantic 2800 until that hour. Indications of an exceedingly large field in the man-to-man event are bright, there being already listed a considerable array of aspirants.

At 8 o'clock this evening the tournament committee will gather at the Stanton Heights Golf Club, where the classic will be staged from Saturday of this week until Sunday, June 24, and will decide upon the seedings and compile the draw. The roster of inaugural matches will be released for publication tomorrow. This general notification will include word as to who will cavort on the Stanton courts and who at the Pittsburgh Golf Club, Saturday's bill being slated to be divided between these lots for the sake of speed and convenience.

Entrants in men's, women's and mixed doubles and women's singles have until Monday night to line up for hostilities.

CAMILLI SIGNS

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—After holding out for 48 hours, Dolph Camilli, young first baseman traded by the Chicago Cubs to the Philadelphia Nationals, has come to terms with the management and will play with the Phillies today. He was traded for Don Hurst, but refused to report to the Phillies, apparently because he was disgruntled.

Chapin Tops Barnes In Tennis Upset

CLEVELAND, June 14.—(AP.)—Al Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., provided the first upset of the Western professional tennis tournament yesterday when he defeated Bruce Barnes, of Texas, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, at the University Club here.

In a doubles match, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill had little trouble in defeating two Cleveland entries, Phil Greenstein and Willis Fulton, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4.

Newspaper Experts Pick Max to Beat Primo

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Despite the betting odds in Primo Carnera's favor, the consensus of the newspaper critics, bolstered by an almost unanimous vote of the California delegation, was that Max Baer will win the heavyweight championship tonight.

Sid Ziff, of the Los Angeles Herald Express, alone stands out against the Western sweep for Baer. He said:

"California or no California, it looks to me like Carnera."

Another Californian, Al Santora, of the Oakland Post, thinks the match is a toss-up, but there is no deviation from the Baer standards from Steve George, of the Sacramento Union; Harry Smith, San Francisco Chronicle; Rudy Hickey, Sacramento Bee; Curly Grieve, San Francisco Examiner; Reiman Morin, Los Angeles Post Record; Pat Frayne, San Francisco Call Bulletin, and Mark Kelly, Los Angeles Examiner.

Among mid-Western sports writers, the pendulum swings toward Carnera. The South and East lean toward Baer.

John Carmichael, of the Chicago Daily News, expects Baer to knock Carnera out, but Clyde McBride, of the Kansas City Star, Ed Wray, of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, and George Barton, of the Minneapolis Tribune, all look for the champion to box his way to a 15-round decision.

The southern vote is well divided. Harry Martinez, of the New Orleans States, and Bill Keefe, of the New Orleans Times Picayune, both believe Baer will win, while Fred Digby, of the New Orleans Item favors Carnera.

Among the New York experts, Don Skene, Harry Cross and Dick Vidmer, of the Herald Tribune; Paul Gallico, of the News; Dan Parker, of the Mirror, and Hype Igoe, of the Journal, all favor Baer to win by a knockout, while Jim Dawson, of the Times; Sid Mercer and Ed Frayne, of the American; Ed Van Every, of the Sun and Westbrook Pegler believe Carnera will carry off the decision.

TWILIGHT NET LEAGUE SETS SCHEDULE

The East End Twilight Tennis League, long discussed and for the past fortnight in process of formation, is at last an actuality. The loop broke into action this week under the chairmanship of its sponsor, Gilbert Keisling, of the Fifth-Shady Club, and will continue competition with weekly matches until July 18.

The six outfits previously announced as likely members of the circuit have come into the fold intact. This means that the competition will inolve the Amber Street Club, the Fifth-Shady Club, the Center-Negley Club, the Edgewood Club, the First Baptist Club and the Westinghouse Club. Election of Keisling to the league chairmanship was accompanied by the choice of B. F. Gibbs, of Westinghouse, as vice chairman.

STICK TO DOUBLES

Jousting will be confined to doubles and play will be staged on Monday and Wednesday evenings unless advanced by agreement or postponed because of bad weather. Two contests will comprise a match and team standings will be compiled on the basis of the results of the individual tilts. The foregoing rules, along with other details, were approved yesterday by the executive committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, into which the circuit has been inducted.

The initial group of frays completed saw Fifth-Shady earn a 1-1 draw at First Baptist and beheld Westinghouse and Center-Negley break even in a pair of contests. Amber Street blanked Edgewood, 2-0. Next tussles are slated for Monday evening. The remainder of the schedule follows:

June 18 and 20—Center-Negley at Fifth-Shady; Westinghouse at Amber Street; First Baptist at Edgewood.

June 25 and 27—First Baptist at Westinghouse; Amber Street at Center-Negley; Edgewood at Fifth-Shady.

July 2 and 4—Open.

July 9 and 11—Amber Street at Fifth-Shady; Westinghouse at Edgewood; Center-Negley at First Baptist.

July 16 and 18—First Baptist at Amber Street; Edgewood at Center-Negley; Fifth-Shady at Westinghouse.

BELMONT WINS

Belmont Tennis Club downed Westinghouse Club in playoff of last Saturday's Section II P. T. A. inter-club league, skirmish on the Ingram rectangles. The home squad, even without its ace, Jim Patin, flashed both balance and power and by virtue of its fancy display passed into deadlock with the Westinghousers for top position in the second division race. Windup of a P. A. A.-Belmont Racquet Club uncompleted doubles match has been set for tomorrow evening, while the College Avenue-at-Washington Heights postponement in Section II and the Emsworth-at-College Avenue washout in Section III have been recarded for June 30.

PITTSBURGH ICE LOOP MEMBER

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Pittsburgh today was re-admitted to membership in the National Hockey League, making the league a 10-team circuit.

Nothing was done on the proposal to transfer the Ottawa franchise to St. Louis, as no representatives were present to explain the status of the rink there.

James F. Callahan will head the organization backing the club in Pittsburgh, which withdrew from the league following the 1929-30 seasons and sold its players.

Callahan said a new rink, seating 16,000 persons and to cost $2,000,000, was already under way in Pittsburgh and that efforts to gather a club would be started immediately. Callahan was elected to the league's board of governors.

Thomas Arnold was elected a governor from the Montreal Maroons, succeeding James F. Strachan, who has resigned.

NEW ARENA PLANNED

Plans for the razing of Motor Square Garden and the construction of a new arena on its present site have been prepared for several months, and announcements that construction work was to be started in the "immediate future" repeatedly have been made.

Hickey Park Ring Card Complete

Bus Vogel, matchmaker of Hickey Park, Millvale, has completed his card for next Monday night's show with the signing of Ralph Gizzy, of Donora, and Charley Blozevich, of Johnstown, for the opening five-round bout.

In the top end of the double windup, Anson Green, Negro puncher, of Homestead, meets Paul Pirrone, Cleveland veteran, and Dominic Mancini, North Side lightweight, boxes Jackie McFarland, of Canton, O., in the supporting 10. Louis DeSantis, of Cleveland, takes on Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, in the five-round semi-final with Al Farone and Irish Jimmy Ferry paired for the second number.

Allison Attains Net Quarter-Finals

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—(AP.)—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., second nationally ranked player, won his way to the quarter finals of the Pennsylvania and Middle States championship tennis tournament yesterday by two smashing victories over George Dunn, Philadelphia, and Amos Eno, Princeton.

Allison's score over Dunn was 6-0, 6-0, although the University of Pennsylvania captain allowed only one game to go at love. Eno lost by 6-1, 6-2 scores.

TOMMY AFTER WINNER

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Tommy Loughran, who lost to Primo Carnera the last time the heavyweight titleholder defended his crown, in Miami, March 1, arrived on the liner Manhattan from Europe today just in time to view Carnera's bout with Max Baer tonight.

Tommy declined to be pinned down to an outright prediction as to the winner, but said it would either be a "knockout for Baer or a decision for Carnera." He added:

"Whoever wins I'll challenge him. I've licked Baer and I believe now that I can do better with Carnera than the last time."

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

"That's understandable enough," I agreed. "There was no sense in your saying anything until you had heard his side of the story."

"Exactly and, well, the catch is I never heard his side of the story. I'd expected him to show up, phone me, something, when I got that letter from him from Philadelphia, and there was not a word in it about his failure to meet me Friday, nothing about—but you saw the letter. What'd you think of it?"

"You mean did it sound guilty?..

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney, tells Nick; Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting Wynant.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a racketeer's sweetheart.

Dorothy gives Nick a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. Morelli, a gangster suspected in Julia's murder, shoots Nick.

Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Julia served time for working badger game. Guild tells Nick. Wynant's letter urges Nick hunt slayer. Nick convinced that Mimi is hiding evidence. Morelli tells Nick life story of Julia. Nick arrives as police are quizzing Mimi. Dorothy tells Nick brother is seeing father. Macaulay says he saw Wynant near murder scene.

Now go on with Charles' narrative.

"Yes."

"Not particularly," I said. "It's about what could be expected from him if he didn't kill her—no great alarm over the police suspecting him except as it might interfere with his work, a desire to have it all cleaned up with no inconvenience to him—not too bright a letter to have come from anybody else, but in line with his particular form of goofiness. I can see him sending it off without the faintest notion that the best thing he could do would be to account for his own actions on the day of the murder. How sure are you he was coming from Julia's when you saw him?"

"I'm sure now. I thought it likely at first. Then I thought he may have been to his shop. It's on First avenue, just a few blocks from where I saw him, and, though it's been closed since he went away, we renewed the lease last month and everything's there waiting for him to come back to it, and he could have been there that afternoon. The police couldn't find anything there to show whether he had or hadn't.

"I meant to ask you: there was some talk about his having grown whiskers. Was he—"

"No—the same long bony face with the same ragged near-white mustache."

"Another thing: there was a fellow named Nunheim killed yesterday, a small—"

"I'm coming to that," he said.

Thinking of Nunheim

"I was thinking about the little fellow you thought might be shadowing you."

Macaulay stared at me. "You mean that might've been Nunheim?"

"I don't know. I was wondering."

"And I don't know," he said. "I never saw Nunheim, far as I—"

"He was a little fellow, not more than five feet three, and would weigh maybe a hundred and twenty. I'd say he was thirty-five or six. Sallow, dark hair and eyes, with the eyes set pretty close together, big mouth, long, limp nose, bat-wing ears—shifty-looking."

"That could easily be him," he said, "though I didn't get too close a view of my man. I suppose the police would let me see him"—he shrugged—"not that it matters now. Where was I? Oh, yes, about not being able to get in touch with Wynant. That put me in an uncomfortable position, since the police clearly thought I was in touch with him and lying about it. So did you, didn't you?"

"Yes," I admitted.

"And you also, like the police, probably suspected that I had met him, either at the Plaza or later, on the day of the murder."

"It seemed possible."

"Yes. And of course you were partly right. I had at least seen him, and seen him at a place and time that would've spelled Guilty with a capital G to the police, so, having lied instinctively and by inference, I now lied directly and deliberately. Hermann had been tied up in a conference all that afternoon and didn't know how long I had been waiting to see him. Louise Jacobs is a good friend of mine. Without going into details, I told her she could help me help a client by saying I had arrived there at a minute or two after 3 o'clock and she agreed readily enough. To protect her in case of trouble, I told her that if anything went wrong she could always say that she hadn't remembered what time I arrived, but that I, the next day, had casually mentioned my arrival at that time and she had no reason for doubting me—throwing the whole thing on me." Macaulay took a deep breath. "None of that's important now. What's important is that I heard from Wynant this morning."

"Another one of those screwy letters?" I asked.

"No, he phoned. I made a date with him for tonight—for you and me. I told him you wouldn't do anything for him unless you could see him, so he promised to meet us tonight. I'm going to take the police, of course. I can't go on justifying my shielding him like this. I can get him an acquittal on grounds of insanity and have him put away. That's all I can do; all I want to do."

"Have you told the police yet?"

"No. He didn't phone till just after they'd left. Anyway, I wanted to see you first. I wanted to tell you I hadn't forgotten what I owed you and—"

"Nonsense," I said.

"It's not." He turned to Nora. "I don't suppose he ever told you he saved my life once in a shellhole in—"

"He's nuts," I told her. "He fired at a fellow and missed and I fired at him and didn't and that's all there was to it." I addressed him again: "Why don't you let the police wait awhile? Suppose you and I keep this date tonight and hear what he's got to say. We can sit on him and blow whistles when the meeting's about to break up if we're convinced he's the murderer."

Macaulay smiled wearily. "You're still doubtful, aren't you? Well, I'm willing to do it that way if you want, though it seems like a— But perhaps you'll change your mind when I tell you about our telephone conversation."

Dorothy Appears

Dorothy, wearing a nightgown and a robe of Nora's, both much too long for her, came in yawning. "Oh!" she exclaimed when she saw Macaulay, and then, when she had recognized him, "Oh, hello, Mr. Macaulay. I didn't know you were here. Is there any news of my father?"

He looked at me. I shook my head. He told her; "Not yet, but perhaps we'll have some today."

I said: "Dorothy's had some, indirectly. Tell Macaulay about Gilbert."

"You mean about—about my father?" she asked hesitantly, staring at the floor.

"Oh, dear me, no," I said.

Her face flushed and she glanced reproachfully at me; then, hastily, she told Macaulay: "Gil saw my father yesterday and he told Gil who killed Miss Wolf."

"What?"

She nodded four or five times, earnestly.

Macaulay looked at me with puzzled eyes.

"This doesn't have to've happened," I reminded him. "It's what Gil says happened."

"I see. Then you think he might be—?"

"You haven't done much talking to that family since hell broke loose, have you?" I asked.

"No."

"It's an experience. They're all crazy, I think. They start off—"

Dorothy said angrily: "I think you're horrid. "I'm giving you the break this time: I'm willing to believe Gil did tell you that. Don't expect too much of me."

Macaulay asked: "And who killed her?"

Nora Takes Dorothy Out

"I don't know. Gil wouldn't tell me."

"Had your brother seen him often?"

"I don't know how often. He said he had been seeing him."

"And was anything said—well—about the man Nunheim?"

"No. Nick asked me that. He didn't tell me anything else at all."

I caught Nora's eye and made signals. She stood up saying: "Let's go in the other room, Dorothy, and give these lads a chance to do whatever it is they think they're doing."

Dorothy went reluctantly, but she went out with Nora.

Macaulay said: "She's grown up to be something to look at." He cleared his throat. "I hope your wife won't—"

"Forget it. Nora's all right. You started to tell me about your conversation with Wynant."

"He phoned right after the police left and said he'd seen the ad in the paper and wanted to know what I wanted. I told him you weren't anxious to get yourself mixed up in his troubles and had said you wouldn't touch it at all without talking it over with him first, and we made the date for tonight. Then he asked if I'd seen Mimi and I told him I'd seen her once or twice since her return from Europe and had also seen his daughter. And then he said this: 'If my wife should ask for money, give her any sum in reason.'"

Convinced She's Dupe

"I'll be damned," I said.

Macaulay nodded. "That's the way I felt about it. I asked him why and he said what he'd read in the morning papers had convinced him that she was Roseben's dupe, not his confederate, and he had reason to believe she was 'kindly disposed' towards him, Wynant. I began to see what he was up to, then, and I told him she had already turned the knife and chain over to the police. And try to guess what he said to that."

"I give up."

"He hemmed and hawed a bit—not much, mind you—and then as smooth as you like asked: 'You mean the chain and knife on the watch I left with Julia to be repaired?'"

I laughed. "What'd you say?"

PEACE CONFERENCE AT PARIS—AMERICAN DELEGATES

The Peace Conference met at Paris January 18, 1919, led by President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau (France), Lloyd George (England) and Orlando (Italy) the "Big Four." The Allies (Entente) previously had accepted President Wilson's 14 points (freedom of the seas, elimination of secret diplomacy, reduction of armaments, impartial adjustment of colonies etc).

The Treaty of Versailles, however, was punitive and in contrast to Wilson's intentions. It was signed by Germany June 28, 1919, as alternative to renewal of war. Germany was deprived of about one-sixth of her territory and all her colonies, had to confess guilt for the war, assume reparations to be fixed by a commission, and promise to pay tremendous indemnity; her allies met a similar fate.

One part of the treaty was the Covenant of the League of Nations, aiming at world peace. The U. S. never ratified this treaty; Congress declared the war terminated. (World History)

WILSON, ADVOCATE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

When President Wilson sailed for Paris for the Peace Conference (1918) he had lost support at home through a partisan appeal for election of Democrats to Congress. Absent, his peace policy was attacked in Congress. Returned, his brilliant eloquence could not obtain a ratification of the Versailles Treaty. Wilson then began a country-wide tour, making a direct appeal to the people for support of the League of Nations, his project for world betterment. Opposition trailed him, speaking against it. Wilson lost his case and also his health. (U. S. History)

HARDING-COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION—HARDING'S CABINET MEMBERS

The strain of adjustment from war to peace with abrupt breaking of truces between capital and labor resulting in strikes, soldiers' demands, high cost of living, propaganda against existing social order and a disintegrated cabinet— his battle for the League of Nations—broke President Wilson's health before 1920 election.

President Harding succeeded him on the Republican ticket (1921). He called the Washington Disarmament Conference; restricted immigration; revised tariff upward. Returning from an Alaskan trip, Harding took sick and died suddenly in San Francisco(1923). Vice President Coolidge became President and was subsequently elected for a second term (1925-29).

Business flourished, monopolies grew, but discontent of farmers increased. Trouble with Mexico (1925) was allayed by Ambassador Morrow's diplomacy, whereby foreign titles to Mexican land, acquired prior to 1917, were perpetuated. In the Nicaraguan revolt of the same year, Henry L. Stimson, arranged for general amnesty and the representation of both parties in their government under U. S. supervision. (U. S. History)

CARBOHYDRATES—MANUFACTURE OF CANE SUGAR

Carbohydrates are compounds of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen (twice as many H as O atoms). Following are the most important sugars. 1. Complex sugars (disaccharides, $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$): sucrose (cane, beet, maple-sugar); maltose (malt sugar); lactose (milk sugar). 2. Simple sugars (monosaccharides, $C_6H_{12}O_6$); Dextrose (glucose or grape sugar); levulose (fructose or fruit sugar); galactose, mannose, xylose, etc. 3. Polysaccharides like starch and cellulose $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_x$ (x being a positive integer).

In manufacture of raw cane sugar, sugar cane is crushed between rolls (above), juice boiled with limewater, $Ca(OH)_2$ to neutralize, prevent fermentation. CO_2 is added to remove excess lime, liquid is then filtered through animal charcoal, concentrated in vacuum pans, left to crystallize. Raw sugar crystals are separated from brown liquid (molasses) by centrifuging.

Raw sugar is dark, must be refined by dissolving in hot water and largely repeating former process. Crystals dried in a heated tube, give granulated sugar. Beet sugar is made from beet extract.

Rated by sweetness, sucrose has 100, levulose 173, glucose 74, maltose 32, lactose 16. Honey is a mixture chiefly of dextrose and levulose. Complex sugars, when hydrolized yield simple sugars: $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11} + H_2O = C_6H_{12}O_6 + C_6H_{12}O_6$ which may have different properties by different grouping of atoms (isomers). PRINCE AND PAUPER—EDWARD AND THE GUARD

Prince and Pauper, Mark Twain's (Samuel Langhorne Clemens) gripping story based on the resemblance of a street urchin to an English prince of same age, brought tears and laughter to millions.

Tom Canty, the pauper, son of a drunkard, is chased by the guard from the gate of the royal courtyard; Prince Edward invites him in and changes clothes with him. Detecting an injury to Tom, inflicted by a guard, the prince in rags rushes out to punish him, but is driven away. Tom's family gets hold of the prince, mistreats him. He finds a protector in Sir Miles Hendon, a poor knight, with whom he wanders about having many adventures. Assertions about his royal birth is taken as sign of insanity developed from mistreatments. Meanwhile Tom, treated as sick due to ignorance in court etiquette, is to be crowned. Edward rushes to the ceremony, reveals his identity and, with testimony of Tom as well as by telling the hiding place of the "Great Seal," is recognized and crowned in his rags as Edward VI. His misfortunes gave him knowledge of the sufferings of the poor, making his short reign benevolent. (Am. Lit.)

INCANDESCENT LAMPS

De La Rue made the first electric incandescent lamp on record (1820) in which platinum wire operated in an evacuated tube. The first British patent was granted (1841) to De Moleyn, who invented a lamp containing platinum coils divided by a gap that was bridged by powdered charcoal. Sawyer's lamp (1878) was one of the several with graphite burner operating in nitrogen gas. Thomas Alva Edison's incandescent lamp (1879) embodies the basic features of all modern lamps. It had a carbonized cotton thread operating in a highly evacuated glass globe.

The modern incandescent lamp consists of a thin tungsten filament in a flint-glass bulb containing argon gas. The filament is heated by the electric current to white heat giving a light intensity of about 15 lumens per consumed watt.

Salads For Everybody

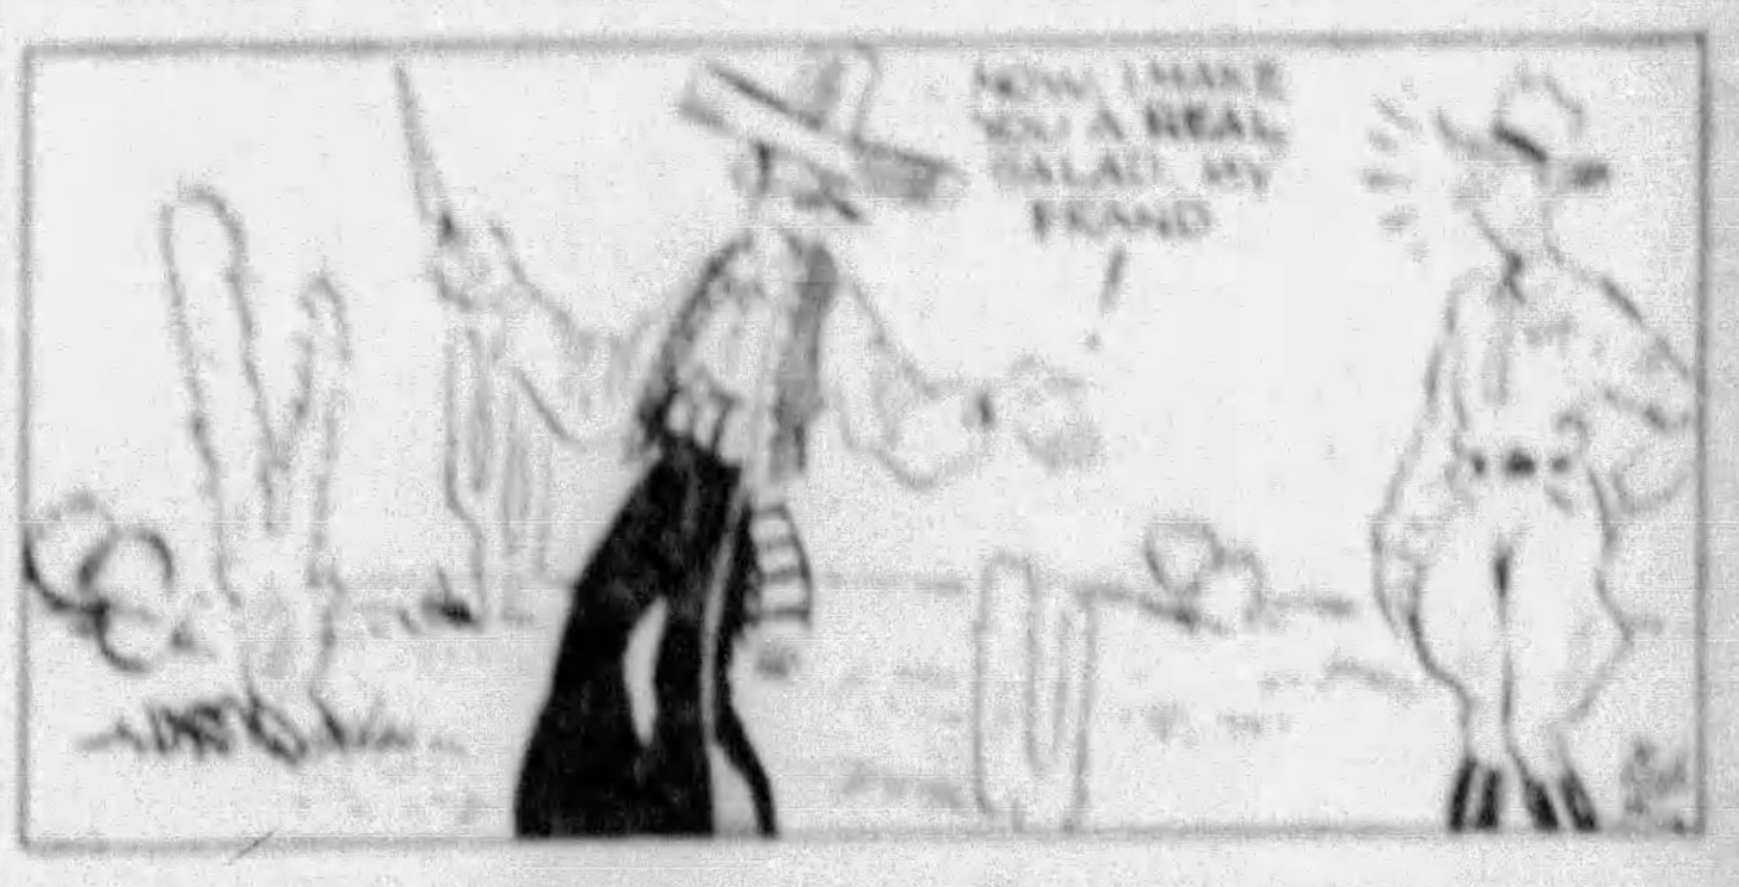
These are real salad days. According to most chefs anything is a salad that you can stir with a wooden spoon.

The green stuff is healthy these warm days. There is nothing more cooling than a nice bowl of sea weed. First, wait for low tide and rush out and grab yourself an armful. Wash it in the ocean to remove the salt. Set out in the sun to dry. Sprinkle with anti-freezing mixture and dust off lightly with powdered pumice.

That's the dish for week-end guests who think the week finishes on Monday. Serve this Sunday-night and solve your social problems.

Another tasty bit of landscaping is the cactus salad. Get the real Mexican wire-haired mesquite and chop fine. Broil over slow sparkplugs for two days. Mix with garden hose sliced wafer thin. Garnish with candied camphor balls.

Most salads taste alike. That's because the fundamental ingredient consists of shrubbery and hamburgered lawn. The only way to surprise your guests is to spice them with astonishing results. An artichoke smothered in lilac water is delightful. The humble head of red cabbage will please the shellacked palate if served up in a bowl of axle grease. It is a good idea to disguise everything in parsley and olive oil. There should be a few minutes' intermission between courses to allow the guests to remove the watercress from their bridgework.



NOW, I MAKE YOU A REAL SALAD, MY FRAND !

Asparagus, corn, tomatoes, sprouts and deviled wicker work are ideal for the hot months. It is surprising to discover how much porch furniture is edible if boiled enough. Drop in a Japanese fern or two. Even summer awnings are nice after a heavy rain. Butter well, cover with cracker crumbs and fry in their own fat.

There ain't many things around a suburban or seaside home that will not either boil or fry. Paper napkins dissolve readily in vinegar and oil of cloves.

Never worry about the appearance of the salad. The Japanese moth is liable to get into anything. If it doesn't look quite right you can have it chemically treated by the park commission. And no matter what happens you can always call it chow-chow. There is no guest with nerve enough to dispute that. He may not come back again but he will eat it. That's getting rid of two ostriches with one fan dance.

Broccoli and spinach are difficult for the beginner to master. But they are healthful and are almost as good for the complexion as a lip stick. Some people eat spinach just to get the hardboiled egg. But nobody has ever offered a consolation prize for broccoli.

ODD FACTS

With 21 children, at least 66 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren, Mr. Hendon, of Wimbledon, Surrey, has had the biggest family in Britain. Ten children, 34 grandchildren and all the great-grandchildren are still living. The combined age of the family is 927 years.

Because the Central London Railway station at Chancery Lane is being rebuilt, 100 telephone cables, carrying 70,000 lines, will have to be diverted and replaced. The work will take nearly a year to complete, alternative lines being used meanwhile.

God Bless Old Glory!

Pittsburghers Have Good Reason for Celebrating the Flag's Birthday.

Old Glory was born in Pennsylvania, and Pittsburghers have been loyal to the beautiful banner from the earliest days.

On or about June 1, 1776, under the direction of Gen. Washington, Betsy Ross made, in Philadelphia, a flag consisting of 13 stripes, red and white, with a union of 15 five-pointed white stars on a blue field.

On June 14, 1777, Congress passed a resolution adopting this as the Flag of the United States. This, then, is the one hundred seventy-seventh birthday of the Stars and Stripes.

Pittsburgh has a special reason for being interested in Flag Day in the fact that a former resident of this city, William T. Kerr, founded the American Flag Day Association and is still its national president.

Honor Old Glory today by flying it, Honor the national emblem by patriotic service, by devotion to American ideals. In this way you will help to bring to the Stars and Stripes the Divine blessing for which we pray.

Plans for the Point

At Last Something Is to Be Done to Reclaim That Historic Section

Unexpectedly reversing itself, Council has voted to lease the old Exposition Society grounds at the Point for 50 years to a new organization which plans to erect a six-million dollar auditorium on the site. Twice Council had disapproved the plan.

The new society is given until October 1, 1935, to raise funds for the building of the auditorium. The annual rental is fixed at 3 per cent of the gross receipts, but must not be less than $22,500.

Various organizations interested in the improvement of Pittsburgh had other plans for the Point. One proposal was that artistic walls should be built along the riverside, comparable to the quays of Paris, and a park of perhaps five or ten acres developed.

It is gratifying in any event that something seems likely to be done in the next year or two to reclaim this historic spot, so beautifully situated at the confluence of two noble rivers, from the squalor and neglect into which it has fallen.

What Communism Means

The Reds Give Mayor McNair a Sample of Their Bigotry and Fanaticism

The American people sometimes lose sight of the crimes of oppression and tyranny of which the Communists have been guilty in Russia. We sometimes forget that the Communists have no thought of putting their policies into effect in America by orderly, constitutional methods, but plan armed revolution.

Overlooking these things, we occasionally show a tolerant attitude towards them, as, for example, when they were allowed to use the Fifth Avenue High School for a meeting on Tuesday night. On this occasion Mayor William N. McNair even went so far as to attend the meeting to deliver an address.

The conduct of the Reds at this meeting should be sufficient to disillusion any Pittsburghers who have been inclined to think of the Communists as not so black as they have been painted.

The violent fanaticism with which the Reds howled down the Mayor shows it is impossible to deal with them as reasonable persons. Their demonstration was a sample of what might be expected from them if they should ever come into power. They would ruthlessly suppress everyone who differed with them in the slightest degree.

Let their brutal behavior be remembered the next time they whine about being deprived of freedom of speech and assembly.

Preliminaries Cleared

But Without Congressional Action the Public Works Program Must Wait.

The preliminary steps that had to be taken before Allegheny County could proceed with the thirty million dollar public works program have been taken.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court's decision upholding the legality of the plan by which the work will be supervised by a new corporation called the Allegheny County Authority brings us to the point from which we can go ahead if, when and as Congress grants the required appropriation.

The County Commissioners apparently feel confident that the money will be forthcoming. We hope it will.

The bridges and other public works on which it is proposed to spend the thirty million dollars will fill a real need. They will facilitate travel, help business and increase property values.

Nothing should be left undone that will help to secure favorable action by Congress.

No Longer Necessary

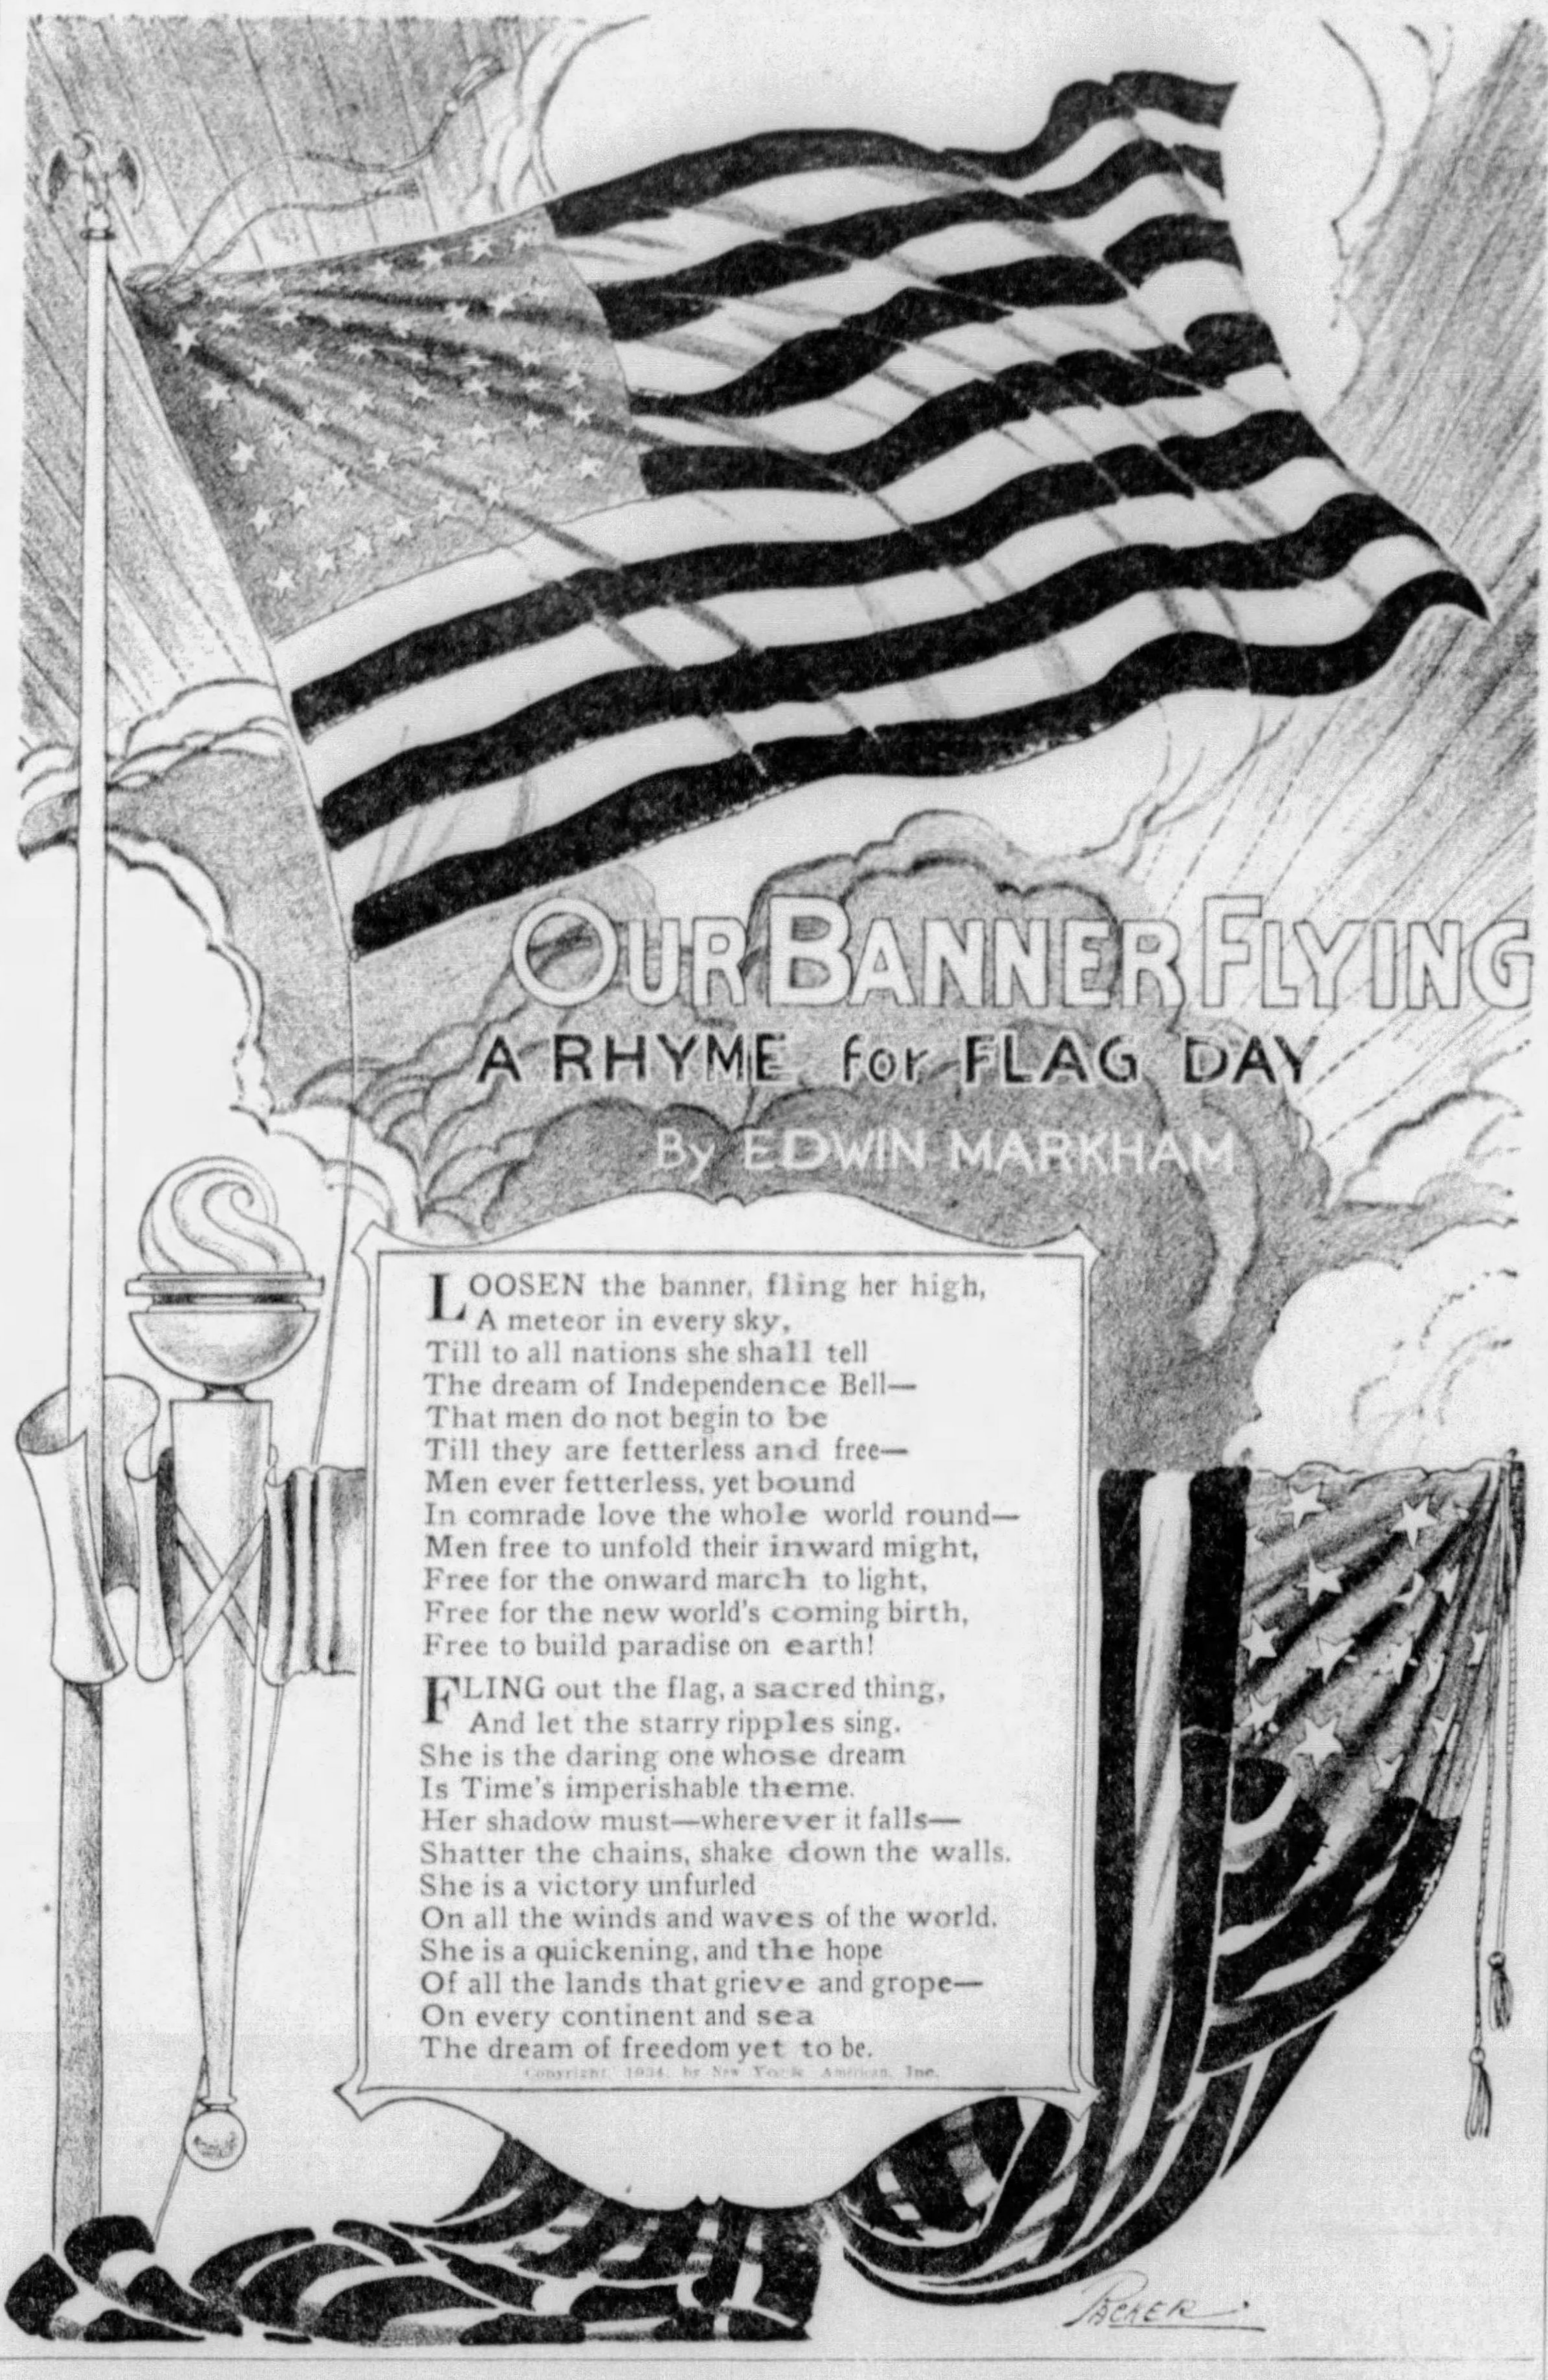
Many of the Counties Formed for the Establishment of Jails Could Profitably Be Consolidated.

Secretary of Internal Affairs Philip H. Dewey, who has been making a study of the genesis of Pennsylvania counties, reports that outlawry played an important part in the formation of many of them.

Secretary Dewey points out that in William Penn's time Pennsylvania began with three counties. Lancaster County, created in 1729, and most of the others set up between then and 1811, were formed, according to the acts of Assembly establishing them, because of "idle and dissolute persons who resort to remote parts of the province and by reason of the great distance from a court or prison do frequently find means of making their escape."

When transportation was by horse or oxcart, it was needful that there should be a jail and courthouse not more than a day's journey—say 30 miles—distant from any place in the state. But now, with good roads and automobiles making it possible to go a hundred miles in a few hours, we do not need so many counties.

We could dispense with many of them, through consolidations, to the advantage of the taxpayers, who thus would get rid of a horde of useless political parasites.



OUR BANNER FLYING

A RHYME for FLAG DAY

By EDWIN MARKHAM

LOOSEN the banner, fling her high,
A meteor in every sky,
Till to all nations she shall tell
The dream of Independence Bell—
That men do not begin to be
Till they are fetterless and free—
Men ever fetterless, yet bound
In comrade love the whole world round—
Men free to unfold their inward might,
Free for the onward march to light,
Free for the new world's coming birth,
Free to build paradise on earth!

FLING out the flag, a sacred thing,
And let the starry ripples sing.
She is the daring one whose dream
Is Time's imperishable theme.
Her shadow must—wherever it falls—
Shatter the chains, shake down the walls.
She is a victory unfurled
On all the winds and waves of the world.
She is a quickening, and the hope
Of all the lands that grieve and grope—
On every continent and sea
The dream of freedom yet to be.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 14.—Hell's Kitchen, roaring slum section of the upper West Side, still has its corner gang dust-ups. I passed through it the other day when two young huskies were toughening their talents. Bare knuckles were the weapons. The winner was a ringer for Gene Tunney. The loser lost three teeth.

Summer's scalding glare keeps tempers taut in the tenements. The slightest variation in life may incite fisticuffs. If the fishmonger's yell is too loud he must fly for his life. And a young sport flashing forth in a new hand-me-down may inspire a neighborhood fury and a moused eye.

While Hell's Kitchen spawns many chronic toughs it also produces material for bench, bar, and movies. George Raft, for instance, who is the current idol. Most of the bad 'uns begin criminal careers as bundle snatchers. They gang up on delivery wagons, filching the loads. And graduate into dock walloping.

Warm evenings bring Hell's Kitchen to the sidewalks, stoops, and fire escapes. Around the fire houses the kiddies, in loin cloths, are generously hosed. Each corner has its quota of lounging, shirt sleeved youths who are so vigorously pugnacious cops patrol in pairs.

Laurence Schwab tells me the ex-choir boy Joe Penner, exploiting the same foolishness that made him such a sensation on the radio, met critical indifference in the ill-fated Schwab show, "East Wind." Percy Hammond reported he could discover no gayety in Penner's complaisant exertions. The erudite J. Brooks Atkinson thought that, while Penner could wiggle his scalp, one of nature's most lavish gifts, he was hardly funny enough. John Anderson thought the red-headed comic might have proved an amusing interlude if he had been as funny as someone must have, in an absent-minded moment, thought he could be. And so it went to the last critic, and the producers, after three weeks, charged off $115,000. All of which proves nothing save a comedian may be a scream on the air and a scram before the footlights.

They Have Doors But They Won't Use Them!

"You said," she writes, "that there's 'always a door, somewhere' for unhappy lives, and sooner or later they'll find it. Do you really believe that—for everybody?"

Yes, I really believe it. But remember, I also said:

"We seldom find that door where we expected; often do not recognize it."

Also, I might add, even when we do find it, we refuse to use it!

There's Ethel, for instance. Ethel outwardly is that interesting creature we call "a typical American wife." Smart, handsome, healthy, capable, twenty-seven . . . married five years, the mother of a lovely little girl, the wife of a devoted young man, mistress of a charming home. Ethel would seem to be sitting pretty. But instead, she's restless and rebellious . . . feels that her life is being tragically frustrated by domestic duties.

Like most of us, Ethel is looking for "a door." When she was a youngster she was given to exciting dreams — pictured herself playing thrilling roles—craved excitement, danger. Now she's more hungry for drama. But she can't find it in the conventional routine of life. She loves her husband and children, is proud of her pretty home.

"But that isn't enough!" cries Ethel. "I don't want to spend my life being just another wife or mother. I want to do something different . . . something worth while."

She has decided that two things would be worth while . . . to write a book or go into the movies. Obviously, the movies are out of the question. But she can and does write. For three years she has written and written — and written. Only to pile one maddening rejection upon another. She's sure she knows the reason.

"If I could only give all my time to it," she moans. "I just know I have talent . . . but how can anyone get anything done with a family to look after? If I could just go away for a year! But Fred thinks I'm crazy when I suggest it."

So, day after day, year after year, Ethel seeks frantically—but vainly—for a door into that larger, more colorful life. While all the time, as the dullest of us can see, there are dozens of doors right at hand.

Obviously, she hasn't literary talent. If she had, she could write successfully in any corner, under any condition—as every real writer does. But she has a genuine desire for drama and adventure. And she could find these daily in books, art, amateur theatricals, interior decoration, social service work. She could even find them in that housework she despises . . . in the vanishing sewing and cooking crafts . . . in entertaining interesting people.

There's Ethel's "door"—all the doors she has the ability to use—but she'll neither see it nor accept it.

Common story, isn't it? You've seen scores of Ethels. Girls who refuse to be good stenographers because they can't be great dancers. Boys who won't accept a waiter's job because it might interfere with their being Paul Whitemans some day.

IF THEY CAN'T BE WHAT THEY WANT, THEY WON'T BE WHAT THEY CAN. THEY HAVE DOORS BUT THEY WON'T USE THEM.

That's true of all of us. There's a way out for every life, no matter how handicapped it may be. There's a door which will open into larger, livelier experience. But we don't or won't see it. Why?

Partly because our eyes are dazzled by dreams. We aren't looking for common doors which will fit our size. We're looking for Triumphal Arches and Bross Bands.

And, secondly, we don't open the doors which lie before us because we're lazy and cowardly. We like to dream and whine, talk about our shackled lives. We like to talk and boast about what we'd do if we had our chance.

But when it comes to doing it—we don't want to pay the price. There's always some hard labor which we detest, some risk we fear, some change or adjustment we can't take. And so—

We stay on the wrong side of the door—and enjoy our martyrdom!

Human Side of the News

Ely Culbertson's Story of a Sensational Run of Luck in a Paris Gambling House

By Edwin C. Hill

THERE are ladies and gentlemen of this day and age with a curious flair for staying in the news. They have, in some instances, a special genius for publicity. Others who do not deliberately seek personal publicity have what the sporting writers call "color." Of such is the contract bridge master, Ely Culbertson, the tall, slim wizard of contract analysis who has made a large fortune out of the world's major fad, which has engaged the interest of the civilized world.

For the cards of contract drop on tables from San Francisco to Singapore and from New York to Nagasaki. He bestrides the bridge world like a colossus! His books are perennially among the "best sellers." And yet all his fortune and all his fame came from one of the most amazing strokes of sheer luck that ever lifted a man from despair into the heights of eager ambition.

I suppose that there will be argument until Gabriel blows his golden trumpet over this question of whether or not luck plays a decisive part in the lives of men who beat the game magnificently. Everybody is entitled to his opinion. Mine is that luck counts, for I have seen it doing its magic.

Take this amazing chap, Ely Culbertson, the contract bridge master, so prominently in the human side of the news. He is convinced, from his own experience, that luck is the most important element of life. He proves it by his story, which he told to me only a little while ago, and a striking example it is.

An Injury That Brought Good

"AFTER the Bolshevists seized control of Russia," this American-Russian told me, "my family lost every dollar they had in the world. I landed in Paris with just 100 francs in my pocket, about $10 at that time, in 1919. I was up against it for fair, with no way to turn, because I had never been taught how to earn a living and had spent my life gratifying expensive and luxurious tastes. The only opening I saw was to join the anti-Bolshevist army as a soldier of fortune.

"While I was turning that over in my mind, I strolled one evening along the Rue de Volnay, sorrowfully thinking of my miserable 100 francs. As I strolled along, I approached a gambling club I had known in more prosperous days, and without thinking one way or another what I was about, I walked in, went to a roulette table and put 20 francs on the red. Just as the croupier spun the wheel the man at my side trod hard on my toe, coming down with all his weight, and he was a big chap.

"I turned around, expecting some word of apology, but he completely ignored me. That was a little too much! My temper, never angelic, flared up, and I told him he was, as the French say, a species of pig. Then he told me a few things and I smacked him. He came back with a punch and we went at it hot and heavy, fighting all the way into an adjoining room. We must have swatted each other half an hour before the spirit of combat wore off and honor was settled.

"When I made my way back to my seat at the roulette table I saw instantly that the people all around it were boiling with excitement. I looked down, and there in front of me was a stack of French money of noble proportions. A jack rabbit would have had to take a running start to hurdle it.

"At that moment the croupier raised an angry voice. 'Whose money is this?' he demanded. 'This bet can go no farther!' And all of a sudden the blessed realization descended upon me that the big stack of notes was mine, all mine! And believe me, I grabbed it up in a hurry and made for the street.

"When I counted the roll it came to 20,480 francs, or a bit more than $2,000. Red had come up nine straight times, doubling my stake each time. And the hunch came to me then and there to go to America, my father's home, and seek my fortune—and go I did.

"And I have thought a thousand times how different my life would surely have been if I hadn't chanced to take that walk along the Rue de Volnay, and been moved to step into the gambling club and toss that 20 francs on the red. The chances are a hundred to one that I would have joined the anti-Reds and died of lead poisoning, or else perished from starvation and disease in a Soviet prison. Do you wonder, my friends, that I believe in luck?"

F. D. R. Studying Plight Of Jobless Youths

By James T. Williams, Jr.

HOW best to meet the challenge of widespread unemployment among young Americans is one of the vital problems to which President Roosevelt is giving serious study. Before starting on his cruise to the Pacific, he will probably announce some of the things he intends to do about it.

The plight of jobless youth was recently considered at a special conference in the federal city, called with the approval of the President, and held under the auspices of the Federal Office of Education.

As defined by the United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. George F. Zook, the main purpose of this conference was "to find ways and means to help youth bridge the distressing gap between school and unemployment.

His office finds that high schools and colleges by the end of this month will have graduated their fifth class of seniors since the beginning of the economic depression in 1929. For the most part those five classes of high school students have entered a world "where there is little or no demand for what services they have to offer."

* * *

Four Million Youths Are Idle

IN this country today, it is estimated, approximately four million young Americans between the ages of 14 and 18 are not enrolled in high schools. Some of these are excluded from industry by code limitations. Consequently they are doomed to idleness until they can return to school or become old enough to be eligible for employment under existing codes.

Of those in the college-age level, it is estimated that there are seven out of college for every one in college.

And not less than three million of the age group of 18 to 20 are out of school and out of work.

"This situation is bad for boys and girls. It is bad for our nation," declares Commissioner Zook. And the report of the conference over which he presided comes to the same conclusion in these words:

"A hopeless, despairing generation of youth is a threat to sound national development. The welfare of youth desires a place in all plans of social reconstruction.

"The period of self-help and youth's responsibility should dominate all programs instituted for youth.

"Adjustment should be effected with organized economics and social groups as they exist today to permit youths such share in the work of the world as is genuinely necessary for their education and initiation at appropriate ages to full citizenship and social membership."

If President Roosevelt adopts the recommendations unanimously adopted at this federal conference on the problems of American youth, he will soon appoint a continuing commission on youth problems as an auxiliary of the Federal Office of Education.

This commission will have the services of a specialist in the Federal Office of Education and one-third of its membership will be made up of young Americans under 30 years of age.

Duties Suggested For Commission

AMONG the duties of this proposed commission will be the following:

To recommend plans for national, state and local organizations to assure effective operation of a program in the field of youth.

To foster interest in the problems of youth by all government agencies.

Under federal leadership it will endeavor to enlist the co-operation of state and local agencies to find suitable employment for youth, and to expand and improve existing facilities for education and guidance of youth and to encourage a better use of leisure time among young Americans than they now enjoy.

President Roosevelt showed his concern for the problems of jobless youth when he established the Civilian Conservation Corps camps, and again when he continued these camps for another year, but Congress today has manifested little interest in this vital question. Congress has practically closed the door to thousands of jobless youth, badly needed to bring the Army and Navy to peacetime strength, by refusing to authorize any adequate increase in the personnel of either service.

Congress has also junked the urgent recommendations of Woodrow Wilson and succeeding Presidents that American youth be given an opportunity to train with the colors for national citizenship in citizens' military training camps. Instead of providing camps for all young Americans who apply and can qualify for this training, Congress, when American youth most needed this training, has cut the camps this year to 14,000, when 100,000 would have welcomed the opportunity to attend.

"Troubles are like babies that grow by nursing"—you've heard that said.

And it is only too true that you magnify your troubles by thinking about them.

You can't forget troubles if you constantly dwell upon them.

There would be little to worry about if only important matters were allowed to upset your mind.

It is the multitude of little worries that robs the majority of full enjoyment in life.

Isn't it foolish to permit these minor things to overshadow the happiness which might be experienced.

Ttousands of persons would consider themselves fortunate if they had no more drawbacks in life than you have.

Of course, you have had irritating experiences—everybody has them.

You would lead a colorless existence if this were not true.

Monotony is boresome—variety is interesting, what do you think?

Aren't you mighty fortunate?
